For a workmanlike speech that makes its points with a minimum of fuss and feathers, I commend to you Frank Calder, the good and now greying NDP member for Atlin.

It would be unfair to suggest that Mr. Calder's remarks to the Legislature are tamely predictable. The amiable leader of the Nishka band has been known to take the warpath with a whoop and a holler when baiting from the government side overtaxed his patience.

But when Frank Calder rises to speak for his northern riding of 61,700 square miles, we know that a hearty breath of the British Columbia outdoors will presently invade the columned and high-ceilinged chamber.

Son of Chief

His constituents range from trappers to industrialists.

"Within Atlin District's electoral boundaries," he intones, "are potentialities involving forestry, fisheries, big game and water power."

The son of a Nishka chief then demonstrates that he does his homework faithfully by delving into the needs of his enormous bailiwick.

Why ruin southern farm valleys, he asks, "just because the whole lower mainland is getting over-populated and over-crowded?"

He feels that government should support new city and park sites for his north country, which he insists has a rich enough future to warrant the planting of towns.

Travel Tough

Not for the first time, Mr. Calder urges a copper smelter for the Portland Canal area.

He tells of a big game guide who didn't get to vote because he couldn't find an enumerator in time.

"Mine is an area in which travel is quite difficult," says the sturdy member who more than once has started his sessional journey to Victoria by canoe. "Transportation depends upon weather conditions."

Because of this, "it is absolutely impossible to try and register people in my riding in the seven days provided, even if the registrar of voters was to use an aircraft, and flying weather conditions were in his favor."

Wrong Gov't

Presently, and inevitably, Frank Calder takes his cut at the way in which Indian affairs are being handled.

"We are fighting the wrong government," he declares after an excursion into history for evidence to justify aboriginal land claims now before Ottawa. "This is the government we should be battling!"

But the government ranged behind its ornate brown hardwood desks across the alley of lush red carpet was in no mood for battle on Tuesday. A state dinner was in the offing, and an early adjournment hoped for.

Perfect Decorum

Even Highways Minister Gaglardi, first speaker of the afternoon, failed to evoke more than a perfunctory snarl or two from the Opposition ranks.

It was a day of well-nigh perfect decorum, the sort when the true stature and function of Parliament shows plain to be admired.

Although the student visitors in the speakers' gallery would no doubt have preferred ructions, the picture they took away with them was a better . . . and I think a truer . . . remembrance of our Legislature at work.

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Heavy fighting has broken out in central Laos involving Communist, neutralist and right-wing forces, neutralist and right-wing military communiques reported today.

A right-wing communique said Communist Pathet Lao and Viet Minh forces have launched simultaneous heavy attacks against neutralist positions south of the Nam Theun River and against right-wing forces in the Nhomarat area.

Another communique issued by neutralist headquarters at Muong Phanh said continuing attacks by Pathet Lao and Viet Minh forces which began Jan. 26 have forced neutralist troops to retreat.

Reds Admit Destroying U.S. Plane

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today protested "in the strongest terms the shooting down" of an American jet trainer over East Germany Tuesday.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today one of its fighters downed a U.S. jet trainer over East Germany and the three officers aboard were killed.

ANTI FAG

Campaign to publicize health hazards of smoking will be launched by U.S. Public Health Service, Surgeon-General Luther L. Terry announced today. Campaign's emphasis will be on youth.

The disclosure of the fate of the trainer plane came in a Soviet protest note released here accusing the United States of a provocative flight designed to increase tensions.

The plane vanished Tuesday on a flight from Wiesbaden U.S. air base in West Germany and air force officials said it apparently lost its way. The Russians had been asked for information.

The Soviet note said the plane "intruded" over Communist East Germany and ignored warning shots from a Soviet fighter plane directing it to land.

The note did not actually say the twin-jet T-39 training plane was shot down.

The Soviet announcement said the plane "did not react" to warning fire from a Soviet fighter plane in the area of Weimar.

"Therefore, the Soviet fighter had to take measures in compliance with air defence instructions which are well known to the American command," a Soviet note said.

"As a result the intruder plane crashed near Vogelsberg village, 20 kilometres (12 miles) northeast of Erfurt."

As distributed by the news agency Tass, the Soviet note said:

"The Soviet government cannot regard this intrusion otherwise than as a gross provocation by the American military authorities, aimed at aggravating the situation in central Europe."

Tass said the Soviet Union had warned repeatedly that resolute steps would be taken against the intrusion of military aircraft into the air space of Communist East Germany.

"The Soviet government," the note added, "deems it necessary to stress that all responsibility for this regrettable incident rests with the authorities of the United States."

Canada Scores 8-0 Win

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Canada shut out Switzerland 8-0 today to join Russia and Czechoslovakia at the top of the standing in the first round of the Olympic hockey championships.

The Canadians were held to a 1-0 first period lead on the sensational goalkeeping of Gerlad Rigolet of Switzerland but they broke the game wide open with five goals in the second period and another pair in the third.

Despite the lopsided score the Swiss netminder was the outstanding player on his team as he performed all sorts of contortions to block labelled drives by the Canadians who parked in front of his net throughout most of the 60 minutes.

Rigolet made 61 saves against only 28 by goalkeepers Seth Martin and Ken Broderick in Canada's net.

Broderick who entered the game at the start of the third period made seven saves.

Princess Converts

SOESTDIJK, The Netherlands (UPI)—Princess Irene of The Netherlands, second in line to the Dutch throne, has become a Roman Catholic, it was officially announced today.

Her parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, and all other members of the Dutch royal family are Protestants.

Man Charged In Beating

A 30-year-old man was charged in Courtenay police court this morning with assault with intent to commit an indictable offence.

John Hopton Twist, no fixed address, was remanded without plea until Saturday. He is being held without bail.

Courtenay RCMP said other charges are pending.

Twist was arrested near Cumberland Tuesday morning after a high-speed car chase. Two rifles, a shotgun and a knife were recovered.

The arrest came after a man attacked Mrs. Wilma Mueller, Riverside Hotel manageress. A man also held Mrs. Phyllis Pratt, Marsden Rd., Courtenay, at knife-point for 4½ hours later in the morning.

Columbia Property Acquisition Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Acquisition of lands required for reservoirs created by Columbia River development projects will not be undertaken until Parliament has approved the Columbia River treaty, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced today.

The authority, the government agency in charge of the multi-million dollar dam construction on the Columbia, said about 2,000 people and 650 homes will be affected by the reservoir to be created by the Arrow Lakes dam, scheduled for construction five miles west of Castlegar.

An authority spokesman said each property owner would be treated on an individual basis.

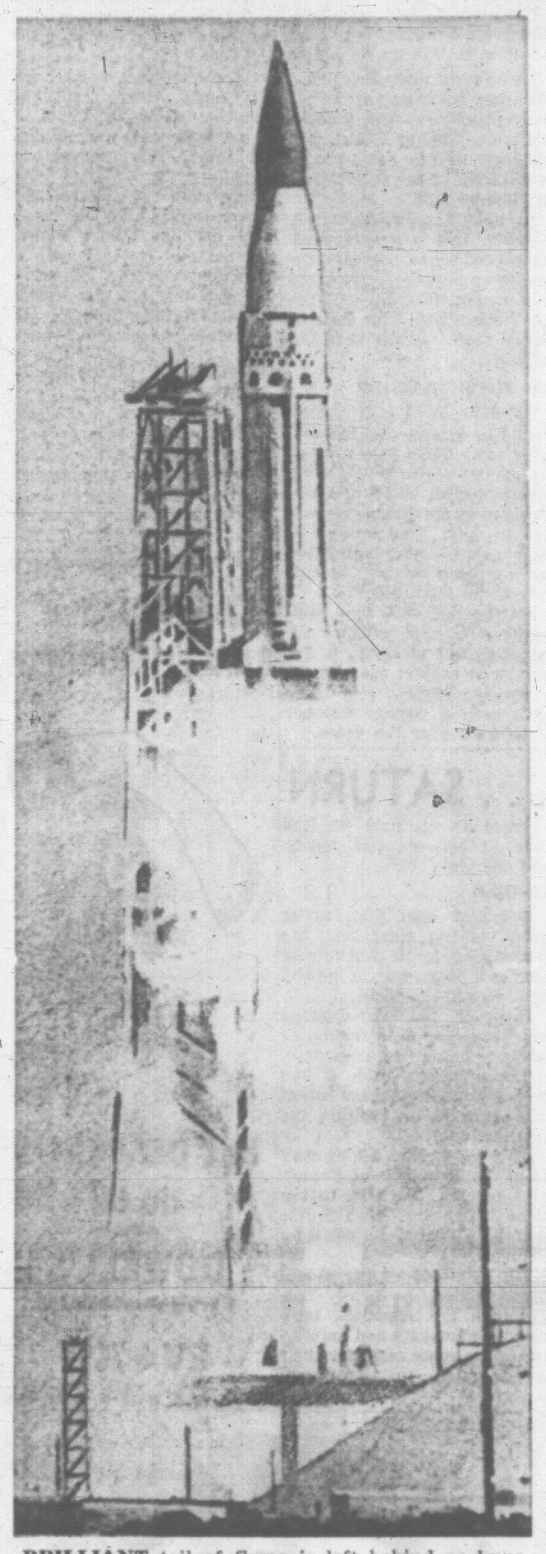

"We will strive in each case for a settlement which is fair and reasonable to all parties," he said.

Record U.S. Payload Rockets Into Orbit

Saturn Hoists 19-Ton Satellite

(Times News Services)

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—A Saturn I super-rocket propelled the world's heaviest satellite into orbit today and presumably vaulted the United States over Russia in the race for space rocket supremacy.

The mighty rocket, 164 feet tall and weighing 562 tons, flooded its launching pad with a rush of flame and sent a thunderous shock wave rolling across Cape Kennedy as it blasted off at 11:25 a.m. EST on its first full-scale test flight.

Slightly more than 10 minutes later, the Saturn I—its second stage live for the first time—injected into orbit a mammoth 84-foot - long satellite weighing 37,700 pounds, nearly three times heavier than the Russian heavyweight champions of space.

The satellite is little more than a mass of metal and sand with a radio tracking beacon. But its presence in the sky demonstrates American capability for the future and the U.S. determination to grasp the space rocket power lead.

No scientific value was attached to the huge satellite.

On the test, the Saturn I — forerunner of rockets which will boost American astronauts to the moon—chalked up these milestone performances:

—For the first time, its massive eight-engine, first - stage power plant developed full thrust of 1,500,000 pounds — equal to 34,000,000 horsepower or enough to power more than 200,000 standard automobiles. On four earlier flights of the first stage only, the thrust was held to 1,300,000 pounds.

PROVIDES MUSCLE

—The second stage, a cluster of six motors driven by high-energy liquid - hydrogen fuel, was flown alive for the first time and provided the muscle to shove the satellite into orbit. That stage, cutting in after the first had burned 145 seconds, delivered 90,000 pounds of thrust.

Saturn I's claim to the title of world's most-powerful rocket is based on official U.S. estimates that its first stage generates about 50-per-cent more thrust than Russia's largest booster and the fact that there is no evidence of Soviet progress with liquid-hydrogen fuel.

"There is no question" that the success of the Saturn shot "did take us ahead of the Russians in the ability to carry a payload into orbit," said Dr. Robert Seamans, associate ad-

Saturn Facts, Figures

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) Facts and figures on the Saturn I rocket launched today:

Size: 164 feet tall, 21½ feet maximum diameter, 562 tons.

Thrust: First stage 1,500,000 pounds, second stage 90,000 pounds.

Fuel: First stage 425 tons kerosene and liquid oxygen, second stage 50 tons liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen.

Powered flight time: 10.32 minutes

Maximum speed: 16,650 miles an hour.

Rocket cost: $17,300,000.

Satellite: 37,700 pounds, 84 feet tall, 18.5 feet diameter. Carried radio tracking beacon, but no useful scientific payload.

Orbit: About 160 to 400 miles.

Wilson Plans Ottawa Visit On Shipyards

Mayor R. B. Wilson announced a delegation will go to Ottawa in the next two weeks to impress the federal government with the shipbuilding crisis here.

Vancouver officials may join the delegation to make it a West Coast group.

Decision to prepare a brief and send a delegation was made at a special meeting in the mayor's office this morning. It was attended by nine civic, business, industrial, labor and political representatives.

Prime concern of shipping circles here is the rumored possibility one or two of the potential three Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort conversions will be given to east coast yards. But the delegation also is likely to make a pitch for more ship contracts as well.

"We are going to prepare a brief and we plan to send a delegation to Ottawa as soon as it is ready—probably in the first half of February," Mayor Wilson said this morning.

HEATHMAN CASE

New Probe Ordered In Slaying

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered a new investigation into the 1960 slaying of a Vernon newsboy both confessed and denied by Charles Murral Heathman.

Mr. Bonner indicated Heathman will not be released from Essondale Mental Hospital until the investigation is over.

Heathman, who is 40, said Tuesday he knew who killed 10-year-old Donald Ottley and that people in Vernon knew, too.

"Anytime anybody says he knows who murdered somebody—we take note of it," Mr. Bonner said.

Heathman was originally found guilty of the 1960 summer slaying, then convicted again after a second trial but freed after a successful appeal.

But in 1962, Heathman confessed to a Vancouver newspaper that he was in fact the killer.

Now he denies it again after 20 months in Essondale, where a medical board of two doctors has cleared his release to a sponsor.

Mr. Bonner said police will interview Heathman in Essondale to determine "what weight to attach" to his new statement.

NATO Rejected; Cyprus Wants UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Greek-Cypriots have indicated they want a United Nations force to keep peace on the Mediterranean island and not the NATO contingent Britain has been trying to muster.

Zenon Rossides, Cyprus' delegate to the United Nations, told Secretary-General U Thant in New York Tuesday a UN peacekeeping force would be acceptable on his territory. Thant appealed to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey for "the utmost restraint" in handling the explosive situation.

On the island, Greek-Cypriot newspapers assailed the United States and other Western nations expected to take a hand in the crisis and asked that the case be placed before the UN Security Council.

American and British diplomats strove to keep the lid on tempers in Athens, Ankara and Nicosia as signs mounted that U.S. troops might soon be assigned to help keep Turkish and

UNITED NATIONS Secretary-General U Thant arrived in Rabat, Morocco today to begin a nine-nation tour of Africa, including a hastily-arranged visit to the Congo. Thant will study a proposal for a communal security force to preserve peace in Africa.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Government sources today expressed reservations over a possible Canadian contribution to any NATO "police force" on Cyprus.

An authoritative source said no request for Canadian military personnel to serve in such a mission had yet been received from NATO headquarters in Paris.

Froslid and Controversial Plates

NEW YORKER WINS CASE

Auto Licence Ads Vetoed

NEW YORK (AP)—A state supreme court justice ruled Tuesday that New York motorists don't have to advertise New York world's fair on their 1964 licence plates if they don't want to. He said they may insist on new plates without any slogans.

However, the decision by Judge Harold J. Tessler that present New York plates are improper is not expected to have any immediate effect, pending a state motor vehicle commission meeting.

Most 1964 plates already are in the hands of motorists, bearing the slogan on the bottom "N.Y., world's fair." The deadline for their installation on the state's more than 5,000,000 registered motor vehicles is Saturday.

Suit against the world's fair slogan was brought by Kenneth Froslid, 32, a magazine picture editor who lives in Port Washington, N.Y. He owns a convertible, a station wagon and a camping trailer. He declared:

"I've nothing personal against the world's fair. What stirred me up was the arbitrary way the legend was put on the plates in the face of some serious questions of law.

"The state has no right to compel me — without even asking—to carry free advertising on my car."

Froslid's lawyer contended that the case involved the improper use of state property for free advertising for the benefit of a private corporation.

Judge Tessler ruled that Froslid—or any other motorist—"legally was entitled to the issuance of a proper registration plate."

When Canada's chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay visited here this week there was more on his mind than a preliminary look at the western extremity of his future job of voter redistribution.

Castonguay

He found time to meet with a host of old navy buddies. Mr. Castonguay, who started in the federal elections office in the 30s as a messenger, went navy during Second World War.

He joined the Yarrows-built frigate HMCS Orkney here in May, 1945, and rose to be her captain. He served also in Saguenay and Annapolis, one of the infamous four-pipers.

Now navigating Canada's voter distribution, Mr. Castonguay next will make a two-year study of methods of setting up a permanent voters' list and improvements in absentee voting systems.

The first major change in our voting methods though, he predicts, will be lowering of the voter minimum age limit to 18.

Two Victoria women—Miss Olive Watherston and Mrs. G. M. Stewart—are looking for local veterans of the ill-fated Gallipoli landings of 1915.

Both were nursing sisters with the British and Dominion troops which made the ill-fated landings and they have been invited to join a 50th anniversary pilgrimage to Gallipoli in May, 1965.

"We would like to hear from any other Gallipoli veterans who would like to go with us," Miss Watherston said.

"I don't think there were Canadian troops at Gallipoli, but there were four Canadian hospital units—two at Lemnos, one at Salonika and one at Cairo.

"These units travelled out in the warship HMS Asturias in which I was serving. As far as I remember, they were all from British Columbia."

Mrs. Stewart, a past president of the Nursing Sisters Association of Canada, is going to London Feb. 9 to find out more about the Gallipoli pilgrimage now being organized there.

Gallipoli veterans should call her at EV 4-7000.

Poison War Charged

LONDON (UPI) — Communist China accused the United States and South Viet Nam today of using chemical warfare in the Southeast Asian nation. At least two Vietnamese died of U.S. poison, the New China news agency said in a dispatch received here.

. . . HEATHMAN

He said it will be investigated to its fullest extent.

This could mean many weeks if a comprehensive probe of the Vernon area is undertaken.

Mr. Bonner also disclosed that Dr. Joseph Thomas, his department's consultant psychiatrist, had examined Heathman last week.

Dr. Thomas agreed with the medical board, which consisted of two doctors who are not qualified psychiatrists.

Mr. Bonner said this examination was at the request of his department.

'MANY OPINIONS'

The attorney - general deplored criticism of Heathman's impending release and attacks by the political Opposition on B.C. mental health services and laws.

He brushed off a blast from retired Supreme Court Justice A. M. Manson with the comment: "Mr. Manson is a man of many opinions."

Mr. Manson said in Vancouver Mr. Bonner should investigate to see whether Heathman has committed any other offence similar to the child slaying he once confessed, then denied.

The ex-judge, who sat on the first of the two murder trials at which Heathman was convicted, blamed the attorney-general for the situation which will see Heathman released.

He said he knows of no other case like it in legal history.

INEVITABLE

Mr. Manson said Heathman's release was inevitable.

If it had not come through the decision of a medical board of review it would have come through habeas corpus or other legal proceedings.

He blamed the attorney-general for failure to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the decision of the B.C. Court of Appeal to acquit the twice-convicted man.

He expressed deep concern that "a guilty and very dangerous man" is to be released into society.

Heathman obtained the release order through an appeal system allowed by the Mental Health Act passed in 1941.

The law reflected "the best thinking of the day," Mr. Bonner said.

"Until comparatively recent times people with psycho-analytical qualifications have not been readily available in the province."

FEW PSYCHIATRISTS

There are, in fact, only "relatively few" practising psychiatrists in B.C. today, he added.

"The fact that Heathman has taken advantage of the appeal procedure for release under the Mental Health Act has been used by some people as criticism of the procedure," Mr. Bonner said.

"It should be remembered, however, this is a safeguarding procedure to prevent anyone being improperly retained in a mental hospital and the key thrown away for lack of formal review available to the patient.

'NO JUSTIFICATION'

"Whether or not a person should be in a mental hospital must come down to a view of his mental state, and if competent medical authorities say a person is not insane, regardless of who that person is, there can be no justification for his being retained in custody of an institution."

Mr. Bonner said that even "order-in-council" patients, detained at "the pleasure" of the provincial cabinet are allowed a periodic review, and there have been a regular number of releases over the years.

ministrator of the federal space agency.

"The Soviet Union has orbited up to 15,000 pounds with a single shot," said Seamons.

"We have put up 38,000 pounds today, but it should be pointed out that our effective payload with the Saturn I is 19,000-20,000 pounds. This is still a clear advantage over the Soviet Union," he added.

LBJ TRIUMPHANT

In Washington President Johnson hailed the historic shot as a "giant step forward."

Dr. Wernher von Braun, father of the Saturn, said current estimates place Soviet booster power at between 700,000 and 900,000 pounds of thrust compared with 1.5 million pounds of thrust of the Saturn I booster stage.

Television viewers clearly saw clouds and the Florida peninsula as the Saturn I soared into space, flashing back to earth the pictures from a television camera aboard the rocket.

The new satellite circled the globe every 95 minutes at a distance ranging from 162 to 467 miles.

Scientists estimate its lifetime at between one month and one year.

VISIBLE

Scientists said that, under good viewing conditions, the second stage could probably be seen as a bright star in the sky as it circled the globe.

However, the second stage was not expected to remain in orbit for more than a few days.

The president, after it had been announced that the rocket had succeeded in orbiting the satellite, said:

"We have come a long way from the 31 pounds of Explorer I on Jan. 31, 1958, to the some 37,000 pounds which has just been placed in orbit by Saturn I.

"On behalf of a grateful and proud nation, I warmly congratulate the scientists, technicians, managers and employees of the space team for their contribuation to peace and progress."

. . . CYPRUS

Greek-Cypriots from each other's throats.

The London Daily Sketch reports that U.S. 6th Fleet ships with combat marines aboard had been ordered to "within striking distance of Cyprus as fears of a Turkish invasion swept the island."

Britain, whose military reserve has been drained by trouble in Cyprus, East Africa and Malaysia, has suggested that the United States provide some help. Similar appeals have been made to Canada, West Germany, France and Italy, all members of the North Atlantic alliance, along with Greece and Turkey.

FRENCH ACTION

Only Three Countries Objected

PARIS (Reuters) — French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville said today that the United States was one of only three countries which reacted unfavorably to France's recognition of Communist China.

The statement came as French newspapers reported the possibility that the agreement, announced today, was already on the point of breakdown over France's simultaneous recognition of both Communist and Nationalist China.

Couve de Murville, as quoted by Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte, told a cabinet meeting today the three countries which reacted unfavorably were the United States, South Viet Nam and Nationalist China.

Peyrefitte did not disclose how many governments reacted favorably.

Asked about a Chinese Communist foreign ministry statement that the Peking regime was the sole representative of the Chinese people, Peyrefitte said only that this was a reaffirmation of the Chinese position, already known to France.

Collusion Charged By Gaglardi

NDP, Tories Joined Forces 'To Get Me,' Minister Claims

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The New Democratic Party has prostituted itself by backing Conservative leader Davie Fulton in the last provincial election, Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi charged Tuesday.

He said the NDP had entered into a collusion to try and defeat him in Kamloops.

He also claimed that one of the main witnesses at last spring's highway graft probe (which cleared him) had "followed me like a puppydog" during the campaign, and hinted that his expenses had been paid by the Opposition.

As it turned out, Mr. Gaglardi beat Mr. Fulton handily.

However, he told the legislature, the NDP vote in Kamloops had dropped from 2,820 in 1960 to 1,297 last Sept. 30.

"You talk about dirty politics," he went on.

"There was some of the strangest collusion going on that I ever heard of in my riding."

It was a "collusive or a collective effort to get me out."

"When a party prostitutes its own principles it isn't worth being called a party."

The scheme didn't work, Mr. Gaglardi said, because the working men of Kamloops supported Social Credit.

'Laboring Boys Told to Vote Tory'

"Laboring boys" there had informed him: "They're telling us to vote for the Tories."

"Imagine the once-proud CCF party coming to these tactics."

"I'd hang my head in shame.

"In spite of it I took 'em all on."

Mr. Gaglardi said he got 681 votes more than his combined opposition.

"Quit your boasting," chided North Vancouver Liberal Gordon Gibson.

"You set up the Liberals up there, too," Premier Bennett interjected.

"This little fellow don't do any boasting about anything," Mr. Gaglardi responded. "I have so much to be humble of—and believe me I'm a lot closer to the ground than you are."

"That's because God made you that way," said Mr. Gibson, well over six feet to Mr. Gaglardi's five-foot and a bit.

Mr. Gaglardi said that star probe witness Dick Holzworth, a U.S. contractor, was "brought in" for the election campaign.

"Tell me Mr. Member for North Vancouver—who brought him in there? It is reported when he got back to the States he was waving a lot of bills about. I hope it isn't true."

"I don't think we should have paid him," said Mr. Gibson, laughing.

"No, I don't think you should," Mr. Gaglardi said.

One-Sixth of Budget for Welfare

Mr. Gaglardi went on to defend his government's social welfare policies.

The government, he declared, is spending more each year on welfare than it does on the Peace and Columbia Rivers combined.

B.C. had allocated $56,000,000—one sixth of its budget—for welfare, Mr. Gaglardi said.

The Peace project currently is costing $73,000,000 over the next five years.

Altogether the government is spending $247,800,000 a year on "humanitarian services" which include welfare, education and hospitals, he added.

"Do you mean to tell me this is mere pittance?"

"Do you mean to tell me any man can stand up and say with a straight face this government is not providing services?".

He told NDP welfare critics: "If you don't think the province of B.C. is doing a big job in the regard go and get some figures from your beloved Saskatchewan (where there is an NDP government); or get some figures from Ontario if you please; or get them from Quebec.

"It would be better if you spent more time doing something on a constructive basis."

Mr. Gaglardi said a woman had phoned his wife and asked for $5. He agreed to give it to her.

"How did she come? She came in a taxi for the $5."

He said the Opposition was trying to make the Socreds into "a great bunch of ogres—mean and stingy."

They were "missing the point."

"It's one thing, all right, to sit on the floor of the House and talk—it's another to go out and put your hand on the wheel and work."

Shooting Charge Laid on Mainland

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 33-year-old man has been charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting incident in the east end of the city Sunday.

Charged Monday was James Robert McDonald of suburban Burnaby.

McDonald was charged after an incident in which a gunman clung to the side of a moving car and fired three shots at the two occupants, a 25-year-old man and an 18-year-old girl.

Both are being held at material witnesses.

Boeing Design for Supersonic Plane

Proposed North American Aviation Jet

This Plane Designed By Lockheed Aircraft

New York-Paris Flight In 2½ Hours by New Jet

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing company released details Monday of its proposed 1,800-mile-an-hour supersonic airliner and confirmed reports the design called for variable-sweep wings that retract to an arrow shape in flight.

Boeing's two other competitors in the race to develop this nation's faster-than-sound transport, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, and North American Aviation, submitted designs with fixed Delta wings.

Senators Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, (D—Wash.) were briefed on the competing designs by the federal aviation agency and relayed the information here.

Boeing said its proposed model 733 could whisk from 150 to 227 passengers from New York to Paris in less than 2½ hours, and still give better performances on landings and takeoffs than present subsonic jets.

The 733 would weigh 215 tons, about 50 tons more than the largest Boeing subsonic jet, have a nonstop range of 4,030 miles, and cruise "over very long ranges" at a speed of mach 2.7 (about 1,800 m.p.h.), the company said.

The Boeing timetable calls for first flight late in 1967 with the first production model in service by mid-1971.

Mother Coming Home With Stricken Girl

REGINA (CP) — A 5,600-mile flight to Corsica in the hope that a biologist there could cure Yvonne Oschanney's leukemia has ended in failure.

Four-year-old Yvonne and her mother today were to leave Corsica, a French-controlled island in the Mediterranean, for their home in Regina.

Mrs. Oschanney and her daughter went to Corsica to see Gaston Naessens, who claims to have developed a cure for leukemia.

Monday, the day they arrived in Corsica, the French health ministry declared Naessens' cure worthless and forbade him to continue using it.

Scores of leukemia victims had flocked to Corsica after word of Naessens' claims spread.

"We got the final results this morning," Mrs. Oschanney told her husband, John, in a long-distance telephone call here Tuesday afternoon. "The French government has condemned the cure. We're coming home."

Mr. Oschanney said, "I didn't say much to her. I couldn't afford to say much." The couple borrowed $1,225 for the trip.

"We'll just have to wait and see what happens next. Maybe someone will come up with something else."

Heathman Again Insists He Didn't Slay Vernon Boy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charles Heathman, in his first interview since a confession and subsequent denial of the murder of Donald Ottley stated once again Tuesday that he is innocent.

He said he knows who killed the 10-year-old boy and so do the people of Vernon, Ottley's hometown in the Okanagan Valley.

Heathman, 40, was interviewed by The Province, Vancouver's morning newspaper, following the announcement of a court order that will see his release from the Essondale Mental Hospital in a few days.

He has confessed Ottley's Sept. 2, 1960 murder to the Vancouver Sun and later denied it twice. Described as dangerous, callous and anti-social by examining doctors, he was admitted to Essondale May 9, 1962.

DRUNK, HUNGRY

Heathman was paid $500 by The Sun for the story.

"I was drunk most of the time, I was hungry and I was broke," he said today. "I'd have told The Sun anything for $500 or less. Looking back on it, my only regret is the deep hurt I caused the boy's mother."

He said he is looking forward to his release and to take up the repair and refinishing of furniture, a trade he learned at Essondale.

FREED BY COURT

Heathman did not go to trial after the confession was printed because he had already been tried once for the crime, convicted, won a new trial, and freed by the B.C. Court of Appeal.

He admitted previous convictions on burglary, theft and forgery charges in England, the United States, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and B.C.

Attorney - General Robert Bonner set up a board of lawyers to investigate the possibility of charging Heathman with murder despite the law of double jeopardy. The board ruled he could not be charged.

Heathman said Tuesday he had planned to return to Vernon to clear himself but now plans to go to eastern Canada.

"People from Vernon have written to me," he said. "Half the town knows I didn't kill that boy. They know who did it and so do I."

KEEPS RESTAURANT SEGREGATED

'Why Me? Asks Jew As Negroes Picket

ATLANTA (AP) — "Why me? Why have the Negroes chosen me for their demonstrations?" asked stocky, affable restaurateur Charlie Lebedin.

Leb's, a segregated restaurant noted for fine cuisine, has been the scene of mass demonstrations by Negroes and a few white persons for the last four days.

More than 100 screaming demonstrators were arrested Monday night when they lay down in the street near the downtown restaurant, which has been picketed more than any other in Atlanta for the last year and a half.

"No one has been singled out as I have," said Lebedin, who more often is called Leb. "I am very bitter, very hurt.

"I'm a very strong segregationist now. I wasn't always. The Negroes have made me that way with their methods."

"Why can't I get police protection?" was another recurring question Leb asked during an interview.

RUSH INTO RESTAURANT

"The demonstrators were arrested on the street but Saturday night, when 260 of them rushed into my restaurant, I couldn't get police to arrest them."

Police have declined to make arrests in places of business unless proprietors sign warrants.

"I am not a racist," Leb said. "I'm a Jew and I know what persecution is. I was born in Russia, on the Polish border. When I was five years old my family had to flee for their lives, after the czar fell. Many members of my family were killed.

"My father, who was an attorney in Russia, had to work as a laborer in America, and my sister in a factory.

"Why should I gamble on losing everything I've worked all my life to get, by integrating?

"If every Atlanta restaurant would integrate, I'd be happy to do so. But the ones who say they're integrated are not. They're hypocritical—the Negroes don't bother them—but their business has fallen off.

"I am bewildered," he said.

Motorist Fined $500 In Death Of Policeman

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man convicted of leaving the scene of an accident in connection with the death of an auxiliary policeman Sept. 16 was fined $500 in assize court Tuesday.

Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere said William Gerald Pollock, 28, of North Vancouver, had shown a callous and selfish disregard for the welfare of an injured person.

Arthur Trentham, 48, was killed while directing traffic near Empire Stadium Sept. 16.

Pollock gave himself up to police four hours after the accident and claimed in court that he did not see the policeman.

He was acquitted on two charges of criminal negligence by an assize court jury.

PATIENCE GENTLEMEN!

B.C.'s new bank will be the biggest—er one of the biggest—in Canada, Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said Tuesday.

He told the legislature it would be the biggest, but Premier Bennett whispered a word in his ear.

It would be one of the biggest, he said a moment later, if "given time."

"They'll get time," chipped in Gordon Gibson (Liberal—North Vancouver).

Of World Importance

ALTHOUGH MR. NEHRU'S REported recovery from his recent affliction has postponed the need of an immediate answer to the question of a successor, it is a question that is being asked increasingly not only in New Delhi but around the world.

Indications are that Mr. Nehru, although weakened, will still be able to continue as head of the government, perhaps with additional help in carrying his burden. But obviously he must some day step down as the nation's successor to Mahatma Gandhi. Who will take his place?

Those who know the Indian situation say that nobody can take his place in the hearts of the people of India. But for the prime ministership the man most frequently mentioned is Mr. Lal Shastri. Formerly home minister, until he resigned four months ago under Mr. Nehru's cabinet retirement plan, Mr. Shastri has now returned as a minister without portfolio to supervise cabinet co-ordination and serve as house leader. This lifts two major burdens from Mr. Nehru's shoulders and places Mr. Shastri in a position to claim the powers of deputy prime minister, although he is not so designated.

Observers list the chief requirements of a successor to Mr. Nehru: he must be a middle-of-the-road man, a Hindi-speaking northerner (in order to appeal to the majority of the population) yet still acceptable to the south, and a man of sufficient political ability to manage the many elements of the powerful Congress Party.

Mr. Shastri is seen as embodying these requirements. In addition he has the advantage of having been Mr. Nehru's closest confidant over many years.

Other speculation involves Mr. Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, who has had spectacular success at the polls and is popular with the Party. It is believed that Mr. Nehru himself would be against any suggestion that she succeed him in the top position; he would deplore even the appearance of a family succession. But Mrs. Gandhi is expected to receive a cabinet post shortly and would be part of any collective leadership which might be formed.

The problem of Mr. Nehru's successor is of importance far beyond India's boundaries. Who leads the world's second-largest country is of world interest.

When it is remembered that India is in the process of demonstrating the application of democracy to a land emerging rapidly into the twentieth century, the importance of its success becomes obvious. The other population giant, Red China, has taken the way of Communism. Many new states are watching the courses of these huge nations, to see whether Communism or democracy may best serve their own needs. Mr. Nehru, while preserving neutrality in the East-West struggle, has led India steadily along the democratic road. The character and purpose of his eventual successor are therefore of vital interest to all the West.

Let's Join the Twentieth Century

REPORTS ON A STUDY OF the teeth of Winnipeg school children bear out the statistics compiled in numerous other similar surveys in other cities. The use of fluoride in the water supply has reduced tooth decay in children by 60 per cent.

Winnipeg inaugurated fluoridation in 1957. The children examined in the seven-year group have therefore had its benefits all their lives. The results of the study follow the now familiar pattern as shown in other places in North America.

It seems incredible that modern cities in geographical areas where the natural fluoride content of the water is low are continuing to deprive their citizens of the benefits of artificial fluoridation. Victoria's water contains only a tenth of the one-part-in-a-million of fluoride which has been shown necessary for stronger teeth and fewer cavities. When will we add the other nine-tenths? What possible reason have our civic leaders for delaying?

Just a 'Delay'

CANADIANS, AND PARTICUlarly Calgarians, have experienced disappointment in the failure of this country's bid to bring the Winter Olympics to Banff in 1968.

The Calgary Olympic Development Association had worked earnestly to make its invitation attractive. It can have no regrets or recriminations on that score.

This time it has not succeeded. But the spirit of the town, supported by Canadians interested in sport and sportsmanship, has been widely admired.

The Alberta city looks on the outcome of the vote which chose Grenoble, France, for the next quadrennial events, as a delay rather than a defeat. That means that Calgarians will start now to popularize Banff for the 1972 Winter Games. Good luck to them.

Product of Nationalism?

JAMES JENKINS, THE FORMER Balboa High School senior who raised the American flag in front of his school, thereby provoking the fatal Panama Canal Zone rioting, has returned, or been returned, to the United States.

According to the Associated Press, he told interviewers, "I was right in raising the American flag." Asked if he would do it again, he added "I'd have to think about it if I knew four United States citizens would have been killed."

Though troubled by the consequences of his action, he says that "If the flag-raising hadn't happened, I think there would have been trouble anyway . . ."

He may be correct on the last point. The situation was explosive and some other incident could have led to violence. But under the circumstances can a youth be led to believe that his rejection of arrangements not to fly the flag there —arrangements made by his own government authorities who foresaw probable trouble if it were flown—still places him in the right?

Here, presumably, is an example of that jingoistic nationalism which has led to incidents that have provoked disaster throughout history —a sense of distorted patriotism which runs beyond reason and over-rides any sense of responsibility.

It is a reminder to all nations to take extreme care with the type of nationalism they inculcate in their young people.

Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

Cupid Rebuffed

CANADA'S FUTURE

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

One Nation or None at All

THROUGHOUT Canada these days earnest, intelligent people are taking pen in hand and writing letters to the newspapers, all of them with the same advice: If Quebec is dissatisfied let it leave Canada while the rest of us get on with our business. This strikes me as sound and practical advice—provided we are prepared to carry it through.

Hutchison

If Quebec creates a nation bestriding the St. Lawrence and cutting the present Canada in two, then the Maritime provinces must also create their own nation or join the United States. For surely no one supposes that the new nation of English-speaking Canada, between the Ottawa River and the Pacific coast, will support the economic burden of the Maritimes as a remote and costly appendage. Nor would the Maritimes, inhabited by a sensible people, agree to such a mendicant and unworkable arrangement.

Since we are resolved to be practical, we must next consider the third, western nation.

It would possess a vast land of rich resources but also serious conflicts of interest. The economy of Ontario, for example, is built largely on manufacturing and a domestic market protected by tariffs. The prairies live largely on agriculture and other exporting industries unprotected by tariffs and thus penalized for Ontario's benefit.

Reactions

Ontario would seek to hold the prairies, within a tariff fence, as the captive market for its industries when they had lost much of their business in Quebec and the Maritimes. The prairies would seek free trade, or something like it, with the United States and also cheap American or other foreign goods.

Assuming this conflict could be compromised somehow in national policy, what about British Columbia? Where would it fit in, with its unique geography, its very separate interests and its peculiarly separate mind?

Would it not fit much better into the opulent layer of Pacific coast states, a natural community between the sea and the mountains? And would it not quickly seek this perfectly logical projection of its geography, interests and mind?

When these questions are raised we are driven back to John A. Macdonald's original logic—that Canada must be a transcontinental state, held together by an idea far larger than economics, or it must be a few weak fragments, all of them falling sooner than later into the United States.

Mr. Pearson, the latest successor to Macdonald, undoubtedly is right in saying that if Canada is broken in the middle by Quebec's departure then the whole structure will disintegrate. Not two, three or four nations but no nation at all will exist north of the 49th parallel.

If that conclusion is accepted by those willing to bid Quebec farewell no one can challenge their logic. But if that conclusion is not accepted what are we to do about the present quarrel of Canadian races?

There are three possible courses, it seems to me.

The English-speaking provinces could force their will on Quebec, if necessary by threat of physical force. Then, if Quebec decides to secede, we could wage a civil war against it, as Lincoln waged war on the American Confederacy.

This, too, would be quite logical but not quite practical for certain obvious reasons: No significant group of English-speaking Canadians would undertake such a war and, if they did, the United Nations would instantly intervene to keep the peace and Canada would become a white Congo.

Another solution, as favored by Quebec statesmen like Mr. Levesque, would be to set up two separate nations, English-speaking and French, which would delegate a few functions like defence to a central parliament representing both equally and subject to their unilateral vetoes.

A two-headed constitutional monster of this sort, imprisoned in a double straitjacket hardly looks practical. Given the choice, most English-speaking Canadians would rightly prefer to join a single American nation because with all its defects, it is indeed a nation and not a gibbering paralytic.

The last possibility is to do in our time exactly what Macdonald did in his—to reconcile the two races in a single state, with compromises and concessions on both sides, since neither can survive, as Canadians, in separation.

That, I take it, is Mr. Pearson's thinking in his hopeful new partnership with Mr. Favreau. But we need not expect quick results. On the contrary, we must expect a period of acute irritation and tension, fomented on one side by the Levesques of Quebec and, on the other, by English-speaking Canadians who tell Quebec to accept their terms or leave Canada without realizing the consequences to themselves.

In fact, there are only two alternatives open to us. We must re-unite a single nation or have none. Ben Franklin's old advice to the quarreling American colonies applies equally to the quarreling Canadian races. They must hang together or hang separately.

If they are to avoid the double noose they will have to show much more intelligence and much less visceral prejudice than they are showing today.

WELL HIDDEN

I recall a remark that nettled me until I recognized the hiddent compliment. It came from a 12-year-old boy when we were having a discussion in class apropos an ageing character in a play. "Oh, but you ain't reely old, miss," he said. "You just look it!"

What Price Titles?

I do not know why anyone would want to run after titles since the whole business has been made an utter farce by so-called socialists.

The socialist movement in Britain was started by a despised and persecuted few in the humble classes who were ready to die in a ditch for their principles. Gradually it got into the hands of the "better classes," and these "socialist" opportunists and climbers became just as avid for titles, just as eager to be called "my lord" and to have their wives called "my lady" by the common herd as the established aristocracy.

Hell holds no fury like a socialist politician or trade union leader who has not quite made the grade, and therefore cannot become a symbol of inequality and non-fraternity. The titled, and hoping-to-be titled, "socialist" ministers became just as guilty of giving the best jobs to people from the "better classes" as were the Tories.

I suggest we have enough corruption and patronage here already without adding the mad scramble for titles, inequality and the making of more and better snob and status symbols.

Brother's Keepers

May I through your columns express on behalf of the membership of the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded a word of appreciation to the School Boards of the three districts in and surrounding Greater Victoria. I refer specifically to School Districts Nos. 61, 62 and 63.

The recent decision by District 61 to provide a larger building for the mentally retarded of school age to alleviate the crowded conditions at the Joan Crescent School is a much needed project.

The joint co-operation of the school districts of Saanich and Sooke in the establishment of a new class for the school-aged mentally retarded is another step in the development of services for the handicapped, services that have for too long been neglected in our society.

One cannot help but note that all too often the work and efforts of the elected members of our various school boards go unnoticed and unthanked. We are ready, apparently, to criticize existing services and demand additional without giving due recognition to progressive plans and developments. The Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, having dealt with these school boards on many occasions, has always found them most co-operative and sympathetic to the needs of these children for whom we hold a "watching brief."

These latest moves will benefit not only the children concerned, but ultimately society as a whole when we realize that we are all, in reality, our "brother's keepers."

Never Divided

The Church of Christ never has or will be divided.

The union under consideration is the union of the Church of Rome — the High and Low Church of England and the large number of sects known as non-conformists.

A similar attempt was made in Great Britain about seventy years ago, the Cardinal who was the Head of the movement reported through the press—

"I find that every sect has something in common with the Church of Rome except the Baptists and they have nothing in common." I remember the jokes made in every office, factory, workshop and corner pub about the Baptists—to which a Baptist replied — "This proves that when you get to Heaven you will find all Baptists for they have nothing in common with the world."

The least said about the United Church of Canada the better. We still have Methodists-Pentecostal, who received such a boost and Presbyterians.

I was a member of a large Methodist choir when this union took place and listened to the first sermon preached by a United Church pastor. I quote: "I don't care what you believe, if you mean well you can be a member of my church." No wonder still more fell away from the union. Nonconformists can still sing "We are not divided All one body we."

Why do we have the names and prayers of all the clergy taking part but no mention of any layman and his prayer? In the first World War we had the confidence of the private in his officer and vice versa. Before union can take place you will have to have the same between layman and clergy.

Formula for Africa—Study of New Nations' Realities and Needs

By Colin Legum

WHAT has gone wrong in Africa? The ominous turn of events in Zanzibar, Tanganyika, Uganda and Ghana is only a small part of the story.

Three regimes were toppled in French-speaking Africa within the last 12 months. In Dahomey and Togo, it was the result of army mutinies; in Congo-Brazzaville, the army stepped in to end a populist revolt. There have been two recent attempts to overthrow the Ivory Coast government. And there have been serious plots against the governments of Senegal, Chad, the Cameroun, Tunisia and Morocco.

The first war between two African States, Algeria and Morocco, is still hanging fire, pending the outcome of last week's mediation talks in Abidjan. An incipient war is brewing between the Somalis, Ethiopia and Kenya. A massacre of the proud Tutsi is still going on in Ruanda. And a revolt by the non-Arab tribes of Southern Sudan is now being put down. There is mounting violence in South Africa. And there is a full-scale armed revolt in Angola. Already, all but five of the 36 independent African States have abandoned any pretence at practicing parliamentary democracy.

It is hardly surprising that people are feeling that something has gone wrong. Can it be, they ask, that colonialism was ended too soon? That perhaps, after all, Africa is not yet ripe for independence? That, by "pulling out," the West has opened the sluice gates to anarchy and Communism?

Unfortunately, too many people (including African leaders) seem to have made the mistake of equating freedom from alien rule with internal political freedom in Africa. But although these two freedoms are utterly different the ending of alien rule is an essential first step in the process of democracy finding its own indigenous roots.

Democracy has never been a gift to be bestowed by one society on another; not even in Europe. The notion of exporting Westminster models of democracy to Africa always had more to do with the British sense of "imperial mission" than with the realties of Africa.

In the end, as many of us have so often argued, Africa must discover its own way of how best to govern itself. And this will take time.

Contrary to what is often supposed, colonialism did not leave behind it either the example of good democratic government, nor the means for achieving it. The new states were left sadly lacking in three major requirements.

First, they were, with few exceptions, desperately poor. To add to their difficulties, the nationalist struggle greatly raised the peoples' expectations of a better life.

Secondly, they lacked trained manpower in almost every department of state. Thirdly, they lacked national cohesion. All were artificially created out of diverse tribes and are separated from each other by artificial frontiers.

In one form or another, these three elements have played a major part in each of the crises that has followed independence. Nor were these early crises helped by the kind of constitutions that were often given to the new states.

Western observers of the African scene have reacted variously to the emergence of "strong governments." On the one hand, many criticize all measures taken by the new governments to prevent the fissiparous tendencies from tearing their new states apart. But when things have gone seriously wrong (as in Zanzibar and Tanganyika) often the same people have criticized the African governments' failure to act firmly enough in anticipating trouble.

Like it or not, it is clear from the experience not only of Africa, but equally of Asia and the Middle East, that the democratic procedures known in North Western Europe offer no substitute for "strong government" during the transitional period after independence.

Gaullist France or, if things get even worse, the "People's Democracies" of Eastern Europe—rather than Britain, seem to be the likely pattern of development.

But even if one understands why single-party rule is inevitable under present circumstances, that is no reason for believing that democracy has no future in Africa. There was a time when democracy had no place in Europe. Democracy, where it exists, has only emerged out of prolonged struggles for power. It is unreasonable to suppose either that Africa will be able to take a short cut to democracy, or that Africans are inherently incapable of producing democratic societies of their own. If the swing today is towards the single-party state, the swing tomorrow will be against it. Africa will, no doubt, end up in much the same way as other continents, with a wide variety of governments.

What can we learn from these first years of African independence? The essential first lesson is that the mutinies, revolts and coups have their roots in real problems; and that, even if Communists and other neo-colonialists try to exploit them, the original causes remain real.

First, Africa's poverty and backwardness are conditions which its energetic leaders refuse to accept; they are determined to advance rapidly into the technological age. They still prefer to do this in co-operation with the West if its policies are geared towards their objective. However, they have come increasingly to feel that Western policies are not being as helpful as they should be, especially trade and aid policies.

Secondly, it is quite impossible for Africa to grow strong, economically or politically, under the conditions of balkanisation which characterize the post-colonial era. By the time the remaining colonies become free, there will be at least 50 African states; they will share among them only 225,000,000 million people—a little more than half of India's population.

One must expect, therefore, to see the drive for Pan-African unity grow stronger, and the disputes over sovereignty become sharper. The opportunities opened up by these rivalries have already been noticed by the Communists and some others.

Thirdly, Africans will not accept "racial inferiority" in any form. This means that whatever their disputes with each other, they will certainly find common cause in fighting the white minority governments of Southern Africa. It means, too, that they will assert themselves in international affairs to stake their claim to political parity with the more advanced continents.

These three realities are expressed in a revolutionary spirit which is more in tune with the ideas of the Communists than of the West. African socialists seldom look to social democrats for inspiration; they tend increasingly to look to the authoritarian Marxists.

Does this mean that the Communists are likely to gain ground rapidly in Africa? So far, they have gained very little.

The reason for this is that they, too, are baulked by yet another African reality: the strong belief in non-alignment.

The opportunities, therefore, for the West to retain its traditional relationship with Africa remain as great as always. But to take advantage of these opportunities, it is necessary for the West to try to understand what the African revolution means to the Africans, instead of only assessing it in terms of Western interests. And having understood the true mood of the African revolution, the West should reformulate its policies to make them less equivocal in African eyes, and make Western policies more comprehensible, more meaningful and acceptable to the real needs of the African revolution.

Today's Western-trained African leaders are under heavy pressures; whether they can retain power depends as much on the West as on their own efforts.

ON THE TIMES — By ART STOTT

Winter of Discontent

AT the top of our border, in the lee of my neighbor's garage, a small clump of violets came into second bloom early last November. This isn't unusual. The plants frequently have two flowerings.

Stott

But the violets are still blooming and snowdrops have pushed up through them with their small, drooping white bells. The scene should look lovely—a sort of harbinger of spring. Maybe it would if I raked out the brittle copper birch leaves which make the whole area untidy—and if the violets weren't quite so runty.

The flowers don't lift my spirit as they should do. I walk past them muttering a sour "Unseasonable." Then I begin to blame the weather for my general sluggishness and wonder if my blood is iron-poor.

In recent years I've been happy enough if winter came without prolonged snow. My argument has been that we could put up with the rain and wind so long as the white stuff didn't descend. Now I'm not so sure. Maybe we need a good cold snap and a blanket of the beautiful to stir the corpuscles and to make us grateful for temperatures that rise above freezing and for the bounties of rain and a brisk blow.

A disenchanted idealist of my close acquaintance, a man who writes voluminously for eastern and American papers, generally unburdens himself, at this time of the year, of a column lamenting the underprivileged condition of Pacific Coast people, particularly Victorians.

We are denied, his column says, the blessing of snow that gives white purity to the vast part of Canada's landscape, sets well-bundled-up children gaily shouting as they slide their sleds downhill and, by contrast, to the outside, gives the dancing flames of a fireplace indoors an enhanced value.

I thought of his annual lament last weekend as we went to Shawnigan for a brief look-see for any storm damage to the shack. Along the cutoff road youths and children were molding snowballs from the crystalized dregs of an earlier fall. Little tots were packing their sleds from one piece of bare ground to a small slope lightly dusted with snow for glides that seldom stretched more than 10 feet. They were searching for the winter heritage of Canadian youngsters—and finding it in pretty poor supply.

If I had slogged and slipped through the stuff for a week or two, had stepped off the curb into wet slush over my shoetops, had shivered with wet feet and sweated to clean off my sidewalk, the rain and the wind of this month might have seemed better than tolerable.

Since I haven't suffered the greater discomforts of snow to provide a contrast, I'm completely fed up with the weather we've been having. It's too raw to go outside and work. It's too rough for fishing in the Strait—and anyhow the gales tore my slip out so I can't launch my boat. There are so many household jobs to do indoors that my heart faints each time I contemplate a start on them.

Were my energies completely absorbed in the simple, straight-forward tasks of keeping warm and dry, and shovelling my sidewalk, none of these problems would intrude. Primitive needs would keep me occupied and possibly happy. Living in the half-season between warmth and extreme cold, I am denied the simplicities.

What we, or people like me, need here is a good, robust Canadian winter, with frigid air and the stars twinkling at night when it's not snowing. Yes, sir, that would fix us up.

THE LIGHTER SIDE — By DICK WEST

The Bobbsey Twins in Suburbia

WASHINGTON (UPI)—I keep reading these novels about sex and sin in suburbia and they make me want to sue my real estate agent. I feel that I have been cheated.

West

The house he sold me is indisputably in the suburbs, but as best I can tell the area is almost totally devoid of hanky panky.

I moved out there expecting to find material for a book of my own. And I have. But who wants to read a book about Japanese beetles?

If I used my neighborhood as the setting for a novel, its salacious index would register several degrees below "The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew."

Furthermore, I have prowled around a bit in the adjacent neighborhoods and they don't appear to be any more wicked than my own.

The conclusion seems inescapable that some of the novels depicting the suburbs as hotbeds of depravity were subsidized by subdevelopers.

The only hotbeds I've seen were full of African violets.

According to the blurbs on the dust jackets, suburbs are a symbol of our decaying moral fibre. But I haven't encountered any decay outside of a compost pit.

It is true that the agent I deal with didn't exactly promise that riotous living went along with picture windows. I guess I got that impression because he carried his conditional sales contracts in a paperback copy of "Peyton Place."

At any rate, I soon found that the suburbs are a poor place for research on assignations. In my community, people are more interested in bird feeders.

Last summer, having nothing on my note pad more spicy than a new recipe for barbecue sauce, I tried to persuade one of my neighbors to start a secret romance with a lady across the street.

"Sorry, old boy, I'd like to accommodate you but I've got to mow the lawn," he told me.

In another effort to promote my literary enterprise, I undertook to organize a neighborhood orgy. It didn't turn out very well, either.

I finally got a group together on a night when the PTA wasn't meeting, but no one present knew how an orgy was conducted.

In fact, some of them thought that they had been invited to an organ concert. So we played charades instead.

Somewhere in the land there may be a suburb that is as decadent as the novels indicate. But I'm convinced that the average suburbanite thinks a peccadillo is some kind of relish.

HOME GARDEN — By HILDA BEASTALL

Don't Delay, Start Today

The gorgeously effective tuberous begonias will be again used extensively this year for partly shaded planters outdoors, and few things except, perhaps, geraniums can give a longer display of color in a similar position.

Hilda

It is usually March before the average gardener gets around to starting the tubers into growth, but to grow these plants from seed a beginning must be made now, without any further delay.

Growing begonias from seed can be accomplished by the amateur but the attempt is not recommended for the first trial of sowing indoors and raising seedlings.

Why? Mainly because begonia seed is as fine as ash, and will disappear if breathed upon!

The seed packet will probably be protected inside the outer envelope with a fold of cotton to prevent crushing or otherwise damaging the tiny germ within each seed.

There may be 50 or 100 seeds in the corner of that packet, so that it must be thinly sown on the surface of the finely screened soil in a low four-inch clay pan or pot.

A tip to aid in its even distribution is to wear reading glasses for the operation if they are habitually worn for reading.

A smooth bottomed drinking glass can be used to firm the seed gently into the soil, for no covering of soil is advisable for such fine seed.

Standing the pot in tepid water to the rim for an hour will ensure even moisture throughout the soil, and placing the pot into a polythene bag will prevent it from drying out before the seed germinates.

A temperature between 65 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit will do the trick in about 10 or 12 days. Again, the reading glasses or a hand magnifying glass will aid in the detection of sprouting.

Remove the seedlings from the pot when four tiny leaves are to be seen, spacing them an inch apart in a box of loose fibrous soil containing a little sand. They will need at least a 65 degree Fahrenheit temperature for growing on, and a place in a good light window.

SYNOPSIS — Brisk winds and occasional showers interspersed with considerable sunshine marked the rapidly-building area of high pressure on the coast this morning. The remains of the last Pacific storm are evident in the interior but skies will clear gradually during the day as the high pressure area moves inland. Still another storm is developing in the mid-Pacific. More rain and gales will batter coastal areas on Thursday, with a mixture of rain and snow spreading inland later in the day.

'No Need to Fear Nuclear Heads'

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF said Tuesday in a statement that "over-zealous and inaccurate reporting has largely created false impressions" about the "so-called dangers many people erroneously ascribe to nuclear weapons."

"Now that nuclear warheads have arrived at RCAF bases for use by the Bomarc missile squadrons, it is perhaps an appropriate time to discuss these weapons generally," the statement began.

Any fear for the safety of the population in areas close to nuclear storage depots is unwarranted, the statement said.

"It has been proven that if, by some remote chance, a mishap involving a nuclear warhead should occur, the extent of actual physical damage and loss of life would be far less than that of a service station fire, a hazard that is accepted and, for the most part, ignored by the urban population of today's world."

The RCAF said "inherent," built-in safety factors make an accidental nuclear blast "for all practical purposes, all but impossible."

The four-stage statement outlines the physical processes of nuclear explosion, the safety factors to guard against accidental detonation and the measures adopted for safekeeping of the warheads at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que.

Under a system of "checks and double checks" it would be "impossible to fire a nuclear-armed missile either by accident or malice, or without the consent of both Canadian and U.S. governments," the statement said.

Recognition of China Opposed by John D.

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should not recognize Red China at this time but her admission to the United Nations should be given "fullest consideration," John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative leader said Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker declined to comment on France's new diplomatic recognition of the Peking regime but said at a press conference that recognition by Canada would be "derimental to the interests of freedom."

He said he believes Canada should have recognized Red China 12 or 13 years ago — with due regard for maintaining the Formosa government — but to grant recognition now would be interpreted by the Communists in Southeast Asia as approval.

"Having delayed this long and with the serious situation that exists in South Viet Nam, recognition by Canada — and I speak only of Canada — would be misinterpreted with evil effects for the cause of freedom for a long time to come," the federal Opposition leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said admission to the United Nations is a different thing and deserves serious consideration.

"You cannot continue forever to deny the existence of a nation of so many millions of people if the UN is to be the institution representative of all nations," he said.

CLC Wants Banks Out

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labour Congress has strongly urged the government's three-man marine union trusteeship to oust Hal C. Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, it was learned Tuesday.

The top officers of the CLC told the trustees at a closed-door meeting in Montreal Monday that a showdown with Mr. Banks is inevitable, and that it might as well come before the start of the 1964 shipping season in April.

ERHARD HELPING THAW

East and West Germany Moving Closer Together

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's West German government is taking a new and more co-operative look at Walter Ulbricht's East German Communist regime, which it still insists on treating officially as an international pariah.

There is no prospect of formal diplomatic recognition. The West German Federal Republic considers itself the only legal government of Germany and is not likely to change its mind. But more contacts and a sizable loan to the hard-up Communists are possibilities.

Last week East and West Germany renewed the agreement under which they exchange about $500,000,000 worth of goods a year. The Communists won two useful concessions:

1. Their shipments of synthetic fuel oil to West Germany were relieved of $18,500,000 in taxes.

2. The next date for settlement of accounts was postponed until June 30, 1965, in effect an extension of credit.

Longer term credits amounting to $100,000,000 have been proposed. Whether they are granted depends on the willingness of the Communist leaders to ease conditions for the 17,000,000 East Germans. So far Ulbricht has done much less than other East European leaders to liberalize Communist rule.

'SHOULD STEP DOWN'

There might be more action if Ulbricht, now 70 and in poor health, were to retire. For years some Germans have been saying things would go better between the two parts of Germany if Ulbricht and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer both stepped down.

Adenauer quit last October, and Erhard took over. To keep the parliamentary majority he needs, Erhard had to dump Rainer Barzel, Adenauer's minister for all-German affairs, and replace him with Erich Mende, head of the Free Democratic party. He also had to make Mende vice-chancellor.

Mende and his Free Democrats favor bolder exploration of ways to get along with the Communists. Some of Erhard's Christian Democrats agree with them. Erhard and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder go along at least part of the way.

In 1962, when Adenauer and Barzel were in office, it proved impossible to make a Christmas agreement for visits across the Communist wall in Berlin. In 1963 it was done, with concessions on both sides.

When Erhard visited the United States in December, President Johnson suggested the West German government come up with some ideas on East - West relations. It responded by suggestions that have been called the first proposals on German reunification any West German government has made spontaneously.

DETAILS NOT KNOWN

Details have not been disclosed officially, but published accounts indicate some of them should be more attractive to the Communists than anything West Germany has been ready to give in the past. Rapid progress toward unification is not expected — the suggestions refer only to first steps.

There have been other straws in the wind, all coming from the Free Democrats.

For example, Thomas Dehler, a former minister of justice known for his unorthodox opinions, proposed that West Germany get out of the North Atlantic alliance and East Germany withdraw from the Communists' Warsaw pact. People were fools, he said, if they thought Germany could be unified when its two parts belong to opposed military blocs.

But the Free Democrats are a small minority. Although some members are cabinet ministers, it is Chancellor Erhard — a Christian Democrat — who lays down policy.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Advt.

Lowest of eight tenders submitted to University of Victoria development board for a new science wing at Gordon Head campus was from Burns and Dutton Construction for $408,500.

Bids were opened Tuesday.

Estimate for the wing, to adjoin the science building via tunnel and walkway, was between $350,000 and $400,000, plus furnishings worth about $30,000.

Other bids: Farmer Construction, $409,298; Luney Bros. & Hamilton, $421,300; R. A. Hall, $424,478; Bennett & White, $424,899; G. H. Wheaton, $433,776; E. J. Hunter & Sons, $434,731; Narod Construction, $442,850.

DENNIS DAY
. . . Irish-Yiddish

A 'FAMILY' SHOW

Dennis Day, Jugglers Star at Auto Show

An Irish tenor from the Bronx, singing Yiddish folk tunes—that's Dennis Day.

The Hollywood star will appear at the 1964 Victoria international auto show Feb. 4 to 8, along with other entertainers

Dennis Day got a little more of the Irish in his voice after a trip to Ireland, a gift from his parents after graduating from high school.

SANG ON RADIO

During his summer college vacations, he sang on radio for extra money, and was fortunate to be heard by Mary Livingston.

When vocalist Kenny Baker left the Jack Benny program, Dennis was one of several called for auditions.

He got the job, and graduated from a "dumb-bunny" stooge for Benny to his own radio and TV shows.

A family man, he not only excludes questionable material from his act, but often is joined by his four brothers and his sister, and his sister-in-law, movie star Ann Blyth.

Dennis Day sings everything from Yiddish folk tunes to opera. He does imitations in Spanish, Russian, Swedish, Italian, Japanese, Greek and German, not to mention Irish.

COMEDY ACT

With genuine Scandinavian accents are Ruth and Carl Carlsson, featured at the Auto Show.

The Carlssons have done their comedy-novelty act in most of Europe and America's biggest cities.

They are the only musical "mouthjugglers" anywhere — and also have a knack for piling up cups and saucers on their heads, and topping them with a teapot.

The stars will be featured three times each day of the auto show—3:15 p.m., 7:15 p.m. and 10:15 p.m.

CITY MANAGER SAYS:

Boards Threaten Local Government

Stronger municipal councils were advocated Tuesday night by city manager Dennis Young.

Mr. Young, addressing the Association of Women Electors annual meeting, warned that councils could become an anachronism if the trend continues to delegate authority to quasi-independent boards and commissions.

GRAVE TREND

"The trend should be of grave concern to the public," he said.

The practice, he claimed, has created a diffusive and fragmented municipal organization in many communities.

"In Victoria we have a high percentage of such agencies which make it not only more difficult for the citizen to comprehend, but also to control, the affairs of the municipality."

LACK OF CONFIDENCE

Every time a new commission is established it is an expression of lack of confidence in the city council by the electors, the city manager said.

"While there is little justification for such boards and commissions there is one area where their creation is inevitable, that is in the field of inter-municipal activity.

"But even in these areas this can only be regarded as a temporary expedient in the absence of a practicable form of general government for metropolitan urban areas," Mr Young said.

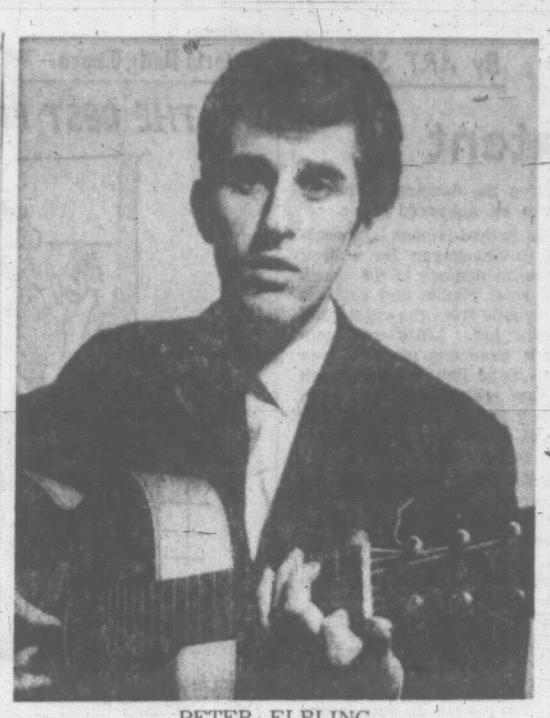

Composer's Body Returned to U.S. For Cremation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The body of composer Marc Blitzstein, who died last week in Martinique after an alleged robbery-beating, was cremated Monday in accordance with his wish and buried privately without any religious service, his sister said Tuesday.

The body was flown to Philadelphia from the West Indian island Sunday night.

Mrs. Edward Davis said the first news of her brother's death last Wednesday came in a telegram from Vice-Consul William E. Milam on the French-owned island who said Blitzstein died of injuries suffered in an auto accident.

"Later Mr. Milam told us that Marc had been beaten by three men and apparently robbed, and that an investigation was being conducted by the French police," she said.

PETER ELBLING
. . . the Paddington sound.

Folk-Singing 'Find' Just a Paddington Lad

Peter Elbling, a London folk-singer who is sort of Elbling his way around the world, is currently giving forth a pleasant—and different—act at the Secret Coffee House.

Hired unseen—unheard, actually—by the management to fill out the bill featuring Tom Hawkin, Peter parlayed his Paddington accent and delicate guitar touch into an extended engagement by the time his first 20-minute set was wound up. He's appearing Friday and Saturday this week with Jim Johnson.

A lot of his success is due to fresh material and simplicity of approach.

Some of his songs—like the Golden Vanity—are familiar to English audiences, virtually unheard here.

His guitar stylings lean toward bluesy intonations, but at least one arrangement seems to hint of Joan Baez.

Peter did well in Alberta before coming to the Coast, and he seems likely to do well here, even though his welcome to this province was not the most hospitable possible.

He was injured in a car accident that damaged his right arm and side, and also resulted in his growing a beard because he couldn't hold a razor.

Even looking like an Armenian carpet seller, he seems sincere.

At the top of last week's bill at the Secret was Tom Hawkin, a Vancouver singer who seems able to coax any audience to sing with him.

Tied in with a pleasant voice and an easy line of talk between songs, his audience participation success makes every set seem short.

His repertoire is wide and he is well established in the Pacific Northwest as a coming young folksinger.

FROM CARS TO LA TRAVIATA

Huckster Goes to the Met

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary Costa made it to the Met this month.

You remember Mary. She is the beautiful soprano who joined with movie actor Bill Lundigan to sell cars on the Climax television show for three years. She started studying serious singing eight years ago, and her friends thought it was nice that Mary had a hobby. Only she and a few others realized it was more than that.

"I knew I had a natural voice," she said, "but I also knew it would take a great deal of training."

Five years ago, folks were surprised to learn that Mary's "hobby" had led to roles with the San Francisco Opera. The Metropolitan put in a bid, but she held off until she felt she and the time were ready.

Finally, impresario Rudolph Bing offered her the lead in La Traviata and told her: "You would be very capricious to turn me down this time, since it is a role with which you are completely familiar."

So Mary took the assignment—and found she would have to make her debut under difficult conditions. "Time did not allow a rehearsal on stage. And the people in the chorus were darling about helping me. When there was a pause in the music, they'd whisper, 'now moved to your right about 10 feet', and so forth."

She faced another unforeseen hazard: Singing with a baritone with whom she had never rehearsed.

"They had me rehearse with a substitute baritone because the one who had been scheduled to appear was too sick to go on," she said. "When the baritone came onstage, I thought, 'my, he looks different in a beard'. When I got closer, I saw he wasn't the man in rehearsals at all. The original man had gone on."

Despite such matters, Mary won enormous acclaim. She'll return to the Met in La Traviata again this season, but this week she was back at her home base to appear on ABC's Hollywood Palace television show Saturday night.

One thing marred Mary's triumph. Shortly after she returned from the Met, she announced the parting from her husband, film director Frank Tashlin, who helped and encouraged her in the years of training. Her frequent absences and the divergence of their careers was given as the reason. No divorce plans have been made.

PIONEER DIRECTORS

The American D. W. Griffith and Russian Sergei Eisenstein, both cinema directors, were pioneer film-making geniuses.

Indian Lands Bill Silly, Says Calder

Canada's only Indian member of a legislature says a debate over land claims by British Columbia Indian bands should be settled in the courts, not by a "silly bill" due to come before Parliament at Ottawa.

Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin) said in the legislature Tuesday B.C. Indians object to many provisions of Bill C-130, an act to provide for the disposition of Indian claims.

A basic objection, he said, is that "even if an Indian band presents a good case and is awarded certain compensation for lands claimed, the (Indian claims) commission and the government will not admit that the Indians were original owners of the land."

Since 1866 the colony and later province of B.C. had declared the aboriginal and land claims of B.C. Indians did not exist and that aboriginal rights weren't enforceable.

"This is the reason why we would prefer to meet the provincial government in court and decide once and for all," he said.

"Judicial decision is the answer to the solution of the Indian land question.

"Bill C-130 is a silly bill... It is possible that this bill can topple the minority government in the east."

WHO'D WANT $140,000 ALL AT ONCE?

A Social Credit MLA Tuesday advocated lotteries to finance hospitals.

Although lotteries are currently a matter for the federal government, Stanley Carnell (SC—South Peace), said he expected they could soon become a provincial responsibility.

He proposed a lottery with tickets sold through chartered banks and at least 50 per cent of the gross take going to hospitals.

Top prize should be $20,000, Mr. Carnell said.

"I can't see why anybody would want $140,000 (top prize in the Irish sweep stakes), not all at one time."

She Gave Transfusion Of Spirit, Strength

(Tenth in a series of articles excerpted from "My Darling Clementine," story of Lady Churchill.)

By JACK FISHMAN

Back in London (in December, 1943), came to an announcement from No. 10 Downing Street, "Mrs. Churchill regrets that she will not be able to keep any engagements in the immediate future, as she has left the country, in order to be with the prime minister during his illness and convalescence."

"And then a wonderful thing happened," recalls Inspector Walter H. "Tommy" Thompson — Churchill's bodyguard. "Mrs. Churchill arrived (in Tunis). Her sudden appearance at his bedside gave the prime minister tremendous comfort and new strength. From that moment on, he started to come back to us."

When she first arrived by plane, Winston was much too ill even to be told. Then, when he was sufficiently conscious, the doctors permitted her to go to the bedside.

She sat quietly beside him without saying a word, and held his hand. Suddenly, his eyes opened. Husband and wife smiled at each other.

"The miracle of that moment is almost impossible to describe," said one of the prime minister's staff. "The M. & B. drugs were playing their part in the fight, but Mrs. Churchill's coming there made an almost unbelievable difference to him. It was as if by holding his hand she was giving him a transfusion of her own spirit and strength."

Stayed by Bed

During the first couple of days she was there, he was still only semi-conscious, but she stayed by his bed for hours so that whenever he opened his eyes he could see she was with him when he needed her most. The very fact of her being close, of his knowing she was there, was everything to him.

Gradually, the temperature began to subside and the pneumonia resolve, although an irregularity of the pulse indicated that the illness had thrown some strain on his heart.

Sarah also worked tirelessly at the villa, helping her mother and helping General Eisenhower's staff in every possible way. After two anxious weeks, Winston began to recover strength so rapidly that he was able to tackle work again.

Recalling the illness in his own record of the war years, Winston said, "I became conscious of being very tired. For instance, I noticed that I no longer dried myself after my bath, but lay on the bed wrapped in my towel till I dried naturally . . . as I sat on my official boxes near the machines I certainly did feel completely worn out . . .

"I said 'I am afraid I shall have to stay with you longer than I had planned. I am completely at the end of my tether . . .' So here I was at this pregnant moment on the broad of my back amid the ruins of ancient Carthage."

Dove a Hoax

On returning from a Christmas Day service conducted by a British Army chaplain, Clementine told Winston a strange story. A white dove, she said, had flown into the hut in which the service was being held, and had alighted on the altar just as the blessing was pronounced. "An ecclesiastical hoax!" said Winston.

Christmas Day that year was especially wonderful, for they were also able to celebrate the blessing of his recovery. Clementine and Sarah personally supervised the Christmas dinner arrangements at the villa, and Winston, tired but happy, thoroughly enjoyed it.

On Christmas morning, a small patrol vessel which had been guarding the Bay ran up a flag signal spelling out "Happy Christmas!" to the prime minister. This pleased Winston enormously, and he was very unhappy when the ship was ordered to haul down the flag to conform to security regulations.

The generals flew in and out, and Winston still held the reins.

As he began to progress, Sarah sometimes took it in turns with her mother to sit beside his bed reading him "Pride and Prejudice," for Winston always enjoyed Jane Austen.

Clementine and Lord Moran insisted on a thorough convalescence in a warm climate, and Clementine suggested that Winston's beloved Marrakech would be ideal. Winston had first fallen in love with the rose-red 900-year-old city, scented with orange and lemon groves, in 1936, when he went there with a small family party and found Lloyd George had the same idea.

Deep Gratitude

Before beginning his convalescence, the prime minister decided to issue a personal message from No. 10 Downing Street to reassure the people that he was progressing well.

The statement said: "Now I am leaving the place where I have been staying for an 'unknown destination' after more than a fortnight's illness. I wish to express my deep gratitude to all who have sent me kind messages or otherwise helped me."

Actually, although on the mend, the prime minister was still far from well, and Clementine was determined he should be fully recovered before returning to Whitehall.

Before leaving Tunis for Marrakech special arrangements were made for the flight, including strict limits on the altitude and the inclusion of an RAF doctor, equipped with oxygen apparatus, in the party. The plane flew at about 7,000 feet and was deliberately making a detour to avoid the Atlas Mountains.

Winston behaving momentarily like his old self, insisted on cutting out the detour and taking the more direct route over the mountains. The doctors were against the idea, but an insistent Winston was always difficult to oppose and he had his way.

Slowly the plane climbed, and at every additional 1,000 feet Winston permitted the doctors to check his pulse and breathing. On being told he was responding well, he cried with delight, "Of course I'm all right!"

The one person in that plane who did not try to dissuade him from having his way was Clementine. She would not attempt to dissuade him in such matters. She knew him too well. She knew that even she should not stop him. She understood better than anyone else that Winston had to defy danger for his own satisfaction.

In certain things, she would never openly oppose him. She knew that to do so would be to strangle the very spirit of adventure that had made the man what he was.

On arrival at Marrakech, Winston was exhausted but happy. When orderd to go straight to bed by Clementine, he went like a good boy and remained there for several days.

When she had flown out to Tunis, Clementine, in preparation for her husband's convalescence, had brought him something she knew he would want—his easel, canvases, and paints. Now, amid the splendor of Marrakech, in the shadow of the beautiful blue mountains, he could relax and enjoy his beloved hobby.

When Winston heard that a wonderful view could be had from the top of a high tower, which formed part of the house in which they were staying, he insisted on being carried up to the top of it. A chair was improvised with jutting poles, and two of the staff manoeuvred him up the winding stairs to the tower.

He stayed only a few minutes, and was heard to say, "I am too weak to paint, but I am still strong enough to wage war."

She Criticized

However, it was not long before he was busy with his brushes. Clementine left him to paint alone for hours, knowing how engrossed he became. Sometimes she would take the opportunity, while he was happily engaged in his tower, to slip into Marakech and wander around the quaint stalls of the bazaar.

On her return, Winston would be waiting to show her his painting. She was not slow to criticize, often saying, "Look, Winston, don't you think it ought to be . . ." He would usually agree with her.

With each day, and the rest and the sun and his Clemmie, he became more his old self. Lord Beaverbrook had flown out to be with him during his convalescence, and the presence of his old friend was an added tonic.

When General Eisenhower came to see him at Marrakech, doctors were continually taking Winston's temperature.

"And," said Ike, "whenever they approached him to remove the thermometer from his mouth, Mr. Churchill had got there first and announced his own temperature."

"I always do that," said Winston. "I believe these doctors are trying to keep me in bed."

VLC Prods Council On Ambulance Study

Victoria Labor Council Monday maintained its pressure on city council for a civic ambulance service.

VLC president R. C. Barrie, in a letter, asked aldermen to send him a copy of a report on the emergency ambulance question.

No such report is ready although the labor council some months ago persuaded aldermen to undertake a feasibility study.

DRAGGING FEET

Mr. Barrie's letter obviously was a pointed reminder to City Hall that VLC feels it is dragging its feet.

"Although VLC believes the putting into service of a municipal ambulance and the resulting benefit to the people of Victoria is extremely important, we have heard no further word regarding your decision in this matter for some time," he wrote.

"It is our understanding that a study of the whole question, if one exists, was to be made and we would appreciate very much receiving a copy of this or any further information you may have on the subject."

Taxi Fire-Bombed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A flaming Molotov cocktail was thrown Monday night at a taxi owned by strikebound B.C. Radio Cab Company.

The driver went to pick up a fare, found it was a phoney call and returned to his cab to find a fire two feet from it.

'Right Kind Of Literature Can Save Us'

By BETH BOYLE
Times Uvic Correspondent

University of Victoria students heard the award winning American writer Dr. William Stafford give a poetry reading on Tuesday.

Dr. Stafford recently received the Shelley Memorial Award for his collection of poems, Travelling Through the Dark.

★ ★ ★

The hour-long poetry reading was sponsored by the special events committee of the Alma Mater Society.

Dr. Stafford read a sequence of experimental poems exploring the possibilities of rhyme and simplicity in poetry.

He believes that the poet is responsible for the total sound of a poem. The very nature of language ensures that although "a poem does not always rhyme, it does inevitably chime."

★ ★ ★

Stafford is hailed as one of the most interesting North American literary technicians. But his poetic theories extend beyond the field of technique.

"A writer is a person for whom experience is only partially realized reverberations," he said.

Aspiring writers should never ignore their impulses.

"The way I write is to express what I want to, no matter how sickeningly weak, because I know I'm going to forgive myself. Writing is starting with nothing and ending with something," he told students.

A quiet-spoken man with a straightforward sense of humor, Dr. Stafford, who teaches creative writing and humanities at Lewis and Clark College, is hopeful "that the right kind of literature, like the Aeneid, can save us."

ROOFS LAST LONG

In England, a thatched cottage roof of Norfolk reeds, the most durable covering, costs up to $1,120, but lasts 60 to 80 years.

'WE LOVE YOU TOO MUCH'

Hospitals Ban Cigarette Sales

NEW YORK (AP)—Officials of several states in the U.S. have banned the sale of cigarettes in some government buildings, including hospitals.

They cite reports by the U.S. surgeon - general, and private research, on the health hazards of smoking cigarettes.

Some private hospitals also have ordered cigarette vending machines removed. Miriam Hospital in Providence, R.I., put up signs saying:

"We do not sell cigarettes. We love you too much."

In many areas, public officials ordered strict enforcement of laws, some decades old, against selling cigarettes to minors.

One of New York City's most successful independent stations, WMCA, says it will drop all cigarette advertising during its 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. disc jockey show, which is aimed primarily at teen-agers.

The action came as the National Association of Broadcasters met in Florida. The government-licensed industry is expected to amend its code of self-regulation to forbid programs or commercials that might tend to encourage young persons to smoke.

Radio station WCAM in Camden, N.J., banned all cigarette commercials last September.

The major television and radio networks have said they are reviewing their policies on commercials.

A survey by the Associated Press indicated that effort by government officials to discourage smoking by educational campaigns are fairly widespread. Outright bans of cigarette sales are less prevalent.

Public health hospitals in Massachusetts have been ordered to discontinue sales of cigarettes in canteens and to remove vending machines.

Pennsylvania banned cigarette sales in its four hospitals for tuberculosis and is considering banning them in the state's general and mental hospitals.

California's public health department banned cigarette vending machines from all its buildings last July.

New York and California are among the states that plan to tell school children about the hazards of smoking.

New York City has co-sponsored clinics to help smokers drop the habit.

COMIC BOOKS TELL HAZARD OF SMOKING

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government has bought 50,000 comic books outlining the health hazards of smoking for distribution to junior high school students.

Dr. J. S. Morison, health services director, disclosed Tuesday the comic book order has been placed with a Toronto firm.

He said in an interview the book is part of a campaign to warn young people of the dangers of smoking.

The 32-page book traces the history of smoking to the time when Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the habit to England.

It warns that research has "proven beyond doubt that cigarette smoking has shortened the lives" of thousands of people."

CITY EDUCATOR TO U.S.

Mixed-Up Teens Subject of Study

Victoria education officer Harvey P. Mickelson will make a three-week tour of San Francisco Bay area schools next month to seek ways of helping teen-agers who are culturally disoriented.

He has been awarded a Ford Foundation travel grant through the Canadian Education Association, and will arrive in Oakland Monday. His tour will cover schools there and in San Francisco.

Mr. Mickelson is supervisor of special education and guidance services for Greater Victoria school district.

The CEA is co-ordinating similar trips for educators throughout Canada for the purpose of studying such programs in major U.S. centres.

"I am interested in what they are doing for teen-agers who are not verbally oriented or scholastically brilliant and who have to go into vocational training," Mr. Mickelson said.

Help is being sought for children who have not had the advantage of a good, enthusiastic middle class home having in it the stimulation to learn, he said.

These children are from a wide spectrum of society, including slums and minority groups, and also upper levels where there is indifference to culture and learning.

Slow learners and the mildly retarded are also of interest to Mr. Mickelson, he said, and he will be looking for new directions in these and other special fields during his trip.

The trip comes at a time when he will be able to see children in action, rather than during vacation when so many other special tours are granted.

BRENTWOOD BEACH WORK PROPOSED

Development of beaches at Brentwood Bay and the establishment of a playground on the west side of the municipality were urged by Coun. Philip Benn at a Central Saanich council meeting Monday.

Council agreed to look into the matter.

"Brentwood Bay is the only salt water area on South Vancouver Island warm enough for swimming," he said. "Yet nothing has been done to develop a beach in the area."

He said 500 children in the Brentwood area are in need of a playground.

"They are presently using privately-owned land for recreation," he said.

He also urged council to consider the construction of a "recreational centre" within the next four or five years.

Coun. Tom Michell agreed that present parks in the municipality "didn't amount to much."

Carnarvon Park Urged For Recreation Centre

Carnarvon Park has once more been suggested as a possible site for a proposed recreation centre in Oak Bay.

The suggestion this time comes from Reeve Allan Cox who released a memorandum Monday containing the recommendation previously made to council in committee of the whole.

Although the site had previously been considered and dismissed he suggested it be reconsidered.

Firemen's Park was chosen as a compromise not because it was considered the best possible site.

In his memo Reeve Cox stated six reasons why he preferred Carnarvon Park over the proposed Firemen's Park which he considered poor because of traffic congestion in that area and the necessity to spend $175,000 for acquisition of the land.

Carnarvon Park already belongs to the municipality, is already developed as a recreational area and the site is level for building.

Two football fields would have to be sacrificed for the new centre but the park area is large enough to leave ample room for parking and a green belt to preserve a park-like appearance.

This site he also considered ideal from a traffic access point of view and because of its proximity to many schools in the area.

To make up for the sacrifice of the two football fields in Carnarvon he suggested the devlopment of a site above the Uplands Elementary School to include three combination football and baseball fields, a children's playground, tennis courts and bowling green.

Such facilities would not be available for a number of years but the expenditure of $100,000 to $150,000 for such a development would be considerable less than the $175,000 needed to acquire Firemen's Park.

Night School Exams Stay for Now at Least

Adult students taking Greater Victoria school board's evening academic program must write exams until the system has been proven, district superintendent John Gough said today.

When the newly-established 4:10 p.m. program has some traditions, students may be considered for recommendation in their courses without writing exams, he said.

If this first class—now starting its second term—does well, it "could be justification for other classes to be recommended," the superintendent said.

But any policy for recommendation would have to be established at the start of a school year, not half way through, he pointed out.

There may have to be a series of term examinations in order to properly assess a student's progress and status for recommendation.

Mr. Gough was commenting on a complaint by night class spokesman Gerry Lang, 737 Princess, who is taking a full pre-university course. He works days as a waiter.

The class feels it should be treated the same way as full-time day pupils, who do have the chance to earn their graduation credits on the basis of year's work rather than by writing final exams.

Studying for exams takes too much time from a student who must work, Lang feels. But students who go to school by choice are likely to concentrate more than daytime students who have no choice, he pointed out.

"The organization in the schools is different and the small group might not get as much time on subjects as in day schools," Mr. Gough said.

WOMAN FACED GUN, KNIFE

'I Thought If I Could Talk Long Enough ...'

By RAY SINCLAIR

A darkened home, an absent husband, four young daughters and a knife-wielding stranger.

These were the components of a 4½-hour ordeal which began for Mrs. Phyllis Pratt at 5 a.m. Tuesday when a man forced his way into her small home on Marsden Road, Courtenay.

"I was on my own with the children," she told the Times. "My 12-year-old daughter Linda told me there was a man at the door.

"When I went to see, he asked if he could use my phone. I said I didn't have one.

"Then he said he was a policeman. He had a gun, and blood on his shirt.

"I told him my husband (Alfred) was home. He left, and I locked the door. Then he pounded on it again, and said he was a policeman.

"When I asked for his credentials, he gave me a wallet, then shoved his knife in my face, and said—'You know what this is?'

"Then he told me to get dressed—I was going with him."

Mrs. Pratt said she was so frightened she just said: "Let me feed the baby first."

LIFE HISTORY

She sat down to feed three-week-old Cynthia, and talked desperately.

"I thought if I could talk long enough, he would just sit and listen. He knows my life history now."

The three other children, Linda, 12, Caroline, 9, and Rosemarie, 3, were in bed.

The intruder sat across the table, gun across his knees and a knife pointed at Mrs. Pratt.

He left the house twice, once to move the car closer, and once for a beer from the car, she said.

"I was too frightened to leave the children and try to get help. He made me drink a beer and have a cigarette. I don't smoke, either."

FIRST NIGHT OUT

At 9:30 a.m., Mrs. Pratt told the intruder her husband would come home soon.

"It was the first time he had been out all night for weeks," she said.

The man said he was "not afraid" of Mr. Pratt, but then left.

Mrs. Pratt called Courtenay RCMP from a neighbor's home and gave police a description of the intruder and the car he was driving.

WOMAN BEATEN

Earlier, Courtenay RCMP had started a search after a man of the same description had attacked the wife of a hotel manager.

In hospital today is Mrs. Wilma Mueller, who received a severe beating and kicking when she was called to the room of a guest at the Riverside Hotel at 4 a.m. Tuesday.

The man told her there was somebody in his room, Mr. Mueller said.

"I was sleeping, and heard my wife screaming and crying. I went to see why, and the man ran out."

Police at first thought the man had no car, but on receiving Mrs. Pratt's call, they sped to the scene.

80 MPH CHASE

Courtenay RCMP were joined by Cumberland police in an 80-miles per hour chase along the Cumberland-Royston Road and through the village of Cumberland.

The suspect car — which was found to be a stolen C and C taxi from Victoria — went into a skid, smashed into the front of the Cumberland police car, and plunged into a ditch.

RCMP arrested a man at the scene, and he was to face several charges in Courtenay magistrate's court today.

Police recovered a .22 rifle, a .30-.30 rifle, a shotgun and a knife from the car.

ISLAND DIGEST

OIL-DUMPING CHARGE LAID

CHEMAINUS—The British freighter Pacific Envoy will face charges arising out of the dumping of fuel oil in Chemainus harbor last week, Harbormaster Barry Gilbride said Tuesday.

The large oil slick smeared beaches and boats.

The freighter, it is alleged, was pumping oil from one tank to another when it overflowed.

The Pacific Envoy went on to Victoria and Seattle.

Street Light Plan Okayed

Central Saanich council Monday agreed to start this year a long-range street lighting program.

The program will be based on a B.C. Hydro survey of street lighting needs in the municipality.

Coun. Albert Vickers said the power authority will start the survey soon.

Coun. Albert Vickers said street lighting should be paid out of general revenue.

"I think we should drop the practice of installing lights under local improvement by-laws," he said. "We should set money aside each year for lighting."

Council's decision followed complaints from members of Shady Creek United Church that lighting in the vicinity of the church is inadequate.

They were assured a light would be installed near the church this fall.

. . . "alarming" influx

Youth Centre Proposed For Indians

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Mayor Les Hammer has asked council to consider building an Indian friendship centre here to alleviate the "alarming" influx of Indian youths on city streets.

He said Monday he was concerned at the increasing number of Indians who are leaving isolated reserves and entering the city "obviously unprepared for urban life."

He said if the centre becomes a reality, services should contain counselling for young Indians to help them find jobs and to enable them to integrate with the white population.

Mayor Hammer said the city should ask for federal and provincial aid in setting up a centre.

"We shouldn't go it alone, but we should take the lead," he said. "We encourage juvenile delinquency here because we fail to offer the Indian youth any alternative."

Action Urged On Extension To Marine Drive

Action on extension of Marine Drive was asked Tuesday night by Central Saanich Council.

Council wants the Capital Region Planning Board to ask the Capital Improvement District Commission to undertake the project.

The Marine Drive extension would start from Island View Road and end at Cordova Spit at Saanichton Bay off the East Saanich Indian reserve.

This would require the permission of the Indian band.

Councillors said construction of the drive would serve a dual purpose.

THREE MILES

It would make accessible to the public three miles of waterfront and beaches. At the same time the road would act as a breakwater and check erosion of the banks.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said assistance for a road project might be available from senior governments as the area is subject to inundation by the sea from time to time.

Officers Named By Sportsmen

CHEMAINUS — Al Dyer was elected president of the Chemainus Rod and Gun Club at a recent meeting.

Other officers elected were Con Neufeld, vice-president; Carl Mowat, secretary.

Members at the meeting completed plans for the annual banquet to be held March 7.

GOV'T 'TOO FAIR' ON COWICHAN ROADS

The B.C. government has been "too fair" in giving roads to Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi said Tuesday.

He was answering Mr. Strachan's earlier charges of discrimination, patronage and neglect that had taken lives in the riding of Cowichan-Newcastle, which the opposition leader represents.

He produced figures to show the government had spent a total of $7,664,628 in the riding over the past 12 years.

"These even make my face red," Mr. Gaglardi told the legislature.

"Your riding fared exceptionally well. There is absolutely no kind of discrimination. I think we have been too fair."

Roadside Spraying Protested by Women

Strong opposition to roadside spraying was voiced by the South Saanich Women's Institute at a Central Saanich council meeting Tuesday.

In a letter, the institute said the chemical spray, used to curb the growth of brush, is dangerous to children, animals and birds. It also leaves an unsightly mess, council was told.

The B.C. Department of Highways, which uses the sprays, is not living up to its slogan "keep B.C. green."

Coun. Tom Michell said the public works committee gets lots of complaints about spraying.

"I think this is a matter for council to consider."

Coun. Ray Lamont favored a spraying program.

"There is nothing wrong with spraying providing it is done right," he said. "It should be applied with care. I think if this was done there would be less complaints."

The letter was referred to the public works committee for action.

Lack of Staff Hampering Mental Clinic

NANAIMO — Lack of psychiatric staff is holding up the Nanaimo Mental Health Clinic from going into full operation, said Canadian Mental Health Association branch president Dr. J. M. Thomas.

He said the main problem is the low salaries offered.

Dr. Gerald Bonham, public health director, said an intensified advertising campaign is being carried on to fill the positions. The centre was opened in July last year.

"Mr. Bennett has just received a large cash boost," commented Dr. Thomas, "and this may help the situation. Otherwise I can see it becoming a chronic shortage."

At the annual meeting lawyer Jim Wilson was chosen new president with Jaycee Brian Westwood first vice-president, and social worker Mrs. Betty Martin second vice-president.

Duncan Man Faces Assault Charge

DUNCAN — Gordon Benedict Thorne of Duncan, facing two charges of assault, was remanded in police court Tuesday without plea until next Thursday.

He is accused of assaulting his wife and another woman on Jan. 22.

Weather Outlook Causes Concern For Ski Slopes

(Times News Services)

INNSBRUCK, Austria—The pomp and pageantry of opening ceremonies at the Winter Olympic Games today were overshadowed by the Russian hockey team's display of power—and the weatherman.

Russia's favored world champions won the opening game of the hockey championships by defeating the United States 5-1 despite the valiant stand of American goalie Tom Yurkovich.

CZECHS WIN

Czechoslovakia also joined Russia as a first-round winner. The Czechs slammed Germany 11-1.

Only a few hours earlier, President Dr. Adolf Schaerf of Austria officially opened the ninth Winter Games in colorful trappings and perfect weather.

And it was the weather that cast a pall over proceedings.

Forecasters predicted rain or snow tonight for the Olympic site which hasn't had snow in two months.

Any sort of precipitation at this stage could damage the mountainsides where the ski events will be held. Snow was trucked in from other areas to put the ski slopes in top shape.

A colorful crowd of more than 60,000 heard Schaerf, as chief of state of the host country, proclaim the Games open.

Before the brief speechmaking began, there was a moment of silence for the two Olympic competitors killed in training.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, called on the competitors and officals to "set an example of sportsmanship which will further promote the high ideals of the Olympic movement."

STARTS WITH PARADE

The ceremonies started with the parade of athletes from 36 countries—India was a last-moment entry.

The athletes, now officially listed at 1,350, paraded in alphabetical order under Olympic protocol. Greece, as it traditionally does, led the parade with the host country Austria, last.

Each country dipped its national colors as Paul Aste, an Austrian bobsledder, took the Olympic oath of sportsfanship on behalf of all competitors.

The torch that burns until the Games end Feb. 9 was lit by Josl Rieder, a former Austrian world ski champion.

Only brilliant goaltending by Yorkovich, despite a painful knee injury, kept the Russians from scoring an even more lopsided victory over the defending Olympic champions. U.S. won the the championship at Squaw Valley in 1960.

Held to a 1-0 margin in the first period by the brilliant netminding of Yurkovich, the Russians broke loose for three goals in the second period to put the game away.

Victor Yakushev, a crewcut Russian, was the star of the Soviets' attack, scoring two of the second-period goals and leading repeated surges down the ice.

Yurkovich played the last two periods in pain when he twisted his left knee three minutes before the end of the first period.

STAYED ON

But he insisted on continuing the game after treatment with an ice pack and turned in an amazing total of 57 saves compared with 25 for his Russian counterpart, Victor Konovalenko.

Jim Westby of Minneapolis scored the American goal early in the third period.

Canada met Switzerland in a third game today.

The gaily-attired crowd looking on at the opening ceremonies included the Shah and Empress of Iran, who sat in the president's box. Among the athletes that marched before them was the Aga Khan, competing as a skier for the tiny Iranian team.

The first gold medal of the Games will be awarded tonight to the winner of the pairs figure-skating.

A Torch Is Lit and the 1964 Winter Olympics Are Off . . .

IT DIDN'T TAKE LONG TO SET FIRST RECORD

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—The gas-fed Olympic flame had only just settled down to a steady hiss when the first record of the Winter Games was broken.

A photographer ventured out onto the steep, icy landing slope for the Olympic ski jump, lost his footing and slid 75.5 metres down the hill on the seat of his pants.

It broke the old mark established at Melbourne in 1956 by a reporter who tripped while speeding to beat the 6 p.m. bar-closing time in Australia and skidded across a busy 100-foot intersection on his camera.

The ski-sliding photographer drew one of the loudest cheers of the opening ceremony from the crowd of perhaps 60,000 persons who sprawled over the Berg-Isel hill to watch the ninth Winter Games get started.

Uvic Football? Shhh! Faculty Doesn't Know

If Victoria University is about to receive subsidization from B.C. Lions for a football program, it is a deep, dark secret to some of the people who might most be expected to know.

Witness this interview with a faculty member at Uvic:

Q. Is it true, as reported in a Vancouver paper Tuesday, that the Lions are subsidizing a football program at Uvic?

Faculty member: "I don't know anything about it. Officially or unofficially."

IS IT DAVIES?

Q. Is it true that Lorne Davies, assistant coach at University of B.C., has the inside track for the coaching job at Uvic as reported by a mysterious Victoria source?

A. "I haven't heard Mr. Davies' name mentioned. I haven't heard any names mentioned. I haven't heard that we are going to have a football team. All I know is what I see in the newspapers."

End of interview.

Essentially, this much is clear:

LIONS' OFFER

Randy Smith, student athletic director at Uvic, has spoken to the B.C. Lions. The Lions have agreed to put up $2,500 with two qualifications:

1. Uvic agrees it wants a first-class football program; and,

2. That Uvic accept a coach of the Lions' choice and provide a teaching position on the faculty.

The Lions say they would expect no favors in the way of Uvic grads being funnelled to them. Rather the grads would go on the open market and be available to all pro football teams in Canada through the draft.

HIGHLY REGARDED

Davies is highly regarded by the Lions. He urged Peter Kempf on them and Kempf went on to win rookie honors in the Western Conference. Davies is a logical choice—IF.

Before the Lions-Uvic plan becomes reality, it must win approval — at least in principle—from the Men's Athletic Board composed of three faculty members and three students.

This hasn't happened. If student director Smith doesn't move soon, football won't be around in '64. The Athletic Board, as all other departments, must submit the matter to the University Senate on Feb. 15. That's B-day. The day the budget is approved. But not in the dark . . .

OLYMPIC BRIEFS

Garibaldi Group Challenges Banff

(Times News Services)

INNSBRUCK, Austria—Things they're saying and doing in, at and around the Olympic Games:

Promoters of Garibaldi Park in British Columbia are entering the race with Banff to stage the 1972 Winter Olympic Games.

A joint action committee, representing groups interested in the park's development, plans to seek provincial government action to speed expansion of the undeveloped area to meet Olympic standards.

The park is located about 50 miles from Vancouver.

"It's feasible that Garibaldi can be made to equal or better the Banff site in time for 1972, particularly in access, accommodation and cost of the Games," Garry Watson, of the Garibaldi Olympic Development Association, said Tuesday in Vancouver.

The park lost the Canadian nomination for the 1968 Games because its facilities were not good enough to stage an international meet.

★ ★ ★

Shortly before hearing it had failed in its bid to stage the 1968 games, the Canadian delegation supporting Banff, received the following telegram from the governor of Idaho, Robert E. Smypie:

"Idaho is proud to join her good neighbors to the north in inviting the 1968 Olympic Winter Games to be held in Banff."

★ ★ ★

Paul Aste, 47, Austrian bobsledder, today took the Olympic oath on behalf of the 1,350 athletes—an oath with a significant change in wording.

Ever since the modern Olympics started in 1896 the oath had ended with the words: "For the glory of the sports and the honor of our countries."

Aste dropped the word country and said: "For the honor of our teams."

This change apparently was made to try to rid the Olympics of some of the nationalism surrounding the Games.

★ ★ ★

Austria is marking the Winter Games by minting one of the largest silver coins on the European continent.

It is a 50-shilling piece, almost one inch in diameter, picturing a ski jumper and the Olympic rings on the face and the coats of arms of nine Austrian provinces on the back. The value, about $2.

Oak Bay, Totems Triumph

Oak Bay and Victoria High, leaders of the Inter-High School Senior Boys' Basketball League, pulled further ahead of the pack Tuesday.

The Bays trimmed Esquimalt Dockers 60-45 and Vic High Totems trounced Mount Douglas 55-27.

Esquimalt's Ken Burch racked up 25 points but the Dockers couldn't match the balanced play of the Oaks, who forged steadily ahead and breezed to the 15-point win. Brian MacKenzie paced Oak Bay snipers with 14 points.

Barney Spaven accounted for 21 points to set the scoring pace for the Totems, who controlled play most of the way to fashion an easy victory over the Mountain boys.

Scoring:

Victoria High—Spaven 21, Gregory 15, Soberg 7, Stubbings 6, Lezetc 4, Benn 2, Frampton, Trevor, Glover. Total 52.

Mount Douglas—Strongman 9, Lamb 8, McInnis 6, Thorpe 2, Smith 2. Total 27.

Esquimalt—Burch 25, Adair 9, Lorimer 6, Pearce 3, Blake 2. Total—45.

Oak Bay—MacKenzie 14, Child 10, Humber 10, Green 8, Burroughs 6, Murgatroyd 5, Gregg 3, Wallace 2, MacAvoy 2. Total—60.

Canada Will Try Again But May Seek New Site

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP) — Will the Canadian Olympic Association seek a new site to offer when it bids four years hence to have the 1972 Winter Olympic Games in Canada?

The possibility has been raised here by Canadian officials in the wake of the International—by a vote of 27 to 24—of Grenoble, France over Banff, Alta., as the site of the 1968 Winter Games.

The Canadian delegates here were bitterly disappointed with the committee decision, but vowed they will be back to get the winter sports extravaganza for Canada in 1972.

At the same time, however, some raised the question of whether Banff, the Rocky Mountain resort 80 miles west of Calgary, should be proposed for a third time when the IOC considers the 1972 locale.

FAVORS A CHANGE

Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association which must endorse the site being proposed to the IOC by Canada, said Tuesday night:

"I think that any future application to the COA would have to be made on its merits before any site is endorsed by the COA. This, however, is a matter for the Olympic association as a body to decide. I am just expressing a personal opinion."

Sidney Dawes of Montreal, Canada's representative on the IOC, seemed more definite, stating:

"Each governing body in the Winter Games — skiing, hockey, speed skating, figure skating, tobogganing — would have to be in accord about Canada's site next time. It is not a good idea to make a bid for the same place. There's no use beating a tired horse."

OTHERS MAY BID

Ed Davis, president of the Calgary Olympic Development Association which during the last eight years won the COA endorsement of Banff ahead of bids from five British Columbia localities and obtained support from civic, provincial and federal governments for the 1968 bid, acknowledged the possibility of a move to change the site offered by Canada.

"There is a likelihood other sites in Canada will try now to take over from Banff."

But he indicated the backers of Banff will not give in easily.

"We'll be back in 1972," he said. "We are trying again. It will be our third time and maybe the third will be lucky. With the Games in Europe in 1968 we'll have a better chance."

It took three ballots to decide on Grenoble, a community of 250,000 in the Alps of eastern France.

'SKI BUMS NOT WANTED' WROTE BANFF RESIDENT

CALGARY (CP) — D. B. Coombs, superintendent of Banff National Park, is investigating a report that a Banff resident wrote to the International Olympic Committee saying, in effect, that "Banff doesn't want ski bums and Calgary promoters."

The report followed the IOC's rejection Tuesday of Banff's bid for the 1968 Winter Olympics in favor of Grenoble, France.

Sportscaster Eric Bishop of Calgary said that the letter was not brought up at the IOC meeting. It was signed by J. Anderson, who described himself as "chairman of the Banff Citizens Committee." The organization does not exist.

"Banff people with the Calgary Olympic Development Association know who he is and have a copy of what he said," Bishop reported.

Coombs said people in Banff "are concerned" about the letter.

Manpower Shortage Plagues Junior Cats

"Wanted: Healthy young men under 21 for junior hockey club. Do not walk. Skate to Memorial Arena. Immediately."

Victoria Cougars may have to resort to this type of advertising soon. They counted and counted but came up with only nine players Tuesday for their Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League game with New Westminster Royals at the Arena.

Nine is fine for basketball, but not to cope with the hockey Royals. They took a 3-0 lead in the first 21 minutes and then matched goals with Cougars for a 4-2 victory that solidified Westminster's hold on first place.

Wayne Anderson and Glen Robertson scored for Victoria.

Ed Hastings, in goal, stopped 44 shots.

Cougars step out of their junior environment tonight. They meet Cavaliers in the second game of a Victoria (Senior) Hockey League double-header at the Arena.

How many Cougars will step out remains to be seen.

Bombers to Try Strategy Switch

WINNIPEG (CP)—A radical departure in form was announced Tuesday night for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference.

Coach Bud Grant told a press conference his club would switch to a flanker-T formation from the double fullback lineup it has used since 1957.

Ycaza Gets Award

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Manuel Ycaza, 26, is the 1964 winner of the George Woolf Memorial Award at Santa Anita Park. The award is given to a jockey whose career reflects credit on the riding profession.

Cowichan Players Selected

VANCOUVER — Two Victoria Rugby Union players, both from the Cowichan XV, have been chosen for the all-star B.C. rugby team which will play New Zealand All-Blacks at Empire Stadium on Feb. 22.

In addition, another Cowichan player was chosen for the under-25 B.C. team, which meets the All-Blacks on Feb. 20, also at Empire Stadium.

On the B.C. All-Stars are backs Alan Rees and Jim Ryan; while Tom Brown, also a back, was the Cowichan player chosen for the under-25 team.

Vancouver Kats placed six players on the all-star club—forward Swede Carlson, back Gerry Lorenz, breakaways Jack Whitty and Bill Gerwing, standoff Ted Hunt and winger Bruce McEachern. Vancouver Rowing Club placed backs Carl Von Kotze and Bill Granlees and centre Barry Stubbs.

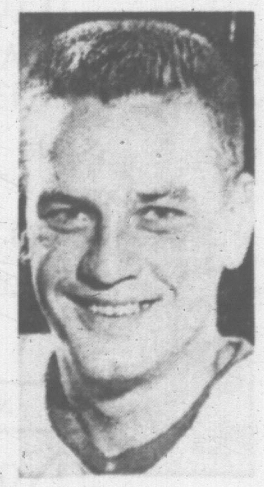

North Shore All-Blacks are represented by veteran scrum-half Bucky Ellison and ex-Britannia by hooker Tom Christie. Meralomas placed Dave Frid and perennial Buzz Moore, 44 years old and named playing captain.

Five Meralomas and four UBC players were named to the under-25 team.

Biggest surprises in the selections were the naming of Granlees, a young Irishman, as prop over the experienced Peter Grantham and the choice of the 25-year-old Rees as fullback over Victoria veteran Don Burgess, who was unimpressive in trial matches.

MISSES PRACTICE

Minors May Be Next for Young

HOWIE YOUNG
. . . trouble, again!

CHICAGO (AP) — Another spell in the minors may be the next chapter in the stormy hockey career of Howie Young.

The temperamental defenceman missed a practice Tuesday, leaving his spot on Chicago Black Hawks' starting lineup in jeopardy.

Young, 26, came to the Hawks from Detroit Red Wings this season in exchange for goalie Roger Crozier and defenceman Ron Ingram. A problem on and off the ice in his three National League campaigns with the Wings, he spent half the 1961-2 season with Edmonton Flyers of the Western League, returning to set an NHL penalty record of 273 minutes last year.

He ran into hot water again this season, recently serving a five-game suspension for misconduct in a game at Toronto.

Since his return, Young has been used sparingly and has not been impressive. The Hawks now have six defencemen, including Young, and general manager Tommy Ivan must draw the line—meaning someone has to go. Young has been playing second fiddle to rookie Aut Erickson in recent games and Ivan has praised Erickson's play.

Young had a fine early start but he has failed to live up to promises of becoming a steady performer. His penalty record and activities off the ice led the Wings to trade him to the Hawks.

ONLY ONE THING NOT LOCKED . . . . . AND THAT IS A CUNNING TRAP

Innsbruck Is a Locksmith's Paradise

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—If they give you the key to the City of Innsbruck, you won't get very far with it.

You need at least a dozen more keys just to get through the day.

Visitors to the Winter Olympics here have discovered that the whole town is a locksmith's paradise.

The typical Austrian walks around all day jangling like a prison guard.

To start with, the door to the bath down the hall is locked. In the kitchen, the ham is locked in one refrigerator, the eggs in another.

One maid keeps one key, and a second keeps the other. The breakfast menu depends on which one reports for work first.

The car is locked. So is the gas tank. There is a lock on the steering wheel. A fourth key starts the car.

The office building is locked. So is the office door. A typical desk has seven locked drawers, each requiring a different key.

Official visitors to the Olympics have each been given a locker. A man unlocks the door to the locker room, and then you unlock the locker.

Almost the only thing not kept under lock and key is the public lavatory, and it presents a cunning trap to the uninitiated. You don't pay to get in—you pay to get out.

This often creates some lively comment in six or seven languages from visitors who have slammed the door and don't have the four cents needed to buy their way out again.

The doors do not make change.

Othewise, life is just one locked door after another.

In fact, after twisting keys all day, it's a pleasure to get home at night, put on some slippers, unlock the television set and relax.

BOWLER-OF-WEEK

Practice four times a week paid off for Freda Carey. She rolled a sizzling 849 series to win ladies' fivepin division in Times' Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Games of 271, 274 and 304 came in Merchants League at Esquimalt Bowladrome. Mrs. Carey has been bowling for 12 years, has a passel of trophies to prove her prowess.

MINOR HOCKEY

It's a Week For Dads, Too

This is the week for both lads and dads in ice arenas in Victoria and across the country.

It's "Minor Hockey Week" in Canada and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is again reminding parents of this week's slogan—"Don't Send—Take Your Boy to the Arena."

Parents are urged to attend "Minor Hockey Week" games because encouragement from mothers and dads is important to the youngsters who flock to arenas to learn about hockey.

They have been flocking almost 1,000 strong this season to Greater Victoria teams, 571 in the Victoria Minor Hockey Association and 425 at Esquimalt. In both organizations the object is the same—to provide recreational hockey for as many boys as possible and to assist those with ability to become proficient players as well as good citizens.

THREE PURPOSES

Minor hockey nights serve three purposes. They let parents see how the youngsters are progressing in their training; they give the boys a chance to play in front of spectators, and they help the association acquire much-needed funds to continue the minor hockey program. Victoria, for instance, requires about $11,000 to keep youngsters playing hockey this season.

The big night for the young skaters in the Victoria association comes up Thursday at Memorial Arena. They'll be on display from 4:30 to 10:30 p.m. in a program that will have all teams, from under-10 peewee pups to under-18 juveniles, in action.

Tickets, available at the door, are only 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children.

SATURDAY AT ESQUIMALT

At Esquimalt, "Minor Hockey Night" is Saturday and games will be in progress from 6 until 10 p.m.

Those are both important dates for hockey-playing youngsters and they are nights to remember the slogan—"Don't Send—Take Your Boy to the Arena."

Here are schedules for Esquimalt hockey night and games this week in the Victoria Association:

VICTORIA

Kerries Always Ready to Scare

Victoria Chinooks should win their Junior Men's Basketball League semifinal playoff series against Kerrisdale Merchants without popping any ossilets.

Over the regular schedule Chinooks lost only one game in 15—to YMCA. They have speed and poise and depth. By those standards, the Chinooks should be heavy favorites when the teams open the best-of-three set at Oak Bay Senior High School Saturday at 9 p.m.

There is only one thing wrong with this reasoning. Kerrisdale twice scared Chinooks half to death.

They blew one game against Victoria with nine seconds to play. The third time the teams met Kerrisdale led 43-30 at the half and looked good value for every point. They capsized in the third quarter under some phenomenal Chinook shooting.

AGILE AND ACCURATE

Bill Anderson, a 6'7" beanstalk, agile and accurate, has given Chinooks fits from his deep post. Working with him is Dave Witherly, a fine shot, and rugged board man. Setting them up is tiny (5'7") Mel Hoff, a league all-star and one of the best dribblers and ballhandlers in the circuit.

These three are the core of coach Dave Alexander's squad. Only Witherly was with them last year when they pushed CYO Saints for the league title. Two years ago the Kerries also went to the final before losing to Lance Hudson's YMCA club.

Against this the Chinooks will bank on their superb cohesion and strong bench. The combination, if you recall their record, has worked well.

Chances are co-coaches Busher Jackson and Howard Tooby won't change a thing.

Second game of the series goes to Vancouver Feb. 8. If a third game is required it will be played here Feb. 12.

Seven Navy Fighters On Ring Card Tonight

There will be a decided nautical flavor to the London Boxing Club's 10-bout amateur card tonight at Britannia Branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

Seven of the fighters will be from the Pacific Command of the RCN. Three of those seven are Nigerians in the RCN on an exchange basis.

Wayne Powell, 19, HMCS Naden, a two-time Golden Gloves champion in Alberta and national event competitor, meets LBC's ace Tommy Black in a welterweight fight to top the card.

F. Desrosiers, former Atlantic Command welterweight champion, also will appear on the program.

Ordinary Seaman D. Amaram, B. Egboncbi and S. Uduhuri will represent Nigeria and the RCN. Other navy boxers on the program are Lt. T. C Milne and AB Earl Hatcher.

Keeper Sets Test Record —Takes Five

CALCUTTA, India (Reuters)—Wicket-keeper Jim Binks set a cricket Test record for England today with five victims in one innings during the first day of the third Test against India.

His five catches, together with some splendid bowling by paceman John Price, who took five for 63, helped England to restrict India to 230 for nine before the close.

Binks, who made his test debut last week, now has a chance of equalling the world record of six victims in one test innings set by Australia's Wally Grout against South Africa in 1957-58.

Tag-Team Title On Line Saturday

The Canadian heavyweight tag-team "championship" goes up for grabs on Saturday's professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Don Leo Jonathan and Kinji Shibuya will defend the laurels they won recently against Gene Kiniski and Mike Sharpe.

In supporting bouts, Enrique Torres will trade armlocks with Sandor Kovacs, Dory Funk Jr. meets Bad Boy Shields and Roy McClarty tackles Bob Morse.

First bout starts at 8:15.

'Not on Sunday' Plea of Minors

VANCOUVER (CP)—Minor football officials have warned the B.C. Lions that if they schedule football games on Sunday afternoons they may eventually "kill" minor ball.

The North Shore Football Club, which operates a vast minor program for boys between 10 and 15 years of age, plays most of its games on Sunday.

"If Lions played on Sundays, too," said Tom Walker, North Shore club president, "we'd have to play on Saturdays and that would be almost impossible for a great number of reasons."

Harry Tucker, vice-president of the Big Four Junior Football League, said that if Lions played Sunday the junior league would be forced to play Saturday nights or "die at the gate."

"It would cost an extra $100 per game to stage night games," he said.

Lions played one Sunday afternoon game at Empire Stadium last season, and it has been suggested Lions schedule more Sunday afternoon games this year.

"We're letting our fans decide what they want," said Lions general manager Herb Capozzi.

"We don't want to hurt minor football," said Capozzi, "but if our fans prefer Sunday afternoon games we'll have to use it as our guide.

"Our prime consideration must be the paying fan."

South Africa Squares Test

ADELAIDE (Reuters)—South Africa beat Australia by 10 wickets today on the final day of the fourth test match here.

South Africa's win, only its fourth against Australia in 60 years, enabled the touring team to square the series 1-1 with two tests drawn.

The fifth test, which will decide the series, starts at Sydney Feb. 7.

Australia, resuming their second innings at 317 for nine, were all out for 331, in three minutes leaving the South Africans to get 82 to win.

Final scores: Australia 345 and 331; South Africa 595 and 82 for no wicket.

Booming NFL Moves To Trim 'Taxi' Squads

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The prosperous National Football League, riding high with a new $28,200,000 television contract and a record attendance of 4,163,643, has boosted its player limit to 40 men in a move that should cut down on taxi or reserve squads.

The league acted to stabilize squads Tuesday by increasing the player limit from 37 players who must come from a 560-man pool remaining after the final cutdown.

"The spirit of the new rule is to stop shuttling players on and off the active list," said commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Most of the pro teams carry reserves who are members of a so-called taxi squad, over and above the player limit. Normally they can be brought up to the active list when a regular is injured.

Under the new rule the only replacements for the 40 remaining after the final cutdown on the last Tuesday before the season opens must come from the master list of 560 players. The list represents the 40 players on each of the 14 clubs.

EXCEPTION ALLOWED

Rozelle said a special exception had been made in case four men are injured and rendered inactive for the rest of the season. In that case, one outsider could be added. Of course, the usual deals and waiver transactions can be made.

The NFL also approved closed-circuit television of the home games of any club in its local blackout area, normally 75 miles. Each club is permitted to make its own deal, with the proceeds included in normal gate receipts and divided 60 per cent to the home team and 40 per cent to the visitors.

"I do not anticipate very much closed-circuit television, this year," said Rozelle. "Most of the clubs view this as an experimental thing."

Closed circuit in the Chicago area of the Chicago Bears-New York Giants title game Dec. 29 brought $35,043.56 into the record championship receipts of $1,493,954.06.

A motion to count tie games as one-half victory and one-half defeat was withdrawn after a sample of sentiment showed most clubs were against it. The visiting club will be permitted to wear its distinctive colored uniforms in 1964 if the home club agrees to wear the white shirts.

SIX NEW ONES

Saanich to Vote On School Bylaw

An $835,500 school construction bylaw will be put to rural Saanich school district ratepayers, probably Feb. 29.

School District 63 chairman Reginald Sinkinson Tuesday night told Mount Newton PTA that the bylaw would provide six new schools and three additions.

Although ratepayers will be asked to approve the entire amount, they will only be responsible for slightly more than $200,000 under the present formula that sees the provincial government pick up 75 per cent of the tab.

However, Mr. Sinkinson expressed the hope that a promise of more education grants in last week's throne speech may see the government share increase to 90 per cent.

The program would provide 29 more classrooms in the district.

New schools will be built in the Bradley Dyne area, $35,000; Prospect Lake area, $60,000; Sayward Road area, $60,000; Saanichton area, $60,000; North Saanich area, $65,000, and Newton area, $65,000.

ADDITIONS

Additions will be erected at Claremont Senior Secondary School, $90,000; Royal Oak Junior Secondary School, $67,000; and Sidney Elementary School, $20,000.

Cost of acquiring and developing schools sites is estimated at $137,500. Furnishings and equipment will cost $80,150. Plans and supervision will cost $22,000 leaving a balance of $21,850 for contingencies.

Court Upholds Ban on Union Political Dues

OTTAWA (CP)—A British Columbia trade union Tuesday failed to convince the Supreme Court of Canada that it had contradicted itself in a judgment last year upholding the validity of B.C. legislation making it illegal for unions to use dues for political purposes.

The court rejected an application by Tom Berger, former New Democratic Party member of the Commons for Vancouver Burrard, for a special court order granting a rehearing of the case.

In a 4 to 3 decision last Oct. 1, the court rejected an appeal by Local 16-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC) against B.C. court decisions upholding the legislation's validity.

DIDN'T INTERFERE

The court's majority decision rejected the union claim that the legislation is invalid because it infringes Parliament's control over federal elections. It said it did not interfere with the workings of parliamentary institutions by preventing union dues being used for a political purpose which may not command the support of a particular union member.

Mr. Berger, counsel for the union, told the Supreme Court in his unsuccessful application that the majority judgment stated that legislation designed to safeguard the fundamental right of an individual to support the party of his choice was legislation in relation to civil rights within a province.

Rape Hearing Delayed 3 Weeks

Preliminary hearing of two charges of rape against Larry Kenneth Kanester, 2543 Wark, may not take place for at least three weeks.

Saanich prosecutor Ken Murphy said Tuesday that scientific tests have not yet been made.

Kanester, for whom bail has been set at $12,000, was remanded in custody for one week.

Full Medicare Asked in Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor, demanding "drastic changes" in government-backed private medical insurance, has collected thousands of signatures from Ontario residents who want a comprehensive, public medical care program.

The OFL plans to present cards bearing the signed demands to the 14-member committee appointed by the government to study draft legislation under which standard physician-care plans would be offered to the public through private insurers.

"We haven't counted the cards yet," an OFL spokesman said Tuesday night, "but we have at least 80,000." He said the cards would be presented to the inquiry committee at a hearing next Wednesday.

The OFL Brief says the present government legislation represents capitulation to the idea that private profit takes precedence over the public good. Operating the plan through private insurers makes medical care more costly than it would be under government operation, it says.

The United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Services, also calling for a comprehensive health-care program, suggests a government plan to provide medical care should be based on charity in the biblical sense—an attitude of humanity and concern—rather than in the sense of a handout.

It reminds the committee that the church's general council passed a resolution endorsing Saskatchewan's tax-supported, universal medical care program.

The brief to be presented later criticizes the draft legislation's implication that the needy would undergo a means test in order to qualify for government help in buying medical insurance. Such a system would discourage the participation of self-respecting, medically needy persons.

OAK BAY ADDS WINDSOR PARK

Summer Playground Extended

Oak Bay parks and building committee recommended Monday night that the summer playground be extended this year to Windsor Park.

The pilot program, initiated in Carnarvon Park last summer proved so popular the committee approved of an expenditure of $1,775 for equipment for Windsor Park and $500 for supervision and supplies.

Badminton posts and 200 feet of fencing was deleted from the budget until it is seen whether or not Windsor Park warrants such facilities.

Coun. W. W. Wade said emphasis should be on participation by senior citizens rather than on the provision of facilities in the recreational area.

An operating recreational budget of $2,710 was approved.

'Sewing School' Ends

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Police today arrested five women and a man on charges of operating a white slave ring in a sewing school for teen-age girls in Mexico City. Police said the six apparently were linked to the prostitution ring recently uncovered in the central Mexican town of San Francisco Del Rincon. Persons there have been accused of killing at least 30 girls over the last 10 years and burying or burning their bodies.

STARTS TONIGHT IN ESQUIMALT

25 Set for Rescue Course

A recent surge in registrations for rescue training by Esquimalt Emergency Measures Organization has assured the classes success, coordinator John Graeme said today.

Classes begin tonight at 8 in the Municipal Hall.

Two weeks ago, only three women had signed up for the courses. Now 25 people will be taking the elementary and advanced rescue courses and another 12 have signed up for a course in radiology.

A six-ton rescue vehicle and up-to-date equipment valued at $12,000 arrived earlier this week from emergency headquarters in Nanaimo to aid in survival training.

The truck contains equipment such as chain saws, acetylene torches, asbestos blankets, gas generators, floodlights, heavy duty jacks and two tons of chain.

Besides learning to use this equipment students will be shown how to shore up crumbling walls and methods of removing injured people from ruins.

Radiology courses will deal with fallout detection and students will work with a "live" radioactive source.

"The classes are about the right size for instruction," Mr. Graeme said.

"But we expect to form one more eight-man rescue crew. If the people are keen, we'll find a place for them."

PORK SALE!

Perhaps you have noticed the Pork-Petite sign above packages of fresh pork at Safeway. It's been put there to give special recognition to the top-quality pork that's featured by Safeway. If you've never tried Safeway's fresh pork, you may wonder what's so special about it.

Just this. Our hard-to-please buyers will accept only small-size, grain-fed pork for Safeway. This is the kind that gives you more lean meat and mouth-watering pork flavor. The kind that yields especially tender, juicy chops, roasts and spareribs. Our stores make sure you get this pork carefully prepared and glistening-fresh.

The Pork-Petite name is a merit badge for this kind of pork. It's the sleek, svelte, slim, small pork we think your family will enjoy. Try some today!

BUSINESS VIEWS

Gordon Against Foreign Backing

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Despite rumors that various U.S. banks are interested in the proposed new British Columbia bank—the giant Bank of America is most prominently mentioned—there isn't the slightest chance that a Canadian bank backed by foreign money could obtain a federal charter.

Finance Minister Gordon made it clear several months ago, when the First National City Bank of New York made its move into Canada through purchase of a 50 per cent interest in the Mercantile Bank from the Dutch owners, that he is implacably opposed to foreign investment in domestic banks. There was no way for him to block Citibank but it would be a different story if a new bank asked for a charter.

Gordon Bell

Mr. Gordon repeated this view the other day when asked about the B.C. bank and the proposed Bank of Western Canada at Winnipeg. He agreed there should be more competition in banking—provided the banks were well financed and other safeguards, such as being barred to non-residents, were provided.

Outlining the steps to be taken before a new bank could start up in business, Mr. Gordon pointed out that a private bill would be needed first in the Senate. The Senate's banking and finance committee would then study the bill and, if it was approved, would pass it on to the Commons. Another year would have to pass after that before the charter could be granted.

On that time-table, providing the proposed B.C. bank is well-enough organized to apply to the Senate next fall, it would be at least the spring of 1966 before the charter would be received.

Shareholders of Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. approved in principle a merger with Pacific Helicopters Ltd. which would, in effect, eliminate Pacific as a competitor in the field.

Only a small block of shareholders were against the deal which will go ahead providing an audit confirms certain financial details of the Pacific operation.

Involved in the merger would be an exchange of 11 Okanagan for 20 Pacific shares and redemption by Okanagan of $225,000 in Pacific preferred shares over a period of three years. After all the preferred are redeemed it is Okanagan's intention to liquidate the Pacific firm.

Pacific shareholders will not dispose of Okanagan shares they acquire in the deal before one year without giving Okanagan shareholders first refusal at market prices.

Power Corp. of Canada has admitted that it did not get the million shares of McIntyre Porcupine Mines which it sought with its $57-a-share offer but got "a sufficient number of shares" for "a long-term investor interest."

McIntyre, which recommended against shareholder acceptance of the Power Corp. offer, said that "according to all indications at the present time more than 60 per cent of McIntyre's issued shares (2,383,032) are held by financial groups that have been closely associated with McIntyre's directors and management for many years."

At that rate Power Corp. could not have bought more than 800,000 shares as a result of its offer and the talks is that it was considerably less.

Net earnings of Imperial Oil for 1963 are estimated at $71 million or $2.25 a share, compared with $68,400,000 or $2.16 a share in 1962, according to president W. O. Twaits.

Mr. Twaits said product sales and refinery runs set new records during the year but lower average prices and higher raw material costs substantially offset internal economies.

National Trust In Mutual Field Early Next Month

TORONTO (CP) — The National Trust Co. Ltd. moves into the mutual fund field Feb. 3 with an offer of 900,000 shares at $10.25 each of its newly formed subsidiary Natrusco Common Shares Fund Ltd.

The shares will be distributed only through National Trust branch offices and after the first 15 days of the offering, price of the stock will be determined daily after the stock market close.

The shares will be bought and sold daily by National Trust. The fund will invest in long-term growth equities, and National Trust will act as investment manager. All Natrusco executives are officials of the parent firm.

STANLEY CARNELL
. . . tremendous boost

New Branch Of PGE Proposed

A new branch of the PGE railway right across northwest B.C. to the port of Stewart was proposed in the Legislature Tuesday by a Social Credit member.

Stanley Carnell (SC — South Peace) said the PGE should be extended from Kennedy, 85 miles north of Prince George on the existing line, across rich mineral deposits to the west coast port.

Mr. Carnell said it would be a tremendous boost for development of copper, coal and other resources.

It would also attract rail traffic from Alberta, he said.

"The north part of the province is on the first stage of an immense development," Mr. Carnell said, urging a full economic and industrial survey.

He predicted that the next major hydro power source to be developed could be the Liard River.

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi told the House earlier that he was hopeful "there will be "American greenbacks flowing" down a completely paved Alaska Highway.

He said he was sending information down to Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has introduced a bill in the U.S. calling for co-operative development of the highway with Canada.

"There people now recognize the tremendous importance of the province of B.C.," Mr Gaglardi said.

CPR Earnings In December Up

MONTREAL (CP)—The CPR has reported earnings of $2,034,522 for December, 1963.

Revenues for the month were $39,314,756 and expenses $37,280,234, the railway's statement says.

The earnings are up $951,522 from the same month of the previous year, the company's statement says. In December, 1962, CPR earned $1,082,970.

Canadian Firms Expand Markets

OTTAWA (CP)—The growing competitive strength of Canadian manufacturers in world markets is easing some of their apprehensions about the prospects of reduced tariff protection.

It is also seen here as reducing the problems that will face Canada's negotiators in the international tariff-cutting talks starting next May at Geneva.

Recent export figures show the strong performance of Canadian secondary manufactured products in expanding their foreign markets.

In the first 11 months of 1963, exports of finished goods were nearly 53 per cent higher than two years earlier. That compared with a growth of 17.6 per cent in all Canadian exports over the same period.

The country's export trade still relies heavily on agricultural products and industrial raw materials, whose output traditionally has been geared to world markets.

INCREASE SHARE

But secondary manufacturers are steadily becoming a larger proportion of total exports—8.8 per cent in 1961 and 11.5 per cent last year.

This change was emphasized in a recent speech by Trade Minister Sharp at Vancouver.

"There was a time, not long ago, when Canadian producers would be divided into two groups: Those that depended mainly upon export business and those that served the domestic market almost exclusively.

"This division is breaking down, and so are the conflicts in the field of trade policy that rested upon that division.

"Not only do the producers of our great export staples like lumber and pulp and paper and grain and metals look outward. Many of our manufacturers are learning that they can compete outside of Canada and are becoming interested in getting improved access to external markets."

Laurentide Shows Big Earnings Jump

VANCOUVER (CP)—Laurentide Financial Corporation Ltd.'s net earnings for the six months ended Dec. 31 increased 24 per cent over the same period last year to $1,463,710.

Earnings in the same period of 1962 totalled $1,180,510.

D. F. FARRIS WILL RESIGN MANAGEMENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prominent businessman Donald F. Farris of Vancouver Tuesday broke a long silence over proxy fights against him to announce he will soon resign control of 23 real estate companies worth $8,000,000.

Mr. Farris wrote to shareholders of the group of publicly-owned companies, saying in part:

"I trust your companies will not suffer too greatly from incompetent and inexperienced management which may follow."

Mr. Farris will remain president of privately-owned B.C. Estates Limited, which sponsored formation of the 23-company group and construction of their 26 apartment buildings and three commercial buildings in Greater Vancouver during the past several years.

Dissident shareholders have waged proxy fights in five of the companies through Crusaders Equity Protection Service Limited.

CANADIAN POLICY

Uranium to France For Commercial Use

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada is prepared to sell uranium to France for commercial uses only.

This has emerged as the Canadian policy on uranium sales to France, after much confusion developed because of what appeared to be contradictory statements made in Paris by Prime Minister Pearson.

Government spokesmen said here Tuesday that based on the prime minister's statements it is clear that this country is prepared to sell uranium to France for commercial uses such as the development of atomic power.

Meantime, French representatives will meet with officials of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. in two or three weeks for a general exchange of information on reactor developments. The French are building reactors and they want to exchange knowledge, it was learned today.

Two weeks ago a representative of the French Mokta mining concern met with representatives of Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. to discuss the possibility of investing in a Canadian uranium mine, it is understood. However, they would be blocked from sending ore from such a French-owned mine home except under strict supervision of the export regulations.

The sale of a Canadian nuclear reactor to India is reported to have raised some doubts in Washington about Canada's export regulations in this field. But Canada is not anxious to impose severe restrictions that would restrict her sales of uranium for commercial purposes.

This country has scored successes with its heavy water reactors as designed by Atomic Energy of Canada and would like to export commercial nuclear power equipment, fuel and the technical know how.

EARNINGS

Campbell Red Lake Mines Ltd., year ended Dec. 31: 1963, $2,364,637, 39 cents a share; 1962, $2,021,488, 50 cents.

Sigma Mines Quebec Ltd., year ended Dec. 31: 1963, $494,009, 49 cents a share; 1962, $466,785, 46 cents.

WOODWARD STORES LIMITED EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS

C. R. CLARRIDGE

R. A. WHITE

L. G. PHIPPS

R. N. BLIGH

Mr. C. N. Woodward, Chairman of the Board of Woodward Stores (1947) Ltd., announces the following appointments:

Mr. C. R. Clarridge, Vice-President of Merchandising. Mr. Clarridge's new position will cover the Company's merchandising operations in B.C. and Alberta. He has been with the Company since 1934 and, until his appointment to the Board of Directors in 1954 and Vice-President of Building and Development in 1961, had been Store Manager at New Westminster, Oakridge and Woodward's Calgary.

Also newly appointed to the Board of Directors: Mr. R. A. White, L.L.B.; Mr. L. G. Phipps, Director of Store Planning and Buildings; Mr. R. N. Bligh, Director of Real Estate and Development.

These new appointments are the result of the ever increasing expansion and growth of Woodward's, who open a new store in Kamloops, B.C., in August, 1964, and have already announced plans to build in Surrey, B.C., and a third store in Edmonton, Alberta.

ANTI-FAG DRIVE SHOULD TELL B.C. HOW TO QUIT

A government anti-smoking campaign should tell people how to stop, a hospital administrator-turned MLA told the legislature Tuesday.

William Speare (SC-Cariboo) noted that the Throne Speech forecast an educational campaign among children.

"Make it good—make it effective," he said.

"Use the shock tactics to get the story across to young people that we had to adopt in time of war in training films."

Mr. Speare suggested showing examples of "unhealthy tissue" created by smoking.

But, he added: "Try and give the people who smoke a clue as to how to quit.

"Get them medical advice and advice from so-called experts on how to quit a hardened habit."

Hospitals in Dark On How Rates Set

Controversy over hospital costs and services is caused by a lack of communication, Social Credit MLA William Speare said Tuesday.

The Cariboo member, a former hospital administration at Quesnel, told the legislature that hospitals get into trouble when they extend their services beyond the limits of the daily rates set by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

"It would help immeasurably if an effort could be made to advise the hospitals clearly how the rate board does set the per diem rate," Mr. Speare said.

He referred specifically to last fall's charges by Dr. R. E. Adams, medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital, that babies had died in hospitals because proper studies and services were not available.

"Every prospective mother in the province has the seed of doubt sown in her heart when something like this is enunciated by a respected member of the hospital profession," Mr. Speare said.

He said the government is spending huge sums on hospitals but the health minister has to budget for 93 different hospitals, each of which has different needs.

"Hospitals must recognize they have surrendered some autonomy," Speare said. "I do not believe hospital boards in the province fully understand this point even yet."

BY MINE-MILL

LRB Member Called Prejudiced

Resignation of a member of the Labor Relations Board accused of disrupting unions was demanded by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union Tuesday.

The union met cabinet ministers and charged that board official Pen Baskin was prejudiced.

Mr. Baskin, the Mine, Mill delegates said, is the B.C. leader of the Steelworkers' Union, which had been making "unprincipled raids" on their union.

'DISRUPTION'

"Mr. Baskin, who is leading in the disruption of trade unions in B.C. . . . should not be on the Labor Relations Board, paid by the government of B.C., and utilizing the prestige of the board in his anti-labor activities," the Mine, Mill Union said in its cabinet brief.

The brief said Labor Minister Leslie Peterson had promised Mr. Baskin would disqualify himself in cases involving millworkers.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

But Mr. Baskin has in fact decided questions involving his rival union, the brief said.

It also urged that board hearings be thrown open to the public and press.

"Labor relations are no longer a private, secretive matter," the brief added.

Inter-Faith Rally Pickets Rebuked

VANCOUVER (CP)—Salvation Army officials said Monday disciplinary measures will be taken against two men who picketed a joint Roman Catholic-Protestant prayer service here Sunday wearing Salvation Army uniforms and displaying signs and leaflets critical of Protestant-Catholic unity.

The Army officially supports moves toward church unity.

Said Lieut.-Col. Leslie Pinred, B.C. Divisional Commander of the Salvation Army: "They had no right to represent the Army by wearing their uniforms. They acted without our consent, in fact in contradiction to our orders."

The Salvation Army band performed at the service for the 5,000 attending. (See Page 26).

Orderly Fights Treasury Board

An ex-serviceman is hopping mad at being cheated of an increase in wages due to him for working as a nursing orderly at Veterans' Hospital.

And Thomas Moran, 864 Colville, says he is not the only person suffering as a result of a federal Treasury Board ruling about back payments to government employees.

Mr. Moran wants to contact others in a similar situation to his, organize a campaign to fight the ruling and, if necessary, make a test case of it in court.

Mr. Moran was employed at the hospital for eight years, until July 26 of last year. Three days after he left to work at Royal Jubilee Hospital, the nursing orderlies at the Veterans' Hospital were given a retroactive increase in pay.

Mr. Moran thought he would get about $130 in back pay for the seven months he worked at the DVA last year. But when he applied for it he discovered that, since he had left government employment, he was not entitled to the back increase.

NO CHANGES

He contacted David Groos, Liberal MP for Victoria, and was told it was due to a Treasury Board ruling. Mr. Groos said the ruling has been challenged before but no one has succeeded in having it changed.

Mr. Groos said retroactive payments of wages are only given to persons who are in government employ at the time the increase is announced. It doesn't matter if a person has worked for the period for which the increases were given.

Mr. Moran said he thinks that if enough persons are affected by the ruling, it should be possible for them to organize an effort to change it. He said they could possibly test the legality of the ruling in the courts.

Sweden Signs Pact To Trade With Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio Tuesday announced a long-term trade agreement with industrialists in Sweden. The statement said the Cuban ministry of construction signed an eight-year contract to provide machinery repair parts and raw material for Cuba's concrete industry.

Suit will be kept with other fire equipment at tug company dock, and be available for use anywhere in area.

New B.C. Bank In Government Office Block?

Minister Likes Vancouver Site

A plan for the provincial government to build the home of the new "Bank of British Columbia" was disclosed today by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

He floated out the idea in the legislature, but such suggestions usually turn out to be firm government policy, especially when they come from a front-rank cabinet minister.

Mr. Peterson's plan is to put the bank in a government office block in downtown Vancouver.

LAND DEAL

It would involve a land deal with the City of Vancouver and the CNR-Hilton Hotel Vancouver.

The government intends to become a minority shareholder in the bank, once it gets a federal charter.

Mr. Peterson said the bank is one of B.C.'s "most critical needs" to spur industrial development.

He proposed that the government build a high rise block to include a court house, other government offices and the new bank.

The site he suggested is a city block bounded by Robson, Hornby, Howe and Smythe Streets adjacent to the existing court house.

Owned by the city it cost $1,375,250.

REASONABLE

Taking into account "other commitments in respect to expropriations" Mr. Peterson said the government could get if for a "most reasonable price" and Mayor William Rathie agrees.

Government-owned property right behind the hotel would then be made available for its proposed expansion plan, Mr. Peterson said. At present the recreation department has some offices there.

In addition he said the government might sell the city its old normal school property for a new junior college.

A BROKEN HEART AND A BROKEN LEG are both on the mend for Kim, a Boxer dog who was injured on Saturday but didn't arrive at the veterinarian's until Tuesday. Kim escaped Saturday from an SPCA officer who was taking her to the hospital and she wasn't found again until Tuesday. The pet of Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Knight, she had her leg set in a splint this morning and is now anxious to get back to 516 Ridley and try out in a three-legged race. Vic Nunn assures her the worst is over.

Ten More Men Asked by Chief

Training Demands Cut Into Manpower

Hiring 10 more policemen to bring the city force to a strength of 120 was requested today by Chief J. F. Gregory.

Notice of the request was contained in a preliminary budget submitted to city police commission.

It showed only a $31,597 increase to a total of $823,515 but is subject to considerable change in the formal budget submitted about three months from now. The preliminary budget is required to meet a legal technicality in the Municipal Act.

Chief Gregory said the preliminary budget included the cost of adding 10 constables but did not provide for any wage increases. The policemen's union currently is negotiating for the equivalent of a 15-per-cent wage boost.

Expansion of the force was requested to meet manpower demands and training schedules.

"It is very difficult to keep the force at authorized strength, particularly with the intensified training program we now have," Chief Gregory told the commission.

"For instance, at the present time we have five men away on courses."

The commission likely will not make a decision on the chief's request until the formal budget requirements are known. Although city council has the final say, it traditionally accepts the advice of the commission.

BLAKENEY
... fights U.S. flower

Centenary May Yet Get Native Rose

Victoria rose grower Fred Blakeney believes his hybrid tea rose Pacific Beauty will be recognized as Canada's centennial rose despite "big business" competition from United States growers.

He is convinced that Pacific Beauty is a better rose—more beautiful and more hardy—than the U.S. product which was given the trademark "Centennial" last month.

"The Canadian Nursery Trades Association is solidly behind me in this matter," said Mr. Blakeney, interview at his home at 963 Arundel Drive today.

The trouble began last month when a Montreal rose grower, Jack G. McIntyre, received permission from the federal government to give the trademark "Centennial" to a U.S. product.

'CONFEDERATION'

This made it impossible for Mr. Blakeney's rose to be called the Centennial rose. So the Canadian Nursery Trades Association today asked State Secretary Pickersgill for permission to apply the name "Confederation" to Mr. Blakeney's rose.

"Under this name it could still be used as Canada's centennial rose," Mr. Blakeney said, "and I am confident the minister will agree."

Mr. Blakeney has the full support of Victoria Horticultural Society, which protested when Weekend Magazine stated last November that a rose grown in Newark, N.J., had been registered with the American Rose Society as the Canadian centennial rose.

CANADIAN-BRED

"Canadian rose growers are agreed that our centennial rose should be a Canadian-bred rose, declared Mrs. Ena McCabe, president of the society.

"It is wrong to have a U.S. product called Canada's centennial rose," John King of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association said in Ottawa today.

Mr. Blakeney said his Pacific Beauty took him three years to develop and has since been tested for hardiness for two years in B.C. nurseries.

TRANS-CANADA

"It can be grown right across Canada during centennial year," he said. "I have supplied all members of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association with the budwood necessary to propagate the rose, and they are anxious to go ahead with it."

Mr. Blakeney proudly displayed his Pacific Beauty on lantern slides. It is deep pink on the face and silvery white on the reverse and has large glossy leaves of a leathery texture.

"The rose has a long, pointed bud and is high-centred in form," he said. "It carries about 35 petals and when fully open it measures about five inches across."

'Second Look' Set On Navy Reserve

A four-man commission hearing arguments on federal government plans to shut down naval reserve installations will hold a session in the wardroom of HMCS Naden at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The commission opened its sessions in Vancouver today, hearing briefs from Vancouver's reserve establishment, HMCS Discovery, the Naval Officers' Association of B.C., the University Naval Training Division and the Navy League of Canada.

The main brief at HMCS Naden will be presented by Capt. Peter Thomas, commanding officer of HMCS Malahat, reserve training establishment on Wharf Street, which is to be closed down in the economy move.

Capt. Thomas will be supported by the Naval Officers' Association of B.C.

The commissioners are Cmdr. R. I. Hendy of Toronto, Capt. Robert Inman of Ottawa, Capt. L. B. McIlhagga of Winnipeg and Capt. A. W. Ross of Vancouver.

Constable Says He Bought Liquor From Taxi Stand

A city policeman told today how he handed a note saying "I was brought here for a bottle" to a downtown bootlegger early on the morning of Nov. 9.

He was testifying against George C. Thomas who pleaded guilty to two charges of selling liquor at the stand of Island Taxi, 1414 Broad Street.

Constable H. F. Galbraith said Thomas read the note and then went outside to the back of the taxi stand. The officer watched through the back window while Thomas reached into a garbage can and took out a bottle of liquor.

He sold Cons. Galbraith a $2.20 bottle for $4. Next morning the officer returned to the taxi stand and this time Thomas sold him a bottle of liquor that he had in a drawer in the office.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett told the court that he will attempt to prove that Thomas was convicted once before on a liquor offence. The case was remanded to Feb. 12.

MRS. McMARTIN
... funeral Saturday

Business Woman Succumbs

Mrs. Sarah Anne McMartin, a well-known city business woman, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. McMartin, widow of James Alexander McMartin who died in 1957, was co-founder and an active partner in the McMartin Leather Goods store.

Born in Portadown, Ireland, she came to Victoria over 50 years ago and lived at 59 Howe Street.

She was a life member of the Soroptimists Club and an active member of the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Burns Club and First United Church.

She is survived by a son, Tom, and daughter, Margaret, five grandchildren and three nieces.

Funeral service will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in McCall's Chapel with Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiating. Interment will follow at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Month In Jail

Keith McNamara of Vancouver was sentenced to one month in jail Tuesday when he appeared in city magistrate's court.

At an earlier hearing the man had pleaded guilty to obtaining lodgings by fraud.

WORKMEN FIND AN OLD CACHE

How Did Spanish War Come Out? Rediscovered Time Capsule Asks

By PETE LOUDON

Twenty-eight years evaporated this morning for two city hall employees.

A wrecker's bar disclosed a "time capsule" they had secreted in a wall in 1936 to amuse a later generation.

Collector of water rates James Marrs and accountant Bill Farmer were junior employees then, aged 31 and 24 respectively.

"The Spaniards are still at war. Russia is about to come to the government's aid. How did it come out?" they asked in one note.

"The weather is fine. No word yet from Mayor Leeming re the bond deal," reads another memo.

"My son's name is Ronald B. Marrs. Where does he live?" Mr. Marrs enquired of the future.

An unsigned note enquires: "Well, how would you like to work for the corporation for 12 years and at the end of that time be getting less than when you started?"

How did the Spanish War come out? It turned out to be a practice for a world war which was to take Jim Marrs to battle in Italy. Where is his son today? He's a captain with the Black Watch, in Germany.

"Ran" McCann, who lives now in Arizona and Walter Englehart, who now is dead, also took part in the little ceremony, recalls Mr. Marrs.

POT BELLY STOVES

The occasion was the first installation of central heating in city hall. Prior to then each office contained a pot belly stove. The four waterworks staffers hid three envelopes in all, in the walls. Two are still awaiting discovery and may stay hidden for years because not all the walls are being wrecked in the present renovations.

Today's find also contains a miniature edition of the News of the World and a picture of the sports trophies won by civic employees. There are dozens of stamps bearing King George V's likeness.

There's a brochure put out by United Airlines showing the latest two-motor job which could crank up 180 miles per hour.

SPEEDY, HUH?

"How's that for speed?" asks a pencilled scrawl.

There are sweepstake tickets and a raffle ticket put out by Saanich Thistles football team. There are ads circulated by radio stations — one featuring Fred Allen.

Dozens of envelopes bear names of businesses, some long gone, almost all of them handwritten — even the one from the Victoria Times.

Which shatters the claim of reporters who swear their typewriters were here when the Ark landed.

Former Student To Address Uvic Association

Former Victoria College student Dr. John H. Young will return to be guest speaker at a public meeting of the Victoria University Extension Association on Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Lansdowne auditorium.

Dr. Young, head of the department of economics and political science at the University of British Columbia, will speak on: "Some Problems in Canadian Economic Policy."

A native of Victoria, Dr. Young took part of his university training at Victoria College before joining the RCAF and later completed his BA and MA degrees at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

He received his doctorate from Cambridge and taught at Yale University for seven years until 1960 when he returned to the West Coast and joined the faculty at UBC.

He served on the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects in 1955-56 and on the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance, 1962-63.

A 19-year-old youth who was disappointed when he went to a house expecting to find a party, broke into the place and stole money and liquor, Saanich court was told Tuesday.

Hercharngit Singh Bain, 3226 Wordsworth, pleaded guilty to the breaking and entering and theft.

Constable John Post said the youth stole about $18 and two part bottles of liquor after ransacking the kitchen and bedroom.

Bain, who is on probation for an earlier offence, was remanded to Feb. 4 for sentence.

Health Minister Eric Martin marked the end of 45 years' service by Colquitz Hospital as a mental institution today by symbolically closing its front doors.

The old building will now return to its original function as a prison.

Mr. Martin said that while the building's facilities were inadequate for a mental hospital "the skill and dedication of Dr. L. G. C. d'Easum and his staff resulted in a high standard of care."

The 300 patients from the hospital have been transferred to more modern facilities on the B.C. mainland.

PATRICIA BAY RCAF commander in 1949, Squadron Leader Chris Humphries is retiring from the air force this month after more than 27 years' service. While stationed on Vancouver Island he commanded 122 Marine Squadron, which was the forerunner of RCAF Rescue Co-ordination Centres. Prior to his retirement he was senior RCAF Marine Engineering officer. His home will be at 3469 West 43 Avenue, Vancouver.

Ask The Times

Q. Who wrote the Beer Barrel Polka? When was it written? W.L.G.

A. It was written in 1934 by Lee Brown and W. A. Timm.

Q. Would you please advise me how or to whom you would apply to get your name on a jury list? H.P.T.

A. People do not apply for jury duty. Jurors are selected at random from the provincial voters' list.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Questioners must include their name and address. Only initials will be published.

HIT-RUN DRIVER NAILED

A hit-and-run driver was convicted Tuesday because he unknowingly took his damaged car to be repaired by the man with whom he had collided.

This was revealed in Saanich court Tuesday when Ronald Bennett, 614 Gosworth, was fined $200 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Bennett hit an oncoming vehicle on Trans-Canada Highway near Portage, early on the morning of Dec. 22. He kept on going after the collision.

Hours later he brought his car to a service station without knowing that the driver with whom he had collided worked there as a mechanic. The mechanic spotted parts of his own vehicle still hanging on to Bennett's car and saw paint marks from his own car on Bennett's vehicle.

Bennett was convicted in city court last week of driving while disqualified and sentenced to one month in jail.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Adopting' an Attitude?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I wish they had a law against people adopting a child when they already have one of their own. I am a 13-year-old adopted boy. My parents got me when I was first born. They already had one boy of their own. He was four, and they wanted a companion for him. Well, I was supposed to be it, but I never was. My brother and I never got along. He's a good student and a good athlete and I am neither. I am a big disappointment to my parents and I wish I was dead. It wouldn't be so bad if my brother was adopted, too, but he is their real son and I am not. I don't think adopted kids and flesh and blood kids belong in the same family, do you?

ADOPTED

DEAR ADOPTED: Adopted kids belong in any family that wants them. If you are different from your "brother," don't blame it on the fact that you are adopted. You are probably the only one who ever gives it a second thought.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I got a telephone call at 11 o'clock at night from his kid sister, who lives 200 miles from here. She said, "Dick and I are getting married tomorrow. I don't suppose you and Pat (that's me) can drive down for the wedding, huh?" Neither of us had made any arrangements at work, so told her we couldn't make it, wished her good luck on the phone and said goodbye. Our first free weekend we drove down to his home town and his mother was mad at ME. She had the idea it was my fault we missed the wedding. When I went into her house she had cut our wedding picture in half and my husband was in a frame all by himself! What would you do?

PAT.

DEAR PAT: I'd say YOU were the one who was framed. Skip it.

DEAR ABBY: Our four-year-old son is not left-handed except when it comes to eating. My husband says for me to leave him alone, but I am trying to encourage him to eat with his right hand because I think it looks so clumsy for a person to eat with his left hand. What do you think?

A MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Leave him alone. What's the difference? His MOUTH is in the middle.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FIGHTING IRISHMAN": There are two kinds of women in the world. The kind a man would die for, and the kind he'd like to outlive.

Items to Aid Homemakers With Household Chores

By PENNY SAVER

In many homes, during the rainy season, especially where there are children, you will find family members tripping over clotheshorses and ducking under clothes lines.

Since it is often not practical to move these obstacles, Penny has a suggestion—invest in a clothes line reel. This reel hangs on wall and the line can be wound back into the metal container when not in use. Price is $2.98.

For ease and convenience in carrying out your household chores, this shop is also selling various unbreakable polyethylene items at 77 cents each.

These include all-purpose pails, dishpans which won't scratch or mar your sink, handi-bins for keeping order in cupboards, cabinets and closets, cutlery and utility trays, and sets of three measured ounces mixing bowls.

Kitchen cotton sets which make ideal gifts for the bride-to-be are also available here. One six-piece set includes a cutting board, four dish cloths, and a non-stick pastry cloth. To use cloth, rub flour well into it, slip sleeves over rolling pin and roll dough as usual. And to clean, simply brush off flour, launder and store in plastic bag. Price is $3.69.

Another set, priced at $4.98, contains a wicker utility basket, tea towel, terry towel and three dish cloths. Others priced at $2.98 and $3.98, include cake pan and dish cloths, or plastic storage crisper, pot holders and dish cloths and towels.

Something else Penny found for convenience in any room is a clear plastic sculptured crystal waste basket.

Baskets are priced at $3.39 and must be assembled by the purchaser. Assemble two of the sides so they fit together and slip the grooved molding down the corner, continue until all sides are joined.

If you're interested in these "home convenience-adding" items, call Penny at 382-3131.

Showers for Bride-Elect

Miss Ann Rainsford was honored recently at a shower in the Watson Street home of Mrs. J. McKain. A gift of a serviette umbrella was presented to the bride-elect and gifts were also received by her mother, Mrs. E. L. Rainsford, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. A. Romain. A decorated wheel barrow held other gifts. A shower cake, decorated with a bride and groom and red roses, was cut and served by the guest of honor. Mrs. D. Keirs assisted the hostess. Other guests included Mrs. E. A. Keir, Mrs. E. A. Keir, Jr., Mrs. J. Main, Mrs. L. Wood, Mrs. D. Fernyhough, Mrs. M. Bentley, Mrs. A. Francis, Mrs. D. Blake, Mrs. B. Brown, the Misses Darlene Noble and Julie Romain.

At another shower held in the Finlayson Street home of her sister, Mrs. D. Blake, Miss Rainsford was presented with a pink carnation corsage. Her chair was decorated with white bells. Gifts were contained in a covered clothes basket. Guests included Mrs. E. L. Rainsford, Mrs. J. E. Main, Mrs. J. Main, Mrs. J. A. Romain, Mrs. L. H. Noble, Mrs. A. Francis, Mrs. R. Burow, Mrs. B. Whatman, Mrs. G. Duckworth, the Misses Darlene Noble, Lyn Lomas, Julie Romain and Sandy Rainsford.

Coffee Party

There were 26 guests when Mrs. Frank Robinson, newly-elected president of the Afternoon Guild of St. George the Martyr Church, entertained the group at a coffee party in her Ten Mile Point home. Mrs. N. S. Noel and Mrs. C. Clark presided at the refreshment table

BE SMART—

A gal we know who's one of those lucky travelers has fixed herself up a neat and ready shoe-coloring kit, composed of several colors of shoe make-up. Wherever she is, she can change shoe colors at an instant's notice. Cuts shoe packing!

This bridal gown, shown to the press in Montreal, is one of several cotton numbers in a simple "country" theme. Here the cotton is woven into a finely-webbed pique. A deep border of re-embroidered Alencon lace enhances the neckline and is scalloped into the hem. (CP Wirephoto.)

Brides Borrow Romance of Past

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian brides in spring and summer of 1964 will wear gowns inspired by the eras of Queen Guinevere of Camelot fame and Marie Antoinette of France—with an added Oriental touch.

A Canadian collection of wedding gowns and bridal modes previewed to the press here recently ranged from simple gowns modelled after those worn by ladies playing shepherdess in the Versailles Gardens to regal empire lines with Japanese obi-waists.

Cape trains falling from the shoulders or from wide obi sashes covered slender silhouettes with raised empire waists, reminiscent of Norman ladies of King Arthur's time.

Some more practical numbers came with removeable cape trains, leaving evening gowns. The trains were floor or cathedral lengths.

Cotton was a favorite fabric, in piques, ribbed or spun into lace. Swiss embroidery and Guipure applique were in keeping with the lighter seasons.

For the small ceremony there were youthful dresses in white with short, slim skirts and the currently popular "blazer" style jackets.

Bridesmaids wore gowns in the same lines as the gown they were complementing.

Among the trousseau creations were a going-away suit in silk plaid by American designer Oleg Cassini, a full-length polka-dot gown in heavy Italian silk, and a dazzling orange wrap-around gown worn with green shoes.

Alfrandri, the dean of Canadian designers now in his late 70s, is still young in his creations. His collection included a cotton brocade hostess costume with a feminine bouffant-sleeved blouse.

Another Cassini creation was a beige silk dress in the new fitted "pukka" style for the mother of the bride.

Alfandri's bridal cortege included a white organza empire-style wedding gown appliqued with Calais lace. The maid of honor wore a gown in the same style in gold.

First Trip on Spanish Train Finds Young Travellers Coach-Hopping in Dark of Night

Former Times staffer Judy Richardson and her friend Linda Scales, are now travelling in Western Europe. From time to time you will hear more of their adventures from abroad.

Richardson

A ride to end all rides! And our first night trip on a third class Spanish train!

"We'll get there early and find a seat to stretch out on," Linda and I promised each other when we planned the excursion.

Famous last words! We had so much time to put in before the train left, that we nearly missed it.

We were in the old university town of Salamanca. Just as we exhausted our list of sights to see and began to wonder how to fill the three hours until the train departed, we met Teddy.

Even with a name like that, he is a Puerto Rican who speaks English and has been studying medicine in Salamanca for five years.

The time flew by as Teddy showed us the sights we had missed; took us for coffee and then accompanied us to the restaurant at the train station.

We ate our meal with an eye on the clock, intending to give ourselves half an hour, at least, to find a seat.

The clock was slow!

Five minutes before the train was scheduled to leave, we were still trying to exchange our kilometric coupons for tickets, rescue our packsacks from the "left baggage" and find the train.

The third-class coaches were packed with students going home for holidays. That meant there were so many people sitting in the aisles, you could not pass through one car to reach another.

Packs resting on top of two bags of mail, Linda and I stood in the corridor by the washroom and tried to laugh as we thought of the 10-hour trip ahead.

We had company in our confined little "compartment." And in such close quarters it wasn't long until we discovered that this young Spaniard spoke French.

He was a seminarist, so our conversation naturally progressed to a discussion of religion.

A discussion greatly interrupted by other passengers who were continually brushing by us to the washroom.

We solved nothing!

Finally the conductor realized (with what appeared to be horror) that we were "foreigners." No telling what stories we might take home about the Spanish railways.

So, we were told that seats had been found for us in the next coach. Manuel, our seminarist friend, was included.

At the next stop — apparently in the middle of nowhere —we made the move. As our coach was impassable, we had to jump out, run along beside the train and re-enter at the next coach.

Linda and Manuel were safely on when we missed Manuel's suitcase. Back I went and pounded on the door, calling out in French, in a voice that became increasingly more frantic, "La valise, la valise" to a group of Spaniards.

Through my mind raced memories of stories my father had told me of how he used to jump freight trains back in "the good old days." I had no intention of being left alone in the dark Spanish wilderness!

As usual, my fears were exaggerated. Someone shoved the suitcase out to me and I raced back up the track and clambered into the coach.

It is typical of Spanish trains, however, that when we stopped at Placencia, we found we had to change coaches again. Not only that but the only coach to which we could change, was the crowded one we had left.

And, to top it off, the hour stop-over stretched from three in the morning until six, as we waited for a connecting train from Madrid.

It was a gay stop-over, however. The Spanish students made sure of that. They marched us into the station bar and insisted we help them drink a bottle of wine.

When at last we tried to catnap, it had to be leaning against a wall of the coach, serenaded by a group of 12 seminarists. Their songs were loud and rollicking for 6 a.m. But we appreciated them all when two got up and offered us their seats.

Until we swung off the train about 10 in the morning, the priests-to-be sat in turns around us and allowed us to sleep — proving that, in Spain, at least, chivalry is not dead.

Women's Editor Elizabeth Forbes

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney C. Rabey, 347 Windermere Place, wish to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Mary Shannon, to Mr. William John Nesbitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Nesbitt of Victoria. The wedding will take place on Saturday, February 15, at 2:30 p.m., in Metropolitan United Church.

Auxiliary Helps Hospital

The Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital pledged $12,000 for the purchase of an auto-analyser for the hospital's laboratory when the group held its annual meeting in the hospital. This will be main objective for the year.

Mrs. A. D. Blair, treasurer, announced receipts of $9,600. Expenditures included a $100 bursary to a graduating nurse and assistance with the student nurses' year book.

President, Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, reviewed money-raising projects which included a bridge tea, garden party, sale of knitted goods and bake sales.

Membership convener, Mrs. T. C. Rogers, introduced two new members, Mrs. A. Rhodes and Mrs. B. Kay. There are now 93 members.

Mrs. E. Michaux reported that 20 members donated time on the mobile store. Mrs. G. DeCorte read report of Mrs. C Sluggett which stated that gifts had been given to patients in the children's ward.

Sister Mary Ann Celeste presided at the election which followed. Mrs. Blair Reid was nominating chairman.

Mrs. Atkinson was re-elected president. Serving with her will be: First vice-president, Mrs. C. Baker; second, Mrs. W. Hayward; secretary, Mrs. DeCorte; treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Caldwell; councillors, Mrs. S. Howard, Mrs. T. G. Pye and Mrs. R. Adams; publicity, Mrs. Michaux; sick committee, Mrs. C. Rose; membership, Mrs. Rogers and mobile store, Mrs. R. Ketterer and Mrs. A. J. Shipley. Past president is Mrs. P. Semenchuk and honorary president, Mrs. George R. Pearkes.

Sister Mary Malarchy was in charge of refreshments served at close of meeting. She was assisted by Mrs. W. Rothery and Mrs. F. Sedwick.

Local Publisher Speaks To Island Press Women

Gray Campbell, publisher, spoke to the Vancouver Island Branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club at a meeting in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Sunday afternoon.

Describing his publishing house as a "cottage industry," Mr. Campbell attributed the venture into the business to a love of books conceived by his wife and himself when they were ranching in Alberta.

He stressed the advantage of being close to authors whose books he published. "Before any book can be written, there must be a commitment, on the part of either the publisher or the writer. This is more easily obtained when they can work closely together.

"It's much more exciting for the author when he can be consulted about such details as what color and form the cover of his book will take."

Following the talk, Times' fashion editor, Nona Damaske, showed movies taken on a tour of the Orient with press club members from across Canada.

It was announced that the national executive of the Canadian Women's Press Club would be presenting a brief on biculturalism. To contribute to this, the branch will hold a panel discussion in mid-March at the Silverbridge Inn in Duncan in order to formulate suggestions to be submitted for the brief.

Dorothy Tupper, Victoria, will be moderator. Panel members will be Agnes Flett, Nanaimo; Margaret Trebett, Port Alberni; Elsie Worthington, Salt Spring Island, and Pat Dufour, Victoria.

It was decided to contact school superintendents and editorial staff of Island high schools regarding the branch's $100 bursary, to be awarded annually to a high school graduate interested in making journalism her career. Bursary is for assistance with a university education.

Out-of-Town

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Deen came from Edmonton to attend the wedding of Miss Sandra Hett and Mr. Ted Banner. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sommers, Robert and Ellen, all of Parksville, and Mr. and Mrs. George Thody, Denise and Graham, all of North Vancouver.

Annual luncheon and tea, St. Mark's Woman's Auxiliary, Hudson's Bay Douglas Room, Friday, 11 to 1 p.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. Home cooking stall.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Because of Build, a Few Gals Must Accept Big Hips

A recent letter from a reader brings up some questions which puzzle many women. The letter says, in part:

Lowman

"Dear Josephine Lowman:

"After 11 months of dieting and exercise, with the help of a wonderful doctor and your column, I am almost down to my goal of 130 pounds.

"When I reach my goal I have the promise of a complete new wardrobe. When I buy I want to look my best after the struggle of losing all of this weight. I just can't seem to whittle my hips and thighs down enough to be in proportion with my waist and bust. My bust measures 35 inches, waist 26 inches and hips 41 inches.

"I have 10 more pounds to lose and I know that will help some, but I am afraid that I will still be too hippy. I have a medium to large frame. At the one time I weighed 125 pounds, I was still broad through the hips. I don't expect to have a perfect figure, but I would appreciate any help you can give me. I want to look as good as I feel."

This reader has had such a gratifying experience with her reducing efforts. She must not dampen her happiness by trying for the impossible. From her letter I judge that her problem is at least partly build. She may never be able to reduce her hips as much as she would like because you simply cannot reduce bone.

On the other hand, the out-of-proportion hip measurement could be due to her individual weight distribution. I suggest that she increase her bust measurement with exercise and concentrate on hip-slimming exercises. The hips and thighs, I have found, are the most stubborn of all measurements. Nevertheless, you can improve the picture with exercise.

Try the following one. Lie on your back with your arms resting on the floor away from your sides, palms facing the floor. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor fairly close to your hips. Rise off your toes (lift heels) and lift your hips from the floor. Twist to the right and bump your left hip on the floor. Twist to the left and bump your right hip on the floor. Continue, alternating hips. When tired, rest, and then continue. Be sure to bump the fat part of the hips, not the spine.

If any of my readers would like to have my tested hip slimming exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 3 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Plays 'True Or False?'

PARIS (UPI) — Today was "fool the eye" time in the Paris fashion shows with the house of Jeanne Lanvin presenting false belts and jackets that weren't really jackets.

Using these two new points, designer Jules-Francois Crahay won rounds of wild applause from press and buyers for the first collection he has made for Lanvin. He worked for the house of Nina Ricci for 11 years.

His silhouette stayed the same, to the despair of the professional fashion journalists who demand change, but to the relief of women the world over who still like natural shoulders, a loose waist and narrow, short skirts.

Many of Crahay's suits had false belts of the same fabric, sewn in or merely indicated by stitching, well below the waistline for a low-slung effect. The "belt" had a real workable big buckle in front.

In addition to his suits with false belts, Crahay presented collarless simple suits that tied with loops on the side. All suit skirts were narrow with nary an accordion pleat in sight, unlike the other Paris collections.

Taking lead parts in Tuesday's annual meeting of Victoria Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society, were, left to right: Mrs. I. LeHuquet, Dr. Roy Ward, Mrs. J. L. W. McLean and Miss Edith Magee. Group was marking 50th anniversary.

Help—India and Nigeria Calling!

Pleas from church workers in India and Nigeria were heard when the Victoria Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society held its 50th annual meeting in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, Tuesday.

Miss Edith Magee, a Vancouver teacher who has spent 27 years in the Indian town of Jhansi, was the afternoon speaker.

She expressed concern about the lack of assistance given to Thibetan children who are now refugees in India.

"I would like to see the International Red Cross help in this problem but, so far, it has been the problem of the churches. The Indian Red Cross helped for a while then dwindled out."

She told how the Thibetan Dalai Lama had appealed to the churches in India for help. "At one time he had 1,500 children to care for, helpless and suffering from a variety of diseases. Last August we took in 20 of them at our school and there are now 150 in church schools throughout India."

In addition to the Thibetan refugees, the school at Jhansi also boards, feeds and educates 160 Indian children.

Miss Magee cited language as one of the difficulties facing those assisting the Thibetan refugees. "I stopped in Finland on my way home for furlough to speak to a European who knew the language. What I learned from her will be of great help."

Church workers at Jhansi are also trying to find a centre in the hills where the children can be taken away from the intense heat.

MEDICAL NEEDS

Dr. Roy Ward, who is the only doctor at the church's Nigerian hospital at Uburu, spoke at the evening session.

He told how Nigeria, with a population of 40 million people, is in desperate need of doctors and dentists.

"In Eastern Nigeria where our hospital is based, the population is roughly 10 million. Yet, there are only six dentists and less than 150 doctors."

Poverty is still a very real enemy in Nigeria with "less than 10 per cent of the population living on more than 180 dollars a year. The chief disease is malnutrition."

The Presbyterian Church has five hospitals in Nigeria, all of which are in rural areas. "Most government hospitals are in the cities or urban districts."

Dr. Ward pointed up budget differences. "The average government hospital operates on a yearly budget of £80,000. Ours is £5,000."

His hospital, with the exception of church workers' salaries, tries to be self-supporting with patients' fees helping to keep them "from going into the red."

"The average appendectomy costs $20 and a consultation, 30 to 40 cents. Even so, this often causes hardship for the patient and the whole family pools its resources to meet the costs."

Dr. Ward saw hope in the joint hospital system now being developed. "By this scheme, government officials sit on the board, approve budgets and make up any deficit."

Two of the church's hospitals are already in this scheme and it is hoped the others will follow suit.

Dr. Ward feels that the church hospitals will still have their place when the new system is completely in effect. Their main asset would be the calibre of their workers.

"Doctors who visited Nigerian government hospitals under Tom Dewey's Medico program told of their frustrations when they visited me at Uburu. The hours in those hospitals are from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and they told me how they would be in the middle of operations, only to find their staff walk out on them at the stroke of 2."

Dr. Ward is from Saskatoon. A Victorian, Miss Elsie Taylor, is a nursing sister at his hospital.

Mrs. I. LeHuquet, Vancouver, president of the British Columbia Synodical of the W.M.S., installed officers at ceremony held during the afternoon session.

Mrs. J. L. W. McLean was re-elected as president. Other officers are: Vice-president and recording secretary, Mrs. William Hogg; correspondence, Mrs. J. R. Howard; treasurer, Miss G. Scott; secretary for afternoon groups, Mrs. W. Holmes; evening groups, Mrs. N. Demers; girls' work, Mrs. R. B. Cochrane; children's work, Mrs. W. Klempa; home helpers, Miss E. Walker; welcome and welfare, Mrs. F. F. Osborn; literature, Mrs. C. Summers; Glad Tidings, Mrs. J. C. Scott; press, Mrs. A. B. Harvey; supply, Mrs. F. O. Jenkinson, and life membership, Mrs. D. A. MacDonald.

Newly-formed Victoria Unit of the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is planning its first project to raise money for research and to assist with costs of drugs and equipment for children stricken with the disease. Project will take the form of a raffle with tickets sold from February 1 to April 23. Seen with some of the articles to be raffled are, left to right, Mrs. S. Green, Mrs. J. W. Holmes, Mrs. W. Boniface and Mrs. Peter Young.

Quality, Not Price Gives Durability

Durability of any garment depends on quality and not price, members of Victoria branch, Consumers' Association of Canada, were told Monday.

Guest speaker, Jim McEvay, manager of a well-known cleaning establishment, went on to point out that by shopping for quality, one automatically obtains the seven keys to fabric service—good fiber content, yarn construction, fabric construction, color, finish, decoration, and construction of the garment itself.

Using wool as an example, Mr. McEvay stated that inferior quality wool will shrink from mechanical action, heat and moisture, even in a washing machine, while a superior quality will not.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. W. Rolls and thanked by Mrs. Jack Jones, membership convener.

President, Mrs. P. R. A. Coombs chaired the meeting which was held in the public library music room.

The following members were appointed to act as a consumers' complaint committee: Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, Mrs. J. A. Carter, Mrs. R. J. Penman and Mrs. W. Sowler.

Special guest, Mrs. Greenwood Rigby, CAC member from Toronto, was welcomed by Mrs. Coombs.

Banner-Hett Vows Exchanged

Daffodils, white chrysanthemums and white candles decorated Metropolitan United Church when Rev. Laura Butler heard the marriage vows of Sandra Mary Hett and Edwin (Ted) John Banner. Eric Boothroyd was organist.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon S. Hett, 3084 Jacklin Road, and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Banner of Sooke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white peau de soie satin that was styled on princess lines with a V-neckline and sleeves ending in lily points.

The short-tiered veil was held by three satin roses, edged with pearl-encrusted leaves. Only jewelry was a pearl pendant, set in gold on a gold chain. Pink sweetheart roses and mauve heather were in her bouquet.

Princess-lined gowns of crystalette were chosen by maid of honor, Miss Marilyn Michelson; bridesmaids, the Misses Sheila Benesh and Toni Rhind, the bride's cousin, and flower girl, Linda Banner, cousin of the groom. Maid of honor's gown was in powder blue and others in sky blue shade. Senior attendants carried pink and white carnation bouquets. The same flowers filled the basket carried by the tiny flower girl.

Larry Grunow was best man and ushering guests were Murray Nixon and Geoff Hett, the bride's brother.

Robert E. Sommers proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in Holyrood House. Pink carnations, pink candles and mauve heather decorated the head table which was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The cake was trimmed with pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom set on a pink and white lace heart.

Flower arrangements and bouquets were by Miss Dawn Cummings.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Seattle, the bride wore a bright pink wool suit, topped with a cerulean mink stole, gift of her parents. Black accessories and corsage of pale yellow roses completed the ensemble.

Newlyweds will make their home at Colwood.

Of Personal Interest

Tea Hostess

Mrs. William Alsdorf was a tea hour hostess on Monday at her home on Robert Street to honor Mexican students attending University of Victoria at present.

Tea table was centred with a Mexican cart filled with table napkins in a spring motif and surrounded by shells Mrs. Alsdorf had brought back with her from a trip to Mexico. Miniature sea horses and shells were arranged in a mobile from the chandelier above the table. Among other guests were Mrs. G. Higgs, also Mr. Eric Hutchison of the university.

Sign Register

Miss Alexandra B. Smith was the only Victorian to sign the register recently at British Columbia House, London, Eng. From other places on Vancouver Island were Mr. Michael E. Noble, Campbell River and Mrs. M. Ellen Cartwright of Qualicum.

From Winnipeg

Out-of-town guests at the recent Stenning-Moyes wedding here were Mr. R. M. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bellamey, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Darnell, all of Winnipeg.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second questior a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Deborah Allred, age 9, of Burlington, N.C., for her question:

Where do they get maple sugar?

All our sugary candies and yummy sweet goodies are gifts to us from the world of plants. Different plants give us the ingredients to make delicious chocolate and crunchy caramels, tangy licorice and the fresh flavors of mint and lemon. One plant even gives us the stuff to make chewing gum. And maple sugar is a gift from the maple tree.

Many different maple trees thrive in North America. Through the summer, they spread their shady branches high and wide. Their paper-thin leaves are like open hands bordered with sharp-pointed fingers. The boughs are hung with clusters of brown keys, which are really seeds fitted with wings for gliding away from the parent trees.

Come fall; the green leaves change to brighter colors. The red maple of the swampland changes to vivid scarlet. The shady sugar maple may change to yellow or rusty gold, bright orange or vivid scarlet. This is the friendly tree that gives us the hardest of the golden brown maple woods. It also gives us mouth-watering maple syrup to pour on our pancakes and crunchy maple sugar to make the sweetest of all sweet candies.

The sugar maple may stand as tall as 80 feet, which is as high as 12 tall men. It grows in the east, all the way from Canada down into the Southland. Some of the sugar maples of New England were planted by the Pilgrims more than 300 years ago. Most of our syrup and sugar comes from the sugar maples of New England and Canada. The sweet stuff comes from the sap that flows through the trunks and bare branches in early spring.

Sweet Maple Sap Boiled

The sugar maple needs the right weather to produce a lot of this sweet sap. It does best when spring brings spells of frost and thaw or when the nights are cold and the days are mild. As a rule, the time to gather the sap comes in March. The farmers crunch across the snow and drill holes sloping upward in the tree trunks. Each hole is perhaps an inch wide and two inches long. A spout is fitted into the opening. A pail is hung to catch the dripping sap as it oozes out of the tree.

The maple sap is pale and watery. It is boiled and boiled until the water escapes, leaving behind rich, dark maple syrup, sweeter than sweet. If the syrup is boiled some more, it becomes crunchy maple sugar. A good tree may give 10 gallons of sap, which will make a quart of syrup or two pounds of maple sugar.

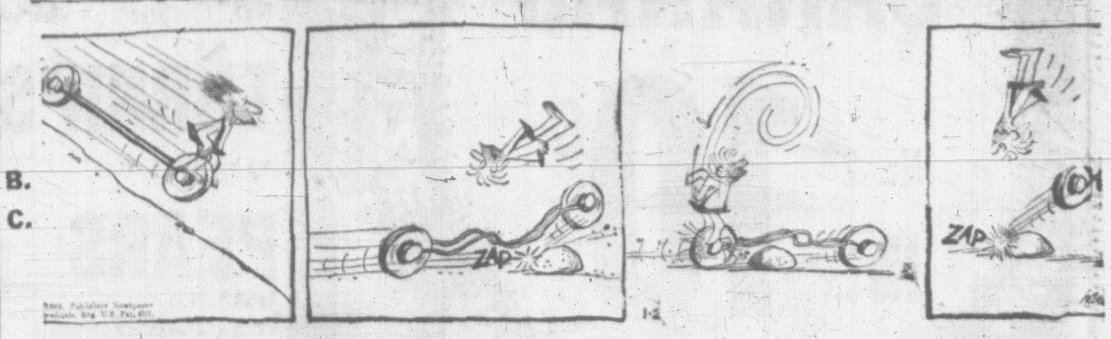

The sugary sap is gathered from the maples in Quebec and Ontario. Each year these friendly trees yield six million gallons of sap. Lots of work and endless patience are needed to turn these rivers of sap into 150,000 gallons of maple syrup or 600 tons of maple sugar.

Chess Meeting

Community Chest of Greater Victoria will hold its 27th annual meeting Feb. 4 at 6:30 p.m. in the Empress Hotel.

The affair will take the form of a no-host dinner and plaque awards will be presented to employee groups which achieved their quotas during the 1963 United Appeal fund drive.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — So here's a warning to Carroll Baker, Jane Fonda, Jayne Mansfield, Natalie Wood and all those other Hollywood chicks.

Barbara (Candy) Loden is so good as Marilyn Monroe in Arthur Miller's "After the Fall" that she has officially tossed her pajama tops into the ring to be the new American sex symbol . . . and deserves it, for she's had a tough, 10-year struggle to get her talents recognized.

"Barbara is a wonderful actress who has developed," Edie Adams said the other morning in Sardi's, "and, I should know . . ."

Miss Loden's first big job after her arrival from Asheville, N.C., was on the Ernie Kovacs TV show about 1954. She had briefly been a chorus gal at the Copacabana.

"Ernie was always figuring out crazy things for her to do," Edie remembered. "Practically every morning she would come out on camera rolled up in a rug. She was always getting a pie in her face or some thing like that."

Miss Loden (who married producer Larry Joachim) was in three flop shows, then "Compulsion," then did two Hollywood movies for Elia Kazen, before stealing the show at the new Repertory Theatre.

"She really is like Marilyn Monroe," a chap said backstage. "When she looked up at Arthur Miller, she thrust out her bosom, and gasped, and batted her eyes, like Marilyn used to do."

Is "no-cal bourbon" coming? Dr. Allen E. Stearn, retired head of the chemistry department at the University of Missouri, and his wife, Esther, retired bacteriologist, are working on "no cal booze" at their home in Chicago —and think they've got it . . . Liz Taylor's writers and lawyers are issuing another statement that "Elizabeth will not buy a divorce" which will specify Eddie Fisher's alleged demands . . .

Our story on Jackie Gleason's $6 million TV deal with CBS caused Richard K. Doan to write that it was "given exclusively to a syndicated gossip columnist." Thank you, sir, it was. "Gossip," once a nasty word, today is just news that hasn't been announced yet . . . But we booted one reporting June Wilkinson married Bob Caplan. She phoned us gently from New Orleans that she's dating Caplan, Stuart Schfartz of Detroit and Bob Steuer, producer, but isn't even engaged: "Maybe I'm chicken."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL . . .

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrive April 1; they will be at the Regency Hotel . . . Sonny Liston rented a nine-room house with an indoor pool in Miami . . . Comic Jackie Mason, who was clobbered with insults by Jack E. Leonard at the Stage Deli, said happily: "Now I know he likes me—he only insults his friends" . . . A N.Y. manufacturer got a 10G loan by putting up as collateral his prize collection of pornographic films.

That isn't Sophia Loren registered at the Americana (as mistakenly noted by Celebrity Bulletin); it's a gal named Sophia Lorenz, who cherishes the error . . . A Latin quarter musician named Sam Bitner has an unusual chore: Several times a year he sends a 50-pound bag of Indian nuts to Jerry Lewis in L.A. Seems you can't get 'em out there.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "If this city raises bus fares again," writes Jack Herbert from Chicago, "I'm gonna start going out with girls in my own neighborhood."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Joe Silver says he began to suspect his wife wasn't much of a cook when she tried to open a milk container with a can opener.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Only fools and dead men don't change their minds. Dead men can't. Fools won't." — John H. Patterson.

EARL'S PEARLS: In Hollywood, says Tony Webster (author of "The Marriage Counselor") a marriage is considered successful if both parties can agree on the divorce lawyer.

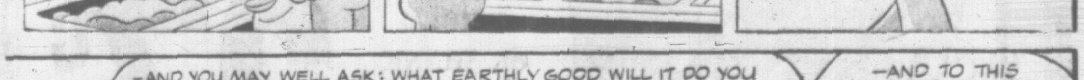

That's earl, brother.

GORGE VIEW ADDITION PLANNED

An eight-suite addition to the Gorge View Society's low-rent development for senior citizens will be built this spring at a cost of about $40,000.

The development, on Harriet between Gorge and Burnside, is sponsored by Victoria presbytery of the United Church of Canada. It already has three buildings.

A variety of bequests and provincial government grants will be used to finance the new building which it is hoped will reduce the current waiting list of 18 elderly widows.

The society's annual meeting recently elected Paul Naftel as chairman of the board, Keith Henderson as president, Gerald Neely as secretary and W. E. Scythes as treasurer.

IWA To Take Scholarship Applications

Applications for scholarships to the second term of the Labor College of Canada are being accepted by Victoria's largest union, Local 1-118, International Woodworkers of America.

The cllege opened last year for the first time at University of Montreal.

Scholarships are offered by Canadian Labor Congress and local union organizations, one of which is the IWA coast region council. The local union has a three-man committee to handle applications and information and has agreed to reimburse lost wages of anyone attending on a scholarship.

Sessions are May 11-July 3 and June 8-July 31. Deadline for applications is Feb. 29.

Scout Meeting

Greater Victoria Region Boy Scouts Association will hold its annual meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at area headquarters 1034 Johnson Street.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

One of the most successful "dodgers" in entertainment has been comedian Gary Morton. He's been ducking a guest shot on his wife's situation comedy show for two years.

Stephen

He finally went the route Monday, appearing with her for the first time in her weekly show.

His wife, by the way, is Lucille Ball.

"I wanted to avoid comparison between the two of us," Morton says, "but I'm a golf nut and this particular show is all about golf, so I could not turn it down."

He also wanted to be around with professionals Jimmy Demaret and Bo Winninger, who were guest stars on what turned out to be a mildly funny episode.

Morton admitted he was scared to death when he began playing the role but "Lucy's such a pro, within three minutes she had me feeling right at home."

"I'm used to working in front of a crowd in clubs. Sometimes Lucille joins me on stage for a couple of minutes. That's when she goes into shock, and it's my job to put her at ease."

What kind of a guy is the man who filled the void left by the divorce of Desi Arnaz and Lucy?

He's described as a relaxed, easy-going type who would rather play golf than knock himself out in night clubs. For that reason he won't accept club dates unless there is a golf course nearby and the weather is good. This limits him to Las Vegas and other "follow the sun" spots.

He reportedly doesn't meddle in his wife's business affairs. She is president of Desilu Studios, star of her own show, and as a result entirely on her own.

When she pours out her troubles at home he remains a good listener, not an adviser. Left-handed golfer Morton is also trying to make a golfer of his famous comedienne wife.

He claims they have a lot of time together. She's home every evening except when filming the show Thursday nights. He accompanies her and warms up the audience before the cameras start rolling.

Morton is also one of her biggest fans. It would seem to be an ideal match since there are no personality clashes in public appearances.

Their joint appearance Monday was very easy to take. Though it was no comedy blockbuster, there were enough light moments to make the program quite enjoyable. However, I can't see it as a forerunner of comedy appearances in the vein of the late Lucy and Desi shows.

★ ★ ★

ONE BIT: Producer Allen Funt is reported by "Variety" as saying he doesn't think his new CBS-TV series, "Tell It to the Camera," is particularly successful. Frankly, it falls into the same category as "Candid Camera" which is about as funny as a broken leg.

BIRTH CONTROL

Doctor Defies Catholic Church

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—On Sunday mornings Dr. Anne Biezanek, mother of seven, walks to her Roman Catholic parish church, kneels at the altar rail and waits for communion. The priest passes by, murmuring, "pardon."

Dr. Biezanek has been refused the sacraments since Jan. 12 for starting a birth control clinic for Catholic women in her home. Her defiance of the church has drawn the attention of Catholics throughout Britain. Several newspapers have sided with her, drawing a parallel with a Catholic doctor in the U.S., Dr. John Rock, who has urged the church to reconsider its position on birth control.

Scores of letters have come in supporting the clinic since she opened it in November. But her own marriage is in jeopardy, and Most Rev. Eric Grasar, bishop of Shrewsbury, has written asking her to close the clinic and show "true repentance."

"I cannot do what the bishop asks because I am obliged in my conscience to do this work and also to remain a practicing Catholic," she says.

"I didn't come into this work on theoretical grounds. I came into it the hard way, having had 10 pregnancies and seven living children in 13 years. I use contraceptives and I am not ashamed to do so. I will prescribe them for any Catholic patient who needs them and asks for them."

Dr. Biezanek, 36, lives in Wallasey, across the Mersey River from the grey industrial city of Liverpool. Her own suburb is a drab collection of docks and working-class homes, including her own. Her husband, born in Poland, is a ship's steward on freighters.

The doctor comes from a different background. A Scotswoman, she was educated at Dartington Hall, an unconventional coeducational school, and the University of Aberdeen Medical School. She became a Catholic at 19 and married at 21.

Until two years ago she opposed birth control, which to her represented "a quagmire of impurity." Then repeated pregnancies threatened her health. She spent five years working in a mental hospital, and some of her patients were women whose health had been affected by childbearing. She underwent an emotional crisis which she describes like this:

"I wanted to be a Joan of Arc. I wanted to die for the principle of purity. But dying is out of fashion. God does not want any more martyrs."

Instead, she decided to place herself against her church and open a clinic in her home. One room is set aside for it, and she has named the clinic for St. Martin de Porres, the 17th century Peruvian half-caste who befriended the outcasts of Lima.

Dr. Biezanek says her husband, Jan, originally supported her work. But after the conflict with the church came into the open, he had a change of heart and threatened legal action against her unless she closed the clinic.

"He now thinks he is appearing in the eyes of the public as a bad Roman Catholic," she said. "I don't know if he is contemplating divorce or separation because he is away at sea now. But whatever he has in mind, I want him to know I will never give up the clinic now."

VICTORIA DIVORCES

Divorces were granted at Victoria Courthouse Monday to:

Ella M. Moss, 1528 Monterey Avenue, Victoria, from Robert E. Moss, 24 San Jose Avenue, Victoria. They were married here in 1941.

Henry J. Darwin, 1446 Jamaica Road, Victoria, from Joan Darwin, 11907 65th Street, Edmonton, Alta. They were maried in Victoria in 1960.

Thomas G. Cowan, Saturna Island, from Beverly J. Cowan, 2647 Wentworth Avenue, Langford. They were married at Lulu Island in 1954.

Loraine Marie Denham, 1337 Grant Street, Victoria, from James H. Denham, 906 McClure Street, Victoria. They were married at Saskatoon in 1950.

Anna R. Christian, 3675 Ophir Street, Victoria, from Charles Christian, 3901 Dawe Road, Victoria. They were married at Winnipeg in 1960.

William J. Fraser, 180 St. Charles Street, Victoria, from Myrtle E. Fraser, 639 Battery Street, Victoria. They were married at Toronto in 1941.

Verna Deaust, Beaver Creek Road, Port Alberni, from Joseph Deaust, Port Alberni. They were married in New Westminster in 1954.

Myrtle A. Roberts, Duncan, V.I., from W. Roberts, Duncan. They were married at Duncan in 1960.

Miss Prangnell Again Heads Indian Arts

Re-elected president of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society is Miss E. V. Prangnell, 1026 Park Blvd.

Other officers elected at the annual meeting in the public library Tuesday night were:

First vice-president Rodney Beavan; second vice-president Chief Samuel Sam; treasurer Miss Mary Adamson; correspondence secretary Miss E. F. Tervo; recording secretary Mrs. D. G. Esselmont.

Advisory council members are Chiefs Edwin Underwood, John Albany and Edward Joe; Mrs. Edward Joe, Mrs. Sam Joseph, Harry Underwood, Mrs. A. J. Tullis, Mrs. A. Tate, Miss M. K. Broadhurst, Miss Barbara Beattie, D. R. MacLaren.

Gory Film Stresses Road Hazards

Oak Bay school students saw a gory film Tuesday that a policeman hopes they never forget.

Oak Bay Police Sgt. John Green will likely get his wish.

The movie, showing the agony of persons dying in road accidents, impressed the students. Particularly the color scenes of blood-smeared victims in highway accidents and the sound track of their actual screams.

The movie, made by the Ohio Highway Patrol, was designed to back up talks on highway safety that Sgt. Green gave to students at Oak Bay Junior and Secondary High Schools.

Sgt. Green said youthful drivers sometimes are not aware of the responsibility they have in driving a vehicle. When they realize how dangerous a car can be it is sometimes too late to do any good, he said.

New Police Commissioner Heading South

The identity of Victoria's new police commissioner may now be known but he himself still doesn't know of his appointment.

That's the latest word on the situation surrounding the appointment of John G. Martin to the city police commission.

Mr. Martin was called a "mystery man" at the time he was appointed because no one knew anything about him.

He is one of a handful of people expected to guide the city force in its modernizing program.

The latest report about Mr. Martin is that he is in Mexico now "and heading south." Relatives of his in the city said they don't know where he is going or when he will be back.

They also said Mr. Martin doesn't know yet he has been appointed a police commissioner.

Mr. Martin came to Victoria 10 years ago and is now retired. Last year he served as a poll clerk in the provincial election and he once was a village councillor in Alberta. Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black nominated him for the police commission.

Taxi Despatcher Paul Reid Dies

A man with an ear for voices died Tuesday after 50 years in Victoria.

He was Paul Reid, 55, of 2501 Central, despatcher for most of his working life at Blue Line taxi depot.

Mr. Reid was well known to city businessmen and was said to be able to recognize more voices on the telephone than any other person in Victoria.

Born at Owen Sound, Ont., he came to Victoria when he was five, and graduated from school at 13.

He worked with Murphy Electric before joining Blue Line Taxi, in which he became a partnership in the Pacific Building.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Victorians Win Honors At Bridge

Two members of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club have won honors at the American Contract Bridge League's week-long western conference tournament in Vancouver. Nearly 1,000 players took part.

Tony Marsh, 954 Newport, won the mixed pairs championship in partnership with Mrs. Mary Adams of Vancouver.

Mr. Marsh won second place in the men's pairs with William Weinstein of Vancouver and third place in the open pairs championship with Mrs. Ricci Nickells of 1878 Cochrane Street, Victoria.

Richard Walsh and Erik Paulsen of Los Angeles won the open pairs championship with a score of 208—40 points ahead of the second pair, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Ballard of Mercer Island, Washington.

Couple Remanded

BLUE RIVER, B.C. (CP)—A couple charged with exposing one of their children to danger in connection with a house fire in which three children died were remanded one week by District Magistrate D. M. MacDonald.

AIR TRANSPORT BOARD
OTTAWA, CANADA
January 23, 1964.

NOTICE
REVIEW OF COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICES IN THE COASTAL AREA OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Air Transport Board has received a number of applications for licences or amendments to licences involving the establishment of or changes in air services affecting the coastal area of British Columbia. In dealing with these applications the Board proposes to also review the adequacy of the commercial air services in the area, consider representations from all interested parties and all applications for licences or amendments thereto filed with the Board contemplating or affecting commercial air services in the area. The area of British Columbia covered by the review is that part of the province south of Alaska, west of the coastal mountain range and north of the boundary of the U.S.A.

Pursuant to this notice further applications may be filed with the Air Transport Board for licences to operate commercial air services in the area or for amendments to licences now in force which the applicants consider will better satisfy the public requirement for air services in the various communities in the area. Such applications must comply with the requirements of A.T.B. Circular No. 8/51 dated March 10, 1951, and be received by the Board not later than Saturday, February 29, 1964.

Board hearings will be held in May, 1964, at Prince Rupert, Ocean Falls, Campbell River and Vancouver to afford interested parties an opportunity to give evidence and to afford all carriers an opportunity to have their applications heard near their base of operations. Applicants, concurrently with the filing of applications, should advise the Board at which of these points they wish to have their applications heard. Applicants already having filed applications with the Board should confirm that they wish their applications to be heard during the general review and their preference as to the place of hearing.

The public is hereby notified that this review of air services may result in changes being made by the Board to licences and commercial air services now in force. The Board will not consider itself restricted to the consideration of applications filed pursuant to this notice and the decisions of the Board, based on the evidence presented to it, will be directed toward a pattern of licences authorizing commercial air services considered best suited to satisfy the public requirement.

Following the receipt by the Board of applications filed pursuant to this notice a further public notice will be issued by the Board giving the hearing dates and listing the applications to be dealt with. Air carriers, government departments, public bodies, private groups and individuals will be invited to file submissions respecting the applications, and the general review and to attend the hearings and give evidence.

AIR TRANSPORT BOARD,
(Signed) D. F. Quirt,
Secretary.

Labor Link Vote Set For Civil Servants

Provincial civil servants will complete a ballot next month on whether they should rejoin the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The B.C. Government Employees' Association cut ties with the federation in late 1960 after the Social Credit government revoked the privilege of union dues checkoff from their pay.

The reason was political support of the New Democratic Party by the labor group.

Subsequently the government made it illegal for any union dues to be used for political purposes.

BY FEB. 24

A mail ballot circulated among 8,500 BCGEA members will be completed by Feb. 24.

It asks if they favor affiliation with the labor federation.

BCGEA spokesmen in favor of affiliation say there is no longer any reason to deny it.

They point out that 1962 legislation bans any political use of union funds; they also say that the government obviously does not intend to ever return the checkoff privilege.

Those who don't want to rejoin the federation say it has in recent years held a "politically partisan stand" and civil servants should not be associated in any way with any political party.

Is Our Police Doctor Continental Rarity?

City lawyer George Gregory suggested Monday that Victoria's police doctor is the only expert in North America who would testify about a man being impaired without seeing him behind the wheel.

He said only Dr. E. L. McNiven would estimate a driver's alcohol blood count without any prior knowledge of the man.

AT YALE

Dr. McNiven replied that he didn't think he was.

"There are men at the Yale School (of Alcohol Studies) who will do that."

The exchange was at the Esquimalt police court trial of Charles Bakhtour, 2808 Irma, for impaired driving.

Bakhtour pleaded not guilty but after hearing Dr. McNiven's evidence changed his plea.

EGO BOOSTER

Mr. Gregory said he was entering the change of plea "at the risk of boosting Dr. McNiven's ego."

Magistrate William Ostler remanded Bakhtour until Feb. 3 for a probation report about his licence and for sentence.

Constable Edward Taylor testified he arrested Bakhtour after seeing him weaving over the centre line of Admirals Road shortly before 6 p.m. Dec. 3. Bakhtour's breath smelled strongly of alcohol but he denied having had any liquor to drink.

ONCE AGAIN
DAILY
OF PEOPLE WHO BUY!

In conducting the 1963 Canadian Consumer Survey, the question was asked, "What type of advertising influences your buying most — Radio? Television? Daily Newspapers? Magazines?" . . . Tabulation of the responses from 40,847 homes from coast to coast produced the following results:

Radio..... 5%
Television..... 21%
Daily Newspapers....67.5%
Magazines..... 5.5%
No Answer..... 1%

The preference shown above for daily newspapers confirms CDNPA's Canada-wide survey of two years ago. The findings at that time were verified by an independent research organization. It is true today, as it has always been, that consumers use daily newspapers as their buying guide.

For a workmanlike speech that makes its points with a minimum of fuss and feathers, I commend to you Frank Calder, the good and now greying NDP member for Atlin.

It would be unfair to suggest that Mr. Calder's remarks to the Legislature are tamely predictable. The amiable leader of the Nishka band has been known to take the warpath with a whoop and a holler when baiting from the government side overtaxed his patience.

But when Frank Calder rises to speak for his northern riding of 61,700 square miles, we know that a hearty breath of the British Columbia outdoors will presently invade the columned and high-ceilinged chamber.

Son of Chief

His constituents range from trappers to industrialists.

"Within Atlin District's electoral boundaries," he intones, "are potentialities involving forestry, fisheries, big game and water power."

The son of a Nishka chief then demonstrates that he does his homework faithfully by delving into the needs of his enormous bailiwick.

Why ruin southern farm valleys, he asks, "just because the whole lower mainland is getting over-populated and over-crowded?"

He feels that government should support new city and park sites for his north country, which he insists has a rich enough future to warrant the planting of towns.

Travel Tough

Not for the first time, Mr. Calder urges a copper smelter for the Portland Canal area.

He tells of a big game guide who didn't get to vote because he couldn't find an enumerator in time.

"Mine is an area in which travel is quite difficult," says the sturdy member who more than once has started his sessional journey to Victoria by canoe. "Transportation depends upon weather conditions."

Because of this, "it is absolutely impossible to try and register people in my riding in the seven days provided, even if the registrar of voters was to use an aircraft, and flying weather conditions were in his favor."

Wrong Gov't

Presently, and inevitably, Frank Calder takes his cut at the way in which Indian affairs are being handled.

"We are fighting the wrong government," he declares after an excursion into history for evidence to justify aboriginal land claims now before Ottawa. "This is the government we should be battling!"

But the government ranged behind its ornate brown hardwood desks across the alley of lush red carpet was in no mood for battle on Tuesday. A state dinner was in the offing, and an early adjournment hoped for.

Perfect Decorum

Even Highways Minister Gaglardi, first speaker of the afternoon, failed to evoke more than a perfunctory snarl or two from the Opposition ranks.

It was a day of well-nigh perfect decorum, the sort when the true stature and function of Parliament shows plain to be admired.

Although the student visitors in the speakers' gallery would no doubt have preferred ructions, the picture they took away with them was a better . . . and I think a truer . . . remembrance of our Legislature at work.

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Heavy fighting has broken out in central Laos involving Communist, neutralist and right-wing forces, neutralist and right-wing military communiques reported today.

A right-wing communique said Communist Pathet Lao and Viet Minh forces have launched simultaneous heavy attacks against neutralist positions south of the Nam Theun River and against right-wing forces in the Nhomarat area.

Another communique issued by neutralist headquarters at Muong Phanh said continuing attacks by Pathet Lao and Viet Minh forces which began Jan. 26 have forced neutralists troops to retreat.

MOSCOW PROTESTS

Reds Admit Destroying U.S. Plane

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today one of its fighters downed a U.S. jet trainer over East Germany and the three officers aboard were killed.

ANTI FAG

Campaign to publicize health hazards of smoking will be launched by U.S. Public Health Service, Surgeon-General Luther L. Terry announced today. Campaign's emphasis will be on youth.

The disclosure of the fate of the trainer plane came in a Soviet protest note released here accusing the United States of a provocative flight designed to increase tensions.

The plane vanished Tuesday on a flight from Wiesbaden U.S. air base in West Germany and air force officials said it apparently lost its way. The Russians had been asked for information.

The Soviet note said the plane "intruded" over Communist East Germany and ignored warning shots from a Soviet fighter plane directing it to land.

The note did not actually say the twin-jet T-39 training plane was shot down.

The Soviet announcement said the plane "did not react" to warning fire from a Soviet fighter plane in the area of Weimar.

"Therefore, the Soviet fighter had to take measures in compliance with air defence instructions which are well known to the American command," a Soviet note said.

"As a result the intruder plane crashed near Vogelsberg village, 20 kilometres (12 miles) northeast of Erfurt."

As distributed by the news agency Tass, the Soviet note said:

"The Soviet government cannot regard this intrusion otherwise than as a gross provocation by the American military authorities, aimed at aggravating the situation in central Europe."

Tass said the Soviet Union had warned repeatedly that resolute steps would be taken against the intrusion of military aircraft into the air space of Communist East Germany.

"The Soviet government," the note added, "deems it necessary to stress that all responsibility for this regrettable incident rests with the authorities of the United States."

Canada Scores 8-0 Win

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Canada shut out Switzerland 8-0 today to join Russia and Czechoslovakia at the top of the standing in the first round of the Olympic hockey championships.

The Canadians were held to a 1-0 first period lead on the sensational goalkeeping of Gerlad Rigolet of Switzerland but they broke the game wide open with five goals in the second period and another pair in the third.

Despite the lopsided score the Swiss netminder was the outstanding player on his team as he performed all sorts of contortions to block labelled drives by the Canadians who parked in front of his net throughout most of the 60 minutes.

Rigolet made 61 saves against only 28 by goalkeepers Seth Martin and Ken Broderick in Canada's net.

Broderick who entered the game at the start of the third period made seven saves.

Her parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, and all other members of the Dutch royal family are Protestants.

Man Charged In Beating

(See Also Page 10)

A 30-year-old man was charged in Courtenay police court this morning with assault with intent to commit an indictable offence.

John Hopton Twist, no fixed address, was remanded without plea until Saturday. He is being held without bail.

Courtenay RCMP said other charges are pending.

Twist was arrested near Cumberland Tuesday morning after a high-speed car chase. Two rifles, a shotgun and a knife were recovered.

The arrest came after a man attacked Mrs. Wilma Mueller, Riverside Hotel manageress. A man also held Mrs. Phyllis Pratt, Marsden Rd., Courtenay, at knife-point for 4½ hours later in the morning.

Columbia Property Acquisition Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Acquisition of lands required for reservoirs created by Columbia River development projects will not be undertaken until Parliament has approved the Columbia River treaty, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced today.

The authority, the government agency in charge of the multi-million dollar dam construction on the Columbia, said about 2,000 people and 650 homes will be affected by the reservoir to be created by the Arrow Lakes dam, scheduled for construction five miles west of Castlegar.

An authority spokesman said each property owner would be treated on an individual basis.

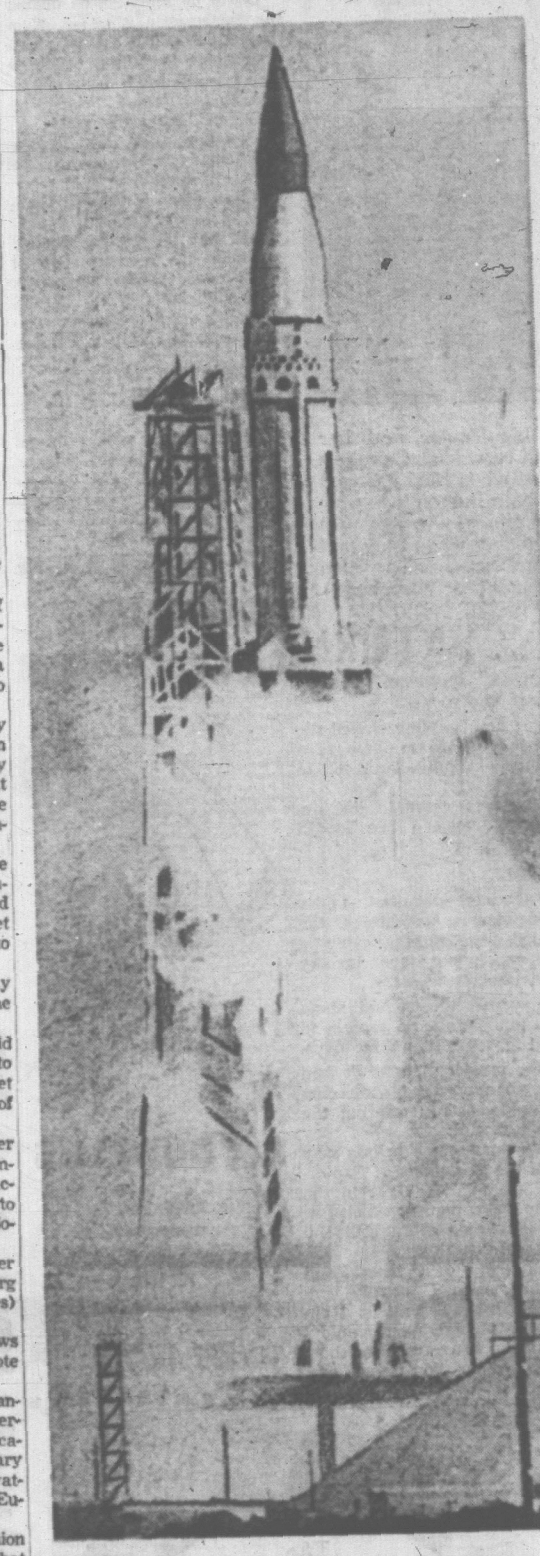

"We will strive in each case for a settlement which is fair and reasonable to all parties," he said.

Record U.S. Payload Rockets Into Orbit

BRILLIANT tail of flame is left behind as huge Saturn I rocket blasts skyward from Cape Kennedy today. The 84-foot upper portion of rocket, weighing almost 19 tons, was successfully put into orbit. (AP Wirephoto.)

Saturn Hoists 19-Ton Satellite

(Times News Services)

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—A Saturn I super-rocket propelled the world's heaviest satellite into orbit today and presumably vaulted the United States over Russia in the race for space rocket supremacy.

The mighty rocket, 164 feet tall and weighing 562 tons, flooded its launching pad with a rush of flame and sent a thunderous shock wave rolling across Cape Kennedy as it blasted off at 11:25 a.m. EST on its first full-scale test flight.

Slightly more than 10 minutes later, the Saturn I—its second stage live for the first time—injected into orbit a mammoth 84-foot - long satellite weighing 37,700 pounds, nearly three times heavier than the Russian heavyweight champions of space.

The satellite is little more than a mass of metal and sand with a radio tracking beacon. But its presence in the sky demonstrates American capability for the future and the U.S. determination to grasp the space rocket power lead.

No scientific value was attached to the huge satellite because of the research nature of the flight.

On the test, the Saturn I — forerunner of rockets which will boost American astronauts to the moon—chalked up these milestone performances:

—For the first time, its massive eight-engine, first - stage power plant developed full thrust of 1,500,000 pounds — equal to 34,000,000 horsepower or enough to power more than 200,000 standard automobiles. On four earlier flights of the first stage only, the thrust was held to 1,300,000 pounds.

PROVIDES MUSCLE

—The second stage, a cluster of six motors driven by high-energy liquid - hydrogen fuel, was flown alive for the first time and provided the muscle to shove the satellite into orbit. That stage, cutting in after the first had burned 145 seconds, delivered 90,000 pounds of thrust.

Saturn I's claim to the title of world's most-powerful rocket is based on official U.S. estimates that its first stage generates about 50-per-cent more thrust than Russia's largest booster and the fact that there is no evidence of Soviet progress with liquid-hydrogen fuel.

"There is no question" that the success of the Saturn shot "did take us ahead of the Russians in the ability to carry a payload into orbit," said Dr. Robert Seamans, associate ad-

Wilson Plans Ottawa Visit On Shipyards

Mayor R. B. Wilson announced a delegation will go to Ottawa in the next two weeks to impress the federal government with the shipbuilding crisis here.

Vancouver officials may join the delegation to make it a West Coast group.

Decision to prepare a brief and send a delegation was made at a special meeting in the mayor's office this morning. It was attended by nine civic, business, industrial, labor and political representatives.

Prime concern of shipping circles here is the rumored possibility one or two of the potential three Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort conversions will be given to east coast yards. But the delegation also is likely to make a pitch for more ship contracts as well.

"We are going to prepare a brief and we plan to send a delegation to Ottawa as soon as it is ready—probably in the first half of February," Mayor Wilson said this morning.

HEATHMAN CASE

New Probe Ordered In Slaying

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered a new investigation into the 1960 slaying of a Vernon newsboy both confessed and denied by Charles Murral Heathman.

Mr. Bonner indicated Heathman will not be released from Essondale Mental Hospital until the investigation is over.

Heathman, who is 40, said Tuesday he knew who killed 10-year-old Donald Ottley and that people in Vernon knew, too.

"Anytime anybody says he knows who murdered somebody—we take note of it," Mr. Bonner said.

Heathman was originally found guilty of the 1960 summer slaying, then convicted again after a second trial but freed after a successful appeal.

But in 1962, Heathman confessed to a Vancouver newspaper that he was in fact the killer.

Now he denies it again after 20 months in Essondale, where a medical board of two doctors has cleared his release to a sponsor.

Mr. Bonner said police will interview Heathman in Essondale to determine "what weight to attach" to his new statement.

NATO Rejected; Cyprus Wants UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Greek-Cypriots have indicated they want a United Nations force to keep peace on the Mediterranean island and not the NATO contingent Britain has been trying to muster.

Zenon Rossides, Cyprus' delegate to the United Nations, told Secretary-General U Thant in New York Tuesday a UN peacekeeping force would be acceptable on his territory. Thant appealed to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey for "the utmost restraint" in handling the explosive situation.

On the island, Greek-Cypriot newspapers assailed the United States and other Western nations expected to take a hand in the crisis and asked that the case be placed before the UN Security Council.

American and British diplomats strove to keep the lid on tempers in Athens, Ankara and Nicosia as signs mounted that U.S. troops might soon be assigned to help keep Turkish and

UNITED NATIONS Secretary-General U Thant arrived in Rabat, Morocco today to begin a nine-nation tour of Africa, including a hastily-arranged visit to the Congo. Thant will study a proposal for a communal security force to preserve peace in Africa.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Government sources today expressed reservations over a possible Canadian contribution to any NATO "police force" on Cyprus.

An authoritative source said no request for Canadian military personnel to serve in such a mission had yet been received from NATO headquarters in Paris.

Froslid and Controversial Plates

NEW YORKER WINS CASE

Auto Licence Ads Vetoed

NEW YORK (AP)—A state supreme court justice ruled Tuesday that New York motorists don't have to advertise New York world's fair on their 1964 licence plates if they don't want to. He said they may insist on new plates without any slogans.

However, the decision by Judge Harold J. Tessler that present New York plates are improper is not expected to have any immediate effect, pending a state motor vehicle commission meeting.

Most 1964 plates already are in the hands of motorists, bearing the slogan on the botom "N.Y., world's fair." The deadline for their installation on the state's more than 5,000,000 registered motor vehicles is Saturday.

Suit against the world's fair slogan was brought by Kenneth Froslid, 32, a magazine picture editor who lives in Port Washington, N.Y. He owns a convertible, a station wagon and a camping trailer. He declared:

"I've nothing personal against the world's fair. What stirred me up was the arbitrary way the legend was put on the plates in the face of some serious questions of law.

"The state has no right to compel me — without even asking—to carry fee advertising on my car."

Froslid's lawyer contended that the case involved the improper use of state property for free advertising for the benefit of a private corporation.

Judge Tessler ruled that Froslid—or any other motorist—"legally was entitled to the issuance of a proper registration plate."

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

When Canada's chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay visited here this week there was more on his mind than a preliminary look at the western extremity of his future job of voter redistribution.

Castonguay

He found time to meet with a host of old navy buddies. Mr. Castonguay, who started in the federal elections office in the 30s as a messenger, went navy during Second World War.

He joined the Yarrows-built frigate HMCS Orkney here in May, 1945, and rose to be her captain. He served also in Saguenay and Annapolis, one of the infamous four-pipers.

Now navigating Canada's voter distribution, Mr. Castonguay next will make a two-year study of methods of setting up a permanent voters' list and improvements in absentee voting systems.

The first major change in our voting methods though, he predicts, will be lowering of the voter minimum age limit to 18.

Two Victoria women—Miss Olive Watherston and Mrs. G. M. Stewart—are looking for local veterans of the ill-fated Gallipoli landings of 1915.

Both were nursing sisters with the British and Dominion troops which made the ill-fated landings and they have been invited to join a 50th anniversary pilgrimage to Gallipoli in May, 1965.

"We would like to hear from any other Gallipoli veterans who would like to go with us," Miss Watherston said.

"I don't think there were Canadian troops at Gallipoli, but there were four Canadian hospital units—two at Lemnos, one at Salonika and one at Cairo.

"These units travelled out in the warship HMS Asturias in which I was serving. As far as I remember, they were all from British Columbia."

Mrs. Stewart, a past president of the Nursing Sisters Association of Canada, is going to London Feb. 9 to find out more about the Gallipoli pilgrimage now being organized there.

He said it will be investigated to its fullest extent.

This could mean many weeks if a comprehensive probe of the Vernon area is undertaken.

Mr. Bonner also disclosed that Dr. Joseph Thomas, his department's consultant psychiatrist, had examined Heathman last week.

Dr. Thomas agreed with the medical board, which consisted of two doctors who are not qualified psychiatrists.

Mr. Bonner said this examination was at the request of his department.

'MANY OPINIONS'

The attorney - general deplored criticism of Heathman's impending release and attacks by the political Opposition on B.C. mental health services and laws.

He brushed off a blast from retired Supreme Court Justice A. M. Manson with the comment: "Mr. Manson is a man of many opinions."

Mr. Manson said in Vancouver Mr. Bonner should investigate to see whether Heathman has committed any other offence similar to the child slaying he once confessed, then denied.

The ex-judge, who sat on the first of the two murder trials at which Heathman was convicted, blamed the attorney-general for the situation which will see Heathman released.

He said he knows of no other case like it in legal history.

INEVITABLE

Mr. Manson said Heathman's release was inevitable.

If it had not come through the decision of a medical board of review it would have come through habeas corpus or other legal proceedings.

He blamed the attorney-general for failure to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the decision of the B.C. Court of Appeal to acquit the twice-convicted man.

He expressed deep concern that "a guilty and very dangerous man" is to be released into society.

Heathman obtained the release order through an appeal system allowed by the Mental Health Act passed in 1941.

The law reflected "the best thinking of the day," Mr. Bonner said.

"Until comparatively recent times people with psychoanalytical qualifications have not been readily available in the province."

FEW PSYCHIATRISTS

There are, in fact, only "relatively few" practising psychiatrists in B.C. today, he added.

"The fact that Heathman has taken advantage of the appeal procedure for release under the Mental Health Act has been used by some people as criticism of the procedure," Mr. Bonner said.

"It should be remembered, however, this is a safeguarding procedure to prevent anyone being improperly retained in a mental hospital and the key thrown away for lack of formal review available to the patient.

'NO JUSTIFICATION'

"Whether or not a person should be in a mental hospital must come down to a view of his mental state, and if competent medical authorities say a person is not insane, regardless of who that person is, there can be no justification for his being retained in custody of an institution."

Mr. Bonner said that even "order-in-council" patients, detained at "the pleasure" of the provincial cabinet are allowed a periodic review, and there have been a regular number of releases over the years.

LBJ TRIUMPHANT

In Washington President Johnson hailed the historic shot as a "giant step forward."

Dr. Wernher von Braun, father of the Saturn, said current estimates place Soviet booster power at between 700,000 and 900,000 pounds of thrust compared with 1.5 million pounds of thrust of the Saturn-1 booster stage.

Television viewers clearly saw clouds and the Florida peninsula as the Saturn-1 soared into space, flashing back to earth the pictures from a television camera aboard the rocket.

The new satellite circled the globe every 95 minutes at a distance ranging from 162 to 467 miles.

Scientists estimate its lifetime at between one month and one year.

VISIBLE

Scientists said that, under good viewing conditions, the second stage could probably be seen as a bright star in the sky as it circled the globe.

However, the second stage was not exected to remain in orbit for more than a few days.

The president, after it had been announced that the rocket had succeeded in orbiting the satellite, said:

"We have come a long way from the 31 pounds of Explorer I on Jan. 31, 1958, to the some 37,000 pounds which has just been placed in orbit by Saturn I.

"On behalf of a grateful and proud nation, I warmly congratulate the scientists, technicians, managers and employees of the space team for their contribuation to peace and progress."

. . . CYPRUS

Greek-Cypriots from each other's throats.

The London Daily Sketch reports that U.S. 6th Fleet ships with combat marines aboard had been ordered to "within striking distance of Cyprus as fears of a Turkish invasion swept the island."

Britain, whose military reserve has been drained by trouble in Cyprus, East Africa and Malaysia, has suggested that the United States provide some help. Similar appeals have been made to Canada, West Germany, France and Italy, all members of the North Atlantic alliance, along with Greece and Turkey.

Spain Space Station

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spain and the United States have announced plans for the construction and operation of a space tracking and data acquisition station about 30 miles west of Madrid. The station will be used primarily to support U.S. sonar and planetary exploration projects.

FRENCH ACTION

Only Three Countries Objected

PARIS (Reuters) — French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville said today that the United States was one of only three countries which reacted unfavorably to France's recognition of Communist China.

The statement came as French newspapers reported the possibility that the agreement, announced today, was already on the point of breakdown over France's simultaneous recognition of both Communist and Nationalist China.

Couve de Murville, as quoted by Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte, told a cabinet meeting today the three countries which reacted unfavorably were the United States, South Viet Nam and Nationalist China.

Peyrefitte did not disclose how many governments reacted favorably.

Asked about a Chinese Communist foreign ministry statement that the Peking regime was the sole representative of the Chinese people, Peyrefitte said only that this was a reaffirmation of the Chinese position, already known to France.

Fisherman Drowns

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Ragnar Hansen, 65, well-known Royal City fisherman, drowned Tuesday night in the Fraser River while help was seconds away. He was working on board his trawler the Lilly H. when he fell into the water.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1964—PAGE 21

LATEST EQUIPMENT for protection of Victoria's waterfront is asbestos suit obtained by Island Tug & Barge Ltd., which keeps fire-fighting tugs on call. Alf Adamson of Victoria Fire Department demonstrated $400 suit to ITB employees Tuesday, turning a valve in the midst of a fuel-oil fire. Suit will be kept with other fire equipment at tug company dock, and be available for use anywhere in area.

New B.C. Bank In Government Office Block?

Minister Likes Vancouver Site

A plan for the provincial government to build the home of the new "Bank of British Columbia" was disclosed today by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

He floated out the idea in the legislature, but such suggestions usually turn out to be firm government policy, especially when they come from a front-rank cabinet minister.

Mr. Peterson's plan is to put the bank in a government office block in downtown Vancouver.

LAND DEAL

It would involve a land deal with the City of Vancouver and the CNR-Hilton Hotel Vancouver.

The government intends to become a minority shareholder in the bank, once it gets a federal charter.

Mr. Peterson said the bank is one of B.C.'s "most critical needs" to spur industrial development.

He proposed that the government build a high rise block to include a court house, other government offices and the new bank.

The site he suggested is a city block bounded by Robson, Hornby, Howe and Smythe Streets adjacent to the existing court house.

Owned by the city it cost $1,375,250.

REASONABLE

Taking into account "other commitments in respect to expropriations" Mr. Peterson said the government could get if for a "most reasonable price" and Mayor William Rathie agrees.

Government-owned property right behind the hotel would then be made available for its proposed expansion plan, Mr. Peterson said. At present the recreation department has some offices there.

In addition he said the government might sell the city its old normal school property for a new junior college.

A BROKEN HEART AND A BROKEN LEG are both on the mend for Kim, a Boxer dog who was injured on Saturday but didn't arrive at the veterinarian's until Tuesday. Kim escaped Saturday from an SPCA officer who was taking her to the hospital and she wasn't found again until Tuesday. The pet of Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Knight, she had her leg set in a splint this morning and is now anxious to get back to 516 Ridley and try out in a three-legged race. Vic Nunn assures her the worst is over.

Ten More Men Asked by Chief

Training Demands Cut Into Manpower

Hiring 10 more policemen to bring the city force to a strength of 120 was requested today by Chief J. F. Gregory.

Notice of the request was contained in a preliminary budget submitted to city police commission.

It showed only a $31,597 increase to a total of $823,515 but is subject to considerable change in the formal budget submitted about three months from now. The preliminary budget is required to meet a legal technicality in the Municipal Act.

Chief Gregory said the preliminary budget included the cost of adding 10 constables but did not provide for any wage increases. The policemen's union currently is negotiating for the equivalent of a 15-per-cent wage boost.

Expansion of the force was requested to meet manpower demands and training schedules.

"It is very difficult to keep the force at authorized strength, particularly with the intensified training program we now have," Chief Gregory told the commission.

"For instance, at the present time we have five men away on courses."

The commission likely will not make a decision on the chief's request until the formal budget requirements are known. Although city council has the final say, it traditionally accepts the advice of the commission.

BLAKENEY
... fights U.S. flower

Centenary May Yet Get Native Rose

Victoria rose grower Fred Blakeney believes his hybrid tea rose Pacific Beauty will be recognized as Canada's centennial rose despite "big business" competition from United States growers.

He is convinced that Pacific Beauty is a better rose—more beautiful and more hardy—than the U.S. product which was given the trademark "Centennial" last month.

"The Canadian Nursery Trades Association is solidly behind me in this matter," said Mr. Blakeney, interview at his home at 963 Arundel Drive today.

The trouble began last month when a Montreal rose grower, Jack G. McIntyre, received permission from the federal government to give the trademark "Centennial" to a U.S. product.

'CONFEDERATION'

This made it impossible for Mr. Blakeney's rose to be called the Centennial rose. So the Canadian Nursery Trades Association today asked State Secretary Pickersgill for permission to apply the name "Confederation" to Mr. Blakeney's rose.

"Under this name it could still be used as Canada's centennial rose," Mr. Blakeney said, "and I am confident the minister will agree."

Mr. Blakeney has the full support of Victoria Horticultural Society, which protested when Weekend Magazine stated last November that a rose grown in Newark, N.J., had been registered with the American Rose Society as the Canadian centennial rose.

CANADIAN-BRED

"Canadian rose growers are agreed that our centennial rose should be a Canadian-bred rose, declared Mrs. Ena McCabe, president of the society.

"It is wrong to have a U.S. product called Canada's centennial rose," John King of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association said in Ottawa today.

Mr. Blakeney said his Pacific Beauty took him three years to develop and has since been tested for hardiness for two years in B.C. nurseries.

TRANS-CANADA

"It can be grown right across Canada during centennial year," he said. "I have supplied all members of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association with the budwood necessary to propagate the rose, and they are anxious to go ahead with it."

Mr. Blakeney proudly displayed his Pacific Beauty on lantern slides. It is deep pink on the face and silvery white on the reverse and has large glossy leaves of a leathery texture.

"The rose has a long, pointed bud and is high-centred in form," he said. "It carries about 35 petals and when fully open it measures about five inches across."

'Second Look' Set On Navy Reserve

A four-man commission hearing arguments on federal government plans to shut down naval reserve installations will hold a session in the wardroom of HMCS Naden at 2 p.m. Thursday.

The commission opened its sessions in Vancouver today, hearing briefs from Vancouver's reserve establishment, HMCS Discovery, the Naval Officers' Association of B.C., the University Naval Training Division and the Navy League of Canada.

The main brief at HMCS Naden will be presented by Capt. Peter Thomas, commanding officer of HMCS Malahat, reserve training establishment on Wharf Street, which is to be closed down in the economy move.

Capt. Thomas will be supported by the Naval Officers' Association of B.C.

The commissioners are Cmdr. R. I. Hendy of Toronto, Capt. Robert Inman of Ottawa, Capt. L. B. McIlhagga of Winnipeg and Capt. A. W. Ross of Vancouver.

Constable Says He Bought Liquor From Taxi Stand

A city policeman told today how he handed a note saying "I was brought here for a bottle" to a downtown bootlegger early on the morning of Nov. 9.

He was testifying against George C. Thomas who pleaded guilty to two charges of selling liquor at the stand of Island Taxi, 1414 Broad Street.

Constable H. F. Galbraith said Thomas read the note and then went outside to the back of the taxi stand. The officer watched through the back window while Thomas reached into a garbage can and took out a bottle of liquor.

He sold Cons. Galbraith a $2.20 bottle for $4. Next morning the officer returned to the taxi stand and this time Thomas sold him a bottle of liquor that he had in a drawer in the office.

Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett told the court that he will attempt to prove that Thomas was convicted once before on a liquor offence. The case was remanded to Feb. 12.

MRS. McMARTIN
... funeral Saturday

Business Woman Succumbs

Mrs. Sarah Anne McMartin, a well-known city business woman, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. McMartin, widow of James Alexander McMartin who died in 1957, was co-founder and an active partner in the McMartin Leather Goods store.

Born in Portadown, Ireland, she came to Victoria over 50 years ago and lived at 59 Howe Street.

She was a life member of the Soroptimists Club and an active member of the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Burns Club and First United Church.

She is survived by a son, Tom, and daughter, Margaret, five grandchildren and three nieces.

Funeral service will be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in McCall's Chapel with Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiating. Interment will follow at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Month In Jail

Keith McNamara of Vancouver was sentenced to one month in jail Tuesday when he appeared in city magistrate's court.

At an earlier hearing the man had pleaded guilty to obtaining lodgings by fraud.

Former Student To Address Uvic Association

Former Victoria College student Dr. John H. Young will return to be guest speaker at a public meeting of the Victoria University Extension Association on Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Lansdowne auditorium.

Dr. Young, head of the department of economics and political science at the University of British Columbia, will speak on: "Some Problems in Canadian Economic Policy."

A native of Victoria, Dr. Young took part of his university training at Victoria College before joining the RCAF and later completed his BA and MA degrees at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

He received his doctorate from Cambridge and taught at Yale University for seven years until 1960 when he returned to the West Coast and joined the faculty at UBC.

He served on the Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects in 1955-56 and on the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance, 1962-63.

How Did Spanish War Come Out? Rediscovered Time Capsule Asks

By PETE LOUDON

Twenty-eight years evaporated this morning for two city hall employees.

A wrecker's bar disclosed a "time capsule" they had secreted in a wall in 1936 to amuse a later generation.

Collector of water rates James Marrs and accountant Bill Farmer were junior employees then, aged 31 and 24 respectively.

"The Spaniards are still at war. Russia is about to come to the government's aid. How did it come out?" they asked in one note.

"The weather is fine. No word yet from Mayor Leeming re the bond deal," reads another memo.

"My son's name is Ronald B. Marrs. Where does he live?" Mr. Marrs enquired of the future.

An unsigned note enquires: "Well, how would you like to work for the corporation for 12 years and at the end of that time be getting less than when you started?"

How did the Spanish War come out? It turned out to be a practice for a world war which was to take Jim Marrs to battle in Italy. Where is his son today? He's a captain with the Black Watch, in Germany.

"Ran" McCann, who lives now in Arizona and Walter Englehart, who now is dead, also took part in the little ceremony, recalls Mr. Marrs.

POT BELLY STOVES

The occasion was the first installation of central heating in city hall. Prior to then each office contained a pot belly stove. The four waterworks staffers hid three envelopes in all, in the walls. Two are still awaiting discovery and may stay hidden for years because not all the walls are being wrecked in the present renovations.

Today's find also contains a miniature edition of the News of the World and a picture of the sports trophies won by civic employees. There are dozens of stamps bearing King George V's likeness.

There's a brochure put out by United Airlines showing the latest two-motor job which could crank up 180 miles per hour.

SPEEDY, HUH?

"How's that for speed?" asks a pencilled scrawl.

There are sweepstake tickets and a raffle ticket put out by Saanich Thistles football team. There are ads circulated by radio stations — one featuring Fred Allen.

Dozens of envelopes bear names of businesses, some long gone, almost all of them handwritten — even the one from the Victoria Times.

Which shatters the claim of reporters who swear their typewriters were here when the Ark landed.

A 19-year-old youth who was disappointed when he went to a house expecting to find a party, broke into the place and stole money and liquor, Saanich court was told Tuesday.

Hercharngit Singh Bain, 3226 Wordsworth, pleaded guilty to the breaking and entering and theft.

Constable John Post said the youth stole about $18 and two part bottles of liquor after ransacking the kitchen and bedroom.

Bain, who is on probation for an earlier offence, was remanded to Feb. 4 for sentence.

Health Minister Eric Martin marked the end of 45 years' service by Colquitz Hospital as a mental institution today by symbolically closing its front doors.

The old building will now return to its original function as a prison.

Mr. Martin said that while the building's facilities were inadequate for a mental hospital "the skill and dedication of Dr. L. G. C. d'Easum and his staff resulted in a high standard of care."

The 300-odd patients from the hospital have been transferred to more modern facilities on the B.C. mainland.

A hit-and-run driver was convicted Tuesday because he unknowingly took his damaged car to be repaired by the man with whom he had collided.

This was revealed in Saanich court Tuesday when Ronald Bennett, 614 Gosworth, was fined $200 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Bennett hit an oncoming vehicle on Trans-Canada Highway near Portage, early on the morning of Dec. 22. He kept on going after the collision.

Hours later he brought his car to a service station without knowing that the driver with whom he had collided worked there as a mechanic. The mechanic spotted parts of his own vehicle still hanging on to Bennett's car and saw paint marks from his own car on Bennett's vehicle.

Bennett was convicted in city court last week of driving while disqualified and sentenced to one month in jail.

It was the second bank holdup within 24 hours. Tuesday two youthful bandits held up a branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank in Burnaby and escaped with $4,000.

Conacher Scoring Star

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Canada, winding up on two goals within 19 seconds by Brian Conacher, shut out Switzerland 8-0 today to win their opening game in the Olympic hockey competition.

Reporters judged Conacher to have scored three times, but officials awarded one tally to Garry Begg.

In his third period splurge, Conacher ripped the Swiss apart to score at :17 when he put one in the corner. The second was at 3:36 when he came behind the net past the Swiss goalminder and unleashed a hard backhander.

During the final period Ken Broderick came in to give Seth Martin a rest.

START SLOWLY

The young Canadian sextet started slowly, scoring only once in the opening period but it picked up steam in the second and poured five goals behind goalminder Gerald Rigolet before Conacher blasted in two in the last period.

The Canadians held a whopping 62-28 edge in shooting which was indicative of the difference between the two teams.

However, the Swiss never gave up as they tried to skate with the opposition throughout.

Gary Dineen, who scored twice for the Canadians, put Canada ahead 1-0 with three

Strong Protest By Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States today protested "in the strongest terms the shooting down" of an American jet trainer over East Germany Tuesday, but the Russians rejected the protest immediately.

"I did not accept the protest," Georgi M. Kornienko, minister - counsellor of the Soviet embassy, told reporters after a 12-minute visit with William R. Tyler, assistant state secretary for European affairs.

"My government has already protested against this clear-cut case of gross provocation," Kornienko said.

The Russian had protested that the plane had travelled without authorization into East German territory and had crashed after a Soviet fighter took defensive measures. The Russians said three officers aboard the plane were killed.

The state department said the aircraft was unarmed, was "obviously lost" and afforded no threat to the Russians. But Kornienko echoed a different Russian view.

"We have all grounds to believe that this was not an error or a mistake," Kornienko said.

"One would not imagine that an airplane is flying 100 kilometres deep beyond a border and then not submit to orders to descend."

"It was a clear intrusion, the plane was intercepted, and then it did not obey two orders," Kornienko repeated.

Jet 'Intruded' Charge Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today one of its fighters downed a U.S. jet trainer over East Germany and the three officers aboard were killed.

The disclosure of the fate of the trainer plane came in a Soviet protest note released here accusing the United States of a provocative flight designed to increase tensions.

The plane vanished Tuesday on a flight from Wiesbaden U.S. air base in West Germany and air force officials said it apparently lost its way. The Russians had been asked for information.

The Soviet note said the plane "intruded" over Communist East Germany and ignored warning shots from a Soviet fighter plane directing it to land.

The note did not actually say the twin-jet T-39 training plane was shot down.

The Soviet announcement said the plane "did not react" to warning fire from a Soviet fighter plane in the area of Weimar.

"Therefore, the Soviet fighter had to take measures in compliance with air defence instructions which are well known to the American command," a Soviet note said.

"As a result the intruder plane crashed near Vogelsberg village, 20 kilometres (12 miles) northeast of Erfurt."

As distributed by the news agency Tass, the Soviet note said:

"The Soviet government cannot regard this intrusion otherwise than as a gross provoca-

U.S. TAKES LEAD

Record Payload Hurled in Orbit

(SEE PICTURE PAGE 34)

(Times News Services)

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla.—A Saturn I super-rocket propelled the world's heaviest satellite into orbit today and presumably vaulted the United States over Russia in the race for space rocket supremacy.

The mighty rocket, 164 feet tall and weighing 562 tons, flooded its launching pad with a rush of flame and sent a thunderous shock wave rolling across Cape Kennedy as it blasted off at 11:25 a.m. EST on its first full-scale test flight.

Slightly more than 10 minutes later, the Saturn I—its second stage live for the first time—injected into orbit a mammoth 84-foot - long satellite weighing 37,700 pounds, nearly three times heavier than the Russian heavyweight champions of space.

The satellite is little more than a mass of metal and sand with a radio tracking beacon. But its presence in the sky demonstrates American capability for the future and the U.S determination to grasp the space rocket power lead.

No scientific value was attached to the huge satellite.

On the test, the Saturn I — forerunner of rockets which will boost American astronauts to the moon—chalked up these milestone performances:

—For the first time, its massive eight-engine, first - stage power plant developed full thrust of 1,500,000 pounds — equal to 34,000,000 horsepower or enough to power more than 200,000 standard automobiles. On four earlier flights of the first stage only, the thrust was held to 1,300,000 pounds.

PROVIDES MUSCLE

—The second stage, a cluster of six motors driven by high-energy liquid - hydrogen fuel, was flown alive for the first time and provided the muscle to shove the satellite into orbit. That stage, cutting in after the first had burned 145 seconds, delivered 90,000 pounds of thrust.

Saturn I's claim to the title of world's most-powerful rocket is based on official U.S. estimates that its first stage generates about 50-per-cent more thrust than Russia's largest booster and the fact that there is no evidence of Soviet progress with liquid-hydrogen fuel.

"There is no question" that the success of the Saturn shot "did take us ahead of the Russians in the ability to carry a payload into orbit," said Dr. Robert Seamans, associate ad-

Wilson Plans Ottawa Visit On Shipyards

Mayor R. B. Wilson announced a delegation will go to Ottawa in the next two weeks to impress the federal government with the shipbuilding crisis here.

Vancouver officials may join the delegation to make it a West Coast group.

Decision to prepare a brief and send a delegation was made at a special meeting in the mayor's office this morning. It was attended by nine civic, business, industrial, labor and political representatives.

Prime concern of shipping circles here is the rumored possibility one or two of the potential three Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort conversions will be given to east coast yards. But the delegation also is likely to make a pitch for more ship contracts as well.

"We are going to prepare a brief and we plan to send a delegation to Ottawa as soon as it is ready—probably in the first half of February," Mayor Wilson said this morning.

For a workmanlike speech that makes its points with a minimum of fuss and feathers, I commend to you Frank Calder, the good and now greying NDP member for Atlin.

It would be unfair to suggest that Mr. Calder's remarks to the Legislature are tamely predictable. The amiable leader of the Nishka band has been known to take the warpath with a whoop and a holler when baiting from the government side overtaxed his patience.

New Probe Ordered In Slaying

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today ordered a new investigation into the 1960 slaying of a Vernon newsboy both confessed and denied by Charles Murral Heathman.

Mr. Bonner indicated Heathman will not be released from Essondale Mental Hospital until the investigation is over.

Heathman, who is 40, said Tuesday he knew who killed 10-year-old Donald Ottley and that people in Vernon knew, too.

"Anytime anybody says he knows who murdered somebody—we take note of it," Mr. Bonner said.

Heathman was originally found guilty of the 1960 summer slaying, then convicted again after a second trial but freed after a successful appeal.

But in 1962, Heathman confessed to a Vancouver newspaper that he was in fact the killer.

Now he denies it again after 20 months in Essondale, where a medical board of two doctors has cleared his release to a sponsor.

Mr. Bonner said police will interview Heathman in Essondale to determine "what weight to attach" to his new statement.

JET SONIC BOOMS CAUSING EXPLOSIONS

Scattered reports of explosions heard in local areas today are thought to be due to aircraft crashing the sound barrier.

The control tower at Victoria's Patricia Bay Airport stated:

"We have reports of jet aircraft in the area. We can hear them overhead. We think this is probably what it is."

A Lansdowne Road resident said the explosion shook pictures in her home. Oak Bay police and residents on Foul Bay Road and Beach Drive also reported hearing the so-called sonic booms shortly after noon.

Cyprus Wants UN To Keep Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Greek-Cypriots have indicated they want a United Nations force to keep peace on the Mediterranean island and not the NATO contingent Britain has been trying to muster.

Zenon Rossides, Cyprus' delegate to the United Nations, told Secretary-General U Thant in New York Tuesday a UN peacekeeping force would be acceptable on his territory. Thant appealed to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey for "the utmost restraint" in handling the explosive situation.

On the island, Greek-Cypriot newspapers assailed the United States and other Western nations expected to take a hand in the crisis and asked that the case be placed before the UN Security Council.

American and British diplomats strove to keep the lid on tempers in Athens, Ankara and Nicosia as signs mounted that U.S. troops might soon be assigned to help keep Turkish and

A 30-year-old man was charged in Courtenay police court this morning with assault with intent to commit an indictable offence.

John Hopton Twist, no fixed address, was remanded without plea until Saturday. He is being held without bail.

Courtenay RCMP said other charges are pending.

Twist was arrested near Cumberland Tuesday morning after a high-speed car chase. Two rifles, a shotgun and a knife were recovered.

The arrest came after a man attacked Mrs. Wilma Mueller, Riverside Hotel manageress. A man also held Mrs. Phyllis Pratt, Marsden Rd., Courtenay, at knife-point for 4½ hours later in the morning.

NEW YORKER WINS CASE

Auto Licence Ads Vetoed

NEW YORK (AP)—A state supreme court justice ruled Tuesday that New York motorists don't have to advertise New York world's fair on their 1964 licence plates if they don't want to. He said they may insist on new plates without any slogans.

However, the decision by Judge Harold J. Tessler that present New York plates are improper is not expected to have any immediate effect, pending a state motor vehicle commission meeting.

Most 1964 plates already are in the hands of motorists, bearing the slogan on the bottom "N.Y., world's fair." The deadline for their installation on the state's more than 5,000,000 registered motor vehicles is Saturday.

Suit against the world's fair slogan was brought by Kenneth Froslid, 32, a magazine picture editor who lives in Port Washington, N.Y. He owns a convertible, a station wagon and a camping trailer. He declared:

"I've nothing personal against the world's fair. What stirred me up was the arbitrary way the legend was put on the plates in the face of some serious questions of law.

"The state has no right to compel me — without even asking—to carry free advertising on my car."

Froslid's lawyer contended that the case involved the improper use of state property for free advertising for the benefit of a private corporation.

Judge Tessler ruled that Froslid—or any other motorist—"legally was entitled to the issuance of a proper registration plate."

Columbia Property Acquisition Delayed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Acquisition of lands required for reservoirs created by Columbia River development projects will not be undertaken until Parliament has approved the Columbia River treaty, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced today.

The authority, the government agency in charge of the multi-million dollar dam construction on the Columbia, said about 2,000 people and 650 homes will be affected by the reservoir to be created by the Arrow Lakes dam, scheduled for construction five miles west of Castlegar.

An authority spokesman said each property owner would be treated on an individual basis.

"We will strive in each case for a settlement which is fair and reasonable to all parties," he said.

tones, "are potentialities involving forestry, fisheries, big game and water power."

The son of a Nishka chief then demonstrates that he does his homework faithfully by delving into the needs of his enormous bailiwick.

Why ruin southern farm valleys, he asks, "just because the whole lower mainland is getting over-populated and over-crowded?"

He feels that government should support new city and park sites for his north country, which he insists has a rich enough future to warrant the planting of towns.

Travel Tough

Not for the first time, Mr. Calder urges a copper smelter for the Portland Canal area.

He tells of a big game guide who didn't get to vote because he couldn't find an enumerator in time.

"Mine is an area in which travel is quite difficult," says the sturdy member who more than once has started his sessional journey to Victoria by canoe. "Transportation depends upon weather conditions."

Because of this, "it is absolutely impossible to try and register people in my riding in the seven days provided, even if the registrar of voters was to use an aircraft, and flying weather conditions were in his favor."

Wrong Gov't

Presently, and inevitably, Frank Calder takes his cut at the way in which Indian affairs are being handled.

"We are fighting the wrong government," he declares after an excursion into history for evidence to justify aboriginal land claims now before Ottawa. "This is the government we should be battling!"

But the government ranged behind its ornate brown hardwood desks across the alley of lush red carpet was in no mood for battle on Tuesday. A state dinner was in the offing, and an early adjournment hoped for.

Perfect Decorum

Even Highways Minister Gaglardi, first speaker of the afternoon, failed to evoke more than a perfunctory snarl or two from the Opposition ranks.

It was a day of well-nigh perfect decorum, the sort when the true stature and function of Parliament shows plain to be admired.

seconds remaining in the first period and counted again later in the middle frame. The other Canadian scores came from Bob Forhan, Begg, Henry Akervall and George Swarbrick.

GOALIE STARS

Rigolet was outstanding although the score was high. He held off the Canadians surprisingly well in the first period but continued pressure by the fast-skating Canadians, coupled with a lack of support from the men in front of him, caught up with him.

Forhan started the 5-goal second-period splurge when he slapped in Larry Johnston's pass at the 27-second mark. Begg made it 3-0 about six minutes later with a long slap shot and Akerval scored in similar fashion at 11:25. Dineen and Swarbrick made it 6-0 in less than a minute, scoring at 14:33 and 15:12.

Canada had four minor penalties while the Swiss had two. The only penalties that figured in the scoring were cross-checking minors at 1:18 to Akervall and Franz Berry and the Canadians scored the two quick goals when both teams were a man short.

Mediation Talks Stalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Panama informed an inter-American peace committee today that it intends to go before the organization of American States (OAS) and charge the United States with aggression.

Panama's declaration indicated the apparent collapse of efforts to mediate the dispute.

tion by the American military authorities, aimed at aggravating the situation in central Europe."

Tass said the Soviet Union had warned repeatedly that resolute steps would be taken against the intrusion of military aircraft into the air space of Communist East Germany.

"The Soviet government," the note added, "deems it necessary to stress that all responsibility for this regrettable incident rests with the authorities of the United States."

BIRTH CONTROL

Doctor Defies Catholic Church

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—On Sunday mornings Dr. Anne Biezanek, mother of seven, walks to her Roman Catholic parish church, kneels at the altar rail and waits for communion. The priest passes by, murmuring, "pardon."

Dr. Biezanek has been refused the sacraments since Jan. 12 for starting a birth control clinic for Catholic women in her home. Her defiance of the church has drawn the attention of Catholics throughout Britain. Several newspapers have sided with her, drawing a parallel with a Catholic doctor in the U.S., Dr. John Rock, who has urged the church to reconsider its position on birth control.

Scores of letters have come in supporting the clinic since she opened it in November. But her own marriage is in jeopardy, and Most. Rev. Eric Grasar, bishop of Shrewsbury, has written asking her to close the clinic and show "true repentance."

"I cannot do what the bishop asks because I am obliged in my conscience to do this work and also to remain a practicing Catholic," she says.

"I didn't come into this work on theoretical grounds. I came into it the hard way, having had 10 pregnancies and seven living children in 13 years. I use contraceptives and I am not ashamed to do so. I will prescribe them for any Catholic patient who needs them and asks for them."

Dr. Biezanek, 36, lives in Wallasey across the Mersey River from the grey industrial city of Liverpool. Her own suburb is a drab collection of docks and working-class homes, including her own. Her husband, born in Poland, is a ship's steward on freighters.

The doctor comes from a different background. A Scotswoman, she was educated at Dartington Hall, an unconventional coeducational school, and the University of Aberdeen Medical School. She became a Catholic at 19 and married at 21.

Until two years ago she opposed birth control, which to her represented "a quagmire of impurity." Then repeated pregnancies threatened her health. She spent five years working in a mental hospital, and some of her patients were women whose health had been affected by childbearing. She underwent an emotional crisis which she describes like this:

"I wanted to be a Joan of Arc. I wanted to die for the principle of purity. But dying is out of fashion. God does not want any more martyrs."

Instead, she decided to place herself against her church and open a clinic in her home. One room is set aside for it, and she has named the clinic for St. Martin de Porres, the 17th century Peruvian half-caste who befriended the outcasts of Lima.

Dr. Biezanek says her husband, Jan, originally supported her work. But after the conflict with the church came into the open, he had a change of heart and threatened legal action against her unless she closed the clinic.

"He now thinks he is appearing in the eyes of the public as a bad Roman Catholic," she said. "I don't know if he is contemplating divorce or separation because he is away at sea now. But whatever he has in mind, I want him to know I will never give up the clinic now."

Gory Film Stresses Road Hazards

Oak Bay school students saw a gory film Tuesday that a policeman hopes they never forget.

Oak Bay Police Sgt. John Green will likely get his wish.

The movie, showing the agony of persons dying in road accidents, impressed the students. Particularly the color scenes of blood-smeared victims in highway accidents and the sound track of their actual screams.

The movie, made by the Ohio Highway Patrol, was designed to back up talks on highway safety that Sgt. Green gave to students at Oak Bay Junior and Secondary High Schools.

Sgt. Green said youthful drivers sometimes are not aware of the responsibility they have in driving a vehicle. When they realize how dangerous a car can be it is sometimes too late to do any good he said.

New Police Commissioner Heading South

The identity of Victoria's new police commissioner may now be known but he himself still doesn't know of his appointment.

That's the latest word on the situation surrounding the appointment of John G. Martin to the city police commission.

Mr. Martin was called a "mystery man" at the time he was appointed because no one knew anything about him.

He is one of a handful of people expected to guide the city force in its modernizing program.

The latest report about Mr. Martin is that he is in Mexico now "and heading south." Relatives of his in the city said they don't know where he is going or when he will be back.

They also said Mr. Martin doesn't know yet he has been appointed a police commissioner.

Mr. Martin came to Victoria 10 years ago and is now retired. Last year he served as a poll clerk in the provincial election and he once was a village councillor in Alberta. Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black nominated him for the police commission.

Miss Prangnell Again Heads Indian Arts

Re-elected president of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society is Miss E. V. Prangnell, 1026 Park Blvd.

Other officers elected at the annual meeting in the public library Tuesday night were:

First vice-president Rodney Beavan; second vice-president Chief Samuel Sam; treasurer Miss Mary Adamson; correspondence secretary Miss E. F. Tervo; recording secretary Mrs. D. G. Esselmont.

Advisory council members are Chiefs Edwin Underwood, John Albany and Edward Joe; Mrs. Edward Joe, Mrs. Sam Joseph, Harry Underwood, Mrs. A. J. Tullis, Mrs. A. Tate, Miss M. K. Broadhurst, Miss Barbara Beattie, D. R. MacLaren.

Taxi Despatcher Paul Reid Dies

A man with an ear for voices died Tuesday after 50 years in Victoria.

He was Paul Reid, 55, of 2501 Central, despatcher for most of his working life at Blue Line taxi depot.

Mr. Reid was well known to city businessmen and was said to be able to recognize more voices on the telephone than any other person in Victoria.

Born at Owen Sound, Ont., he came to Victoria when he was five, and graduated from school at 13.

He worked with Murphy Electric before joining Blue Line Taxi, in which he became a partner. He also bought a partnership in the Pacific Building.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

Victorians Win Honors At Bridge

Two members of Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club have won honors at the American Contract Bridge League's week-long western conference tournament in Vancouver. Nearly 1,000 players took part.

Tony Marsh, 954 Newport, won the mixed pairs championship in partnership with Mrs. Mary Adams of Vancouver.

Mr. Marsh won second place in the men's pairs with William Weinstein of Vancouver and third place in the open pairs championship with Mrs. Ricci Nickells of 1878 Cochrane Street, Victoria.

Richard Walsh and Erik Paulsen of Los Angeles won the open pairs championship with a score of 208—40 points ahead of the second pair, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Ballard of Mercer Island, Washington.

Couple Remanded

BLUE RIVER, B.C. (CP)—A couple charged with exposing one of their children to danger in connection with a house fire in which three children died were remanded one week by District Magistrate D. M. MacDonald.

AIR TRANSPORT BOARD
OTTAWA, CANADA
January 23, 1964.

REVIEW OF COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICES IN THE COASTAL AREA OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Air Transport Board has received a number of applications for licences or amendments to licences involving the establishment of or changes in air services affecting the coastal area of British Columbia. In dealing with these applications the Board proposes to also review the adequacy of the commercial air services in the area, consider representations from all interested parties and all applications for licences or amendments thereto filed with the Board contemplating or affecting commercial air services in the area. The area of British Columbia covered by the review is that part of the province south of Alaska, west of the coastal mountain range and north of the boundary of the U.S.A.

Pursuant to this notice further applications may be filed with the Air Transport Board for licences to operate commercial air services in the area or for amendments to licences now in force which the applicants consider will better satisfy the public requirement for air services in the various communities in the area. Such applications must comply with the requirements of A.T.B. Circular No. 2/51 dated March 10, 1951, and be received by the Board not later than Saturday, February 29, 1964.

Board hearings will be held in May, 1964, at Prince Rupert, Ocean Falls, Campbell River and Vancouver to afford interested parties an opportunity to give evidence and to afford all carriers an opportunity to have their applications heard near their base of operations. Applicants, concurrently with the filing of applications, should advise the Board at which of these points they wish to have their applications heard. Applicants already having filed applications with the Board should confirm that they wish their applications to be heard during the general review and their preference as to the place of hearing.

The public is hereby notified that this review of air services may result in changes being made by the Board to licences and commercial air services now in force. The Board will not consider itself restricted to the consideration of applications filed pursuant to this notice and the decisions of the Board, based on the evidence presented to it, will be directed toward a pattern of licences authorizing commercial air services considered best suited to satisfy the public requirement.

Followins the receipt by the Board of applications filed pursuant to this notice a further public notice will be issued by the Board giving the hearing dates and listing the applications to be dealt with. Air carriers, government departments, public bodies, private groups and individuals will be invited to file submissions respecting the applications and the general review and to attend the hearings and give evidence.

AIR TRANSPORT BOARD,
(Signed) E. P. Quilty,
Secretary.

Labor Link Vote Set For Civil Servants

Provincial civil servants will complete a ballot next month on whether they should rejoin the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The B.C. Government Employees' Association cut ties with the federation in late 1960 after the Social Credit government revoked the privilege of union dues checkoff from their pay.

The reason was political support of the New Democratic Party by the labor group.

Subsequently the government made it illegal for any union dues to be used for political purposes.

BY FEB. 24

A mail ballot circulated among 8,500 BCGEA members will be completed by Feb. 24.

It asks if they favor affiliation with the labor federation.

BCGEA spokesmen in favor of affiliation say there is no longer any reason to deny it.

They point out that 1962 legislation bans any political use of union funds; they also say that the government obviously does not intend to ever return the checkoff privilege.

Those who don't want to rejoin the federation say it has in recent years held a "politically partisan stand" and civil servants should not be associated in any way with any political party.

Is Our Police Doctor Continental Rarity?

City lawyer George Gregory suggested Monday that Victoria's police doctor is the only expert in North America who would testify about a man being impaired without seeing him behind the wheel.

He said only Dr. E. L. McNiven would estimate a driver's alcohol blood count without any prior knowledge of the man.

AT YALE

Dr. McNiven replied that he didn't think he was.

"There are men at the Yale School (of Alcohol Studies) who will do that."

The exchange was at the Esquimalt police court trial of Charles Bakhtour, 2808 Irma, for impaired driving.

Bakhtour pleaded not guilty but, after hearing Dr. McNiven's evidence changed his plea.

EGO BOOSTER

Mr. Gregory said he was entering the change of plea "at the risk of boosting Dr. McNiven's ego."

Magistrate William Ostler remanded Bakhtour until Feb. 3 for a probation report about his licence and for sentence.

Constable Edward Taylor testified he arrested Bakhtour after seeing him weaving over the centre line of Admirals Road shortly before 6 p.m. Dec. 3. Bakhtour's breath smelled strongly of alcohol but he denied having had any liquor to drink.
